
GERALD McDONALD, retiring postmaster at Cardigan is pictured receiving a certificate, or testimonial of long service, from E.E. Brown, postal supervisor for the province at Cardigan yesterday. The presentation was made on the occasion of the change over to the recently erected post office at Cardigan. Mr. McDonald had served for over 45 years as post master. He also received a letter of congratulations and good wishes from the post master general, Hon. John R. Nicholson. Mr. McDonald is a well-known and much respected business man of Cardigan. The new post office is now open for business.

Cardigan Post Master Retires After 45 Years

CARDIGAN — The new post office here was officially turned over to the new post master, Richard Joseph Quinn, yesterday. He was sworn in by the postal supervisor for the province E.E. Brown of Charlottetown.

The retiring post master Gerald McDonald had filled the position for over 45 years. He was presented with a testimonial certificate and a letter from the post master general Hon. John R. Nicholson which congratulated Mr. McDonald on his unusually long record of service.

The post office had been located in the McDonald building since 1908 and was built in 1902. This firm, known as R.J. McDonald and Co. since 1903, was opened for business 100 years ago when the partnership Hugh Lord McDonald and James E. McDonald was formed in 1864.

The Cardigan post office 45 years ago had only one rural route with approximately 60 boxholders. It now has six rural routes and 269 box-holders.

Several of the mail carriers used the horse and wagon until recent years. James A. McDonald in Cardigan RR 2 is perhaps the only carrier to use the horse and buggy on the odd occasion. Several of the routes could only be covered in the heavy snow period of the winter by horse and sleigh.

Mr. McDonald, a well-known and much respected merchant of the area, has served under the following postal inspectors: John F. Weir, A.V. Saunders, L. E. MacLeod, Emanuel J. Gallant, Fred Coyle, and for the past few months E.E. Brown.

1909 POST CARD

A picture post card of Cardigan which Mr. McDonald has in his possession came through the New Perth post office in 1908 and in this picture can be seen one three-masted schooner and three with two masts as well as the present store. He also advised that the railway was opened in Cardigan in 1871.

Mr. Quinn, who is well-known in the area, moves into a new building recently completed by the federal government. It will also have office space for the department of agriculture and the Kings County Agricultural representative.

The new location is on the south side of the Cardigan bridge nearer to the Canadian National Railway Station.

New Montague Legion Opened By Mayor Yeo

MONTAGUE—The new home for the Montague branch of the Royal Canadian Legion was officially opened last evening when Mayor B. H. Yeo cut the ribbon to allow legion members, guests and friends to enter. Many who had not had an opportunity to see the interior previously were amazed at the change.

The new home, which is bright, spacious and inviting, contains a smoker room, bar, large auditorium, large mixed lounge, kitchen, and ladies auxiliary room.

For the occasion the auditorium and smoker room were used to seat all to a turkey dinner which was catered to by the ladies auxiliary.

The guest speaker, Bruce L. Stewart, Souris, and Dominion representative for the Legion stated, "we think it is most fitting that this Legion home should nestle so attractively in the beautiful town of Montague. It is a source of great pride that Legionaires everywhere share with Montague and surrounding districts in celebrating this outstanding achievement.

"We congratulate you, but this is a splendid time in the opening of this new Legion home to remember those who went forward from many walks of life in this area to meet the challenge. Guard carefully the trust which we have received, lest through indifference we allow the erosion of our very foundation of democracy."

VALUE OF LEGIONAIRE

Looking to the value of a Legionaire he said, "look around and you will see his efforts at community level, his participation in campaigns for the needy, the Red Cross effort, blood donor clinic, very often an inspiration to the young, a comfort to the old, he challenges for fit bodies in youth, training programs, he assists the quick of mind in bursaries, speaks with a strong national voice. Born out of war he is dedicated to peace.

"I feel confident that in true perspective we will find there is reserved in him with great reverence for the creator.

"The Royal Canadian Legion is a force of 267,000 who together with the ladies auxiliary are endeavoring to pay three debts 1. to those who did not return, 2. to those who need our help, 3. last but not least to our children who are the ingredients for the future."

He concluded with a story of a little boy who lost his boat and had to buy it for the second time. "Your new home is as this. This home is now yours. You had to buy it twice."

Other speakers were: E. A. Keeping who responded to a toast to the Legion; Basil MacKinnon, president of the Montague branch; Lieutenant Governor W. J. MacDonald; Hon. Phillip Matheson who represented the provincial government and who read a telegram from Premier Shaw who was unable to be in attendance; Mercier Mullen, provincial president of the RCL.

Head table guests were: Hon. L. G. Dewar, Keith Pickard, Basil and Mrs. MacKinnon, Lt. Col. Earl MacLeod, Mr. and Mrs. Mercier Mullen, Mayor B. H. Yeo, R. M. and Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Atwood MacDonald, Athol and Mrs. Robertson, Hon. Phillip Matheson and Mrs. Matheson, Rev. Donald MacLennan, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Keeping.

The color party: Calvin Hilchey and Albert Elsworth, Piper Donald MacLeod.

GEORGETOWN — The death occurred suddenly in the P.E.I. Hospital yesterday of Marcellus Simon Gotell of Georgetown.

Mr. Gotell had been in poor health for the past eight months and re-entered hospital Monday. He was well-known throughout the province.

Mr. Gotell was born in Georgetown, the son of the late Frederick Gotell, Georgetown, and the late Catherine Pauline Martin, formerly of Tignish.

He followed the sea in the merchant marine service for many years as a shipwright, sailing to ports of call all over the world, and also sailed on Great Lakes ships for a number of years.

During World War II, he served in the merchant marine service from the outbreak of hostilities to the end of the war. TORPEDOED

He was a chief petty officer on the freighter St. Malo when she was torpedoed by a German submarine in 1940 500 miles of the coast of Ireland, and spent 11 days in an open life-boat before being picked up and taken to Greenock, Scotland.

In 1947, he left the merchant marine to settle in Georgetown, where he carried on his trade as carpenter and boat builder.

He spent six years in the fisheries protective service of the dominion government, and left that service in 1962.

He was past president of the Georgetown Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, past zone commander and a former member of the provincial executive of the Legion.

He was a member of St. James Roman Catholic Church and a member of the Knights of Columbus.

Central Kings Farmers Told Of Extra Land Use

MONTAGUE — Recently proven methods of putting extra Island land into production by quick clearance of even heavy growth or by improved sub-soiling were explained and demonstrated to Central Kings farmers at a meeting at the school last night

Farms and industrial interests combined to make the meeting possible and out of town speakers also showed films to give farmers an indication of the extent of the work being done elsewhere and now being introduced extensively in this province.

Chairman was Donald Gordon, Pickard Machinery Company, who opened the meeting with a short talk on the vital necessity of planning for the future. With him were David Hall, agricultural teacher at the Provincial Vocational Institute, and Donald Barlow of the Barlow Construction Company.

Mr. Gordon told the audience:

Making a living involves taking a chance, but those who conduct their business with the minimum of worry are people who minimize the possibility of adverse chance by planning ahead.

The man who has planned his course, and is going in the right direction, sets up a group of circumstances contributing to his success. Then he is in position to turn every incident into something for his good.

No one can deny these virtues: Planning helps to avoid overlooking details which should be considered before action is taken; planning co-ordinates and schedules actions so that efforts are placed where there is most room for improvement and chance for success. A plan should be detailed for the length of time that the future is predictable. It should contain specific target dates for accomplishment.

It is good planning, in private as in business life, to make a list of things that need to be done. Number them in order of their importance. Then start with number one and work through the list. Making the list takes five minutes, and it will save hours.

Scientists are the best exponents we have of people who work with system and order. Scientific method does not mean the designing of new devices or techniques, but a way of thinking.

FIRM GROUND

When we have reliable information relating to some matter in which we are interested we have firm ground to stand on as we make our plans and predictions.

Having broken down the problem, situation or plan and examined it in its parts, and pushed aside the inconsequentials, what we have left is the significant fraction that needs attention. We must interpret, as well as chronicle and tabulate.

Then follows responsible action. A working balance must be reached between desirable ends and the price to be paid. Lesser men flee from this responsible decision-making, but successful leaders know that a business will starve on a diet of suspended judgement alone.

Planning is barren without organization and action. In an age whose symptomatic drug is the tranquillizer, there is room and need for individuals with the zest to face life boldly. They will. This involves courage too. Forget the structure off the drawing boards on to the foundations. ing done our planning, we must risk our convictions in an act.

1814 Coin Found In City

A copper coin, dated 1814, was found yesterday in a Water Street west excavation at the site of a new apartment building. It was picked up by John Casford of Charlottetown. He said it appeared to have been under 10 feet of earth.

The 150-year-old coin, about the size of an old large one-cent piece although thipner, had Britannia on one side and Halifax on the other. Some of the printing was not very legible but the date was plain enough.
