SALLY DOWS,

An After War Romance of the South.

"I'm not making fault with her, you know," said Champney, hastily. "I'm not such a beastly cad as that; I wouldn't have spoken of my affairs at all, but you asked, you know."

"You're a good fellow, Champney," said Courtland, laying his hand on the young man's shoulder with a sudden impulse, "and I forgive you for overlooking the fact that I could help them."

The storm was not yet over; the air had again become close and suffocating. Courtland remained brooding in his chair. Whether he could accept Champney's news as true or not, he felt that he must end this suspense at once.

"Yes, sah," There was the sound of heavy footsteps in the hall coming from the rear of the house, and presently a darker bulk appeared in the shadowed doorway.

"I reckon dey won't try any games on me," said Courtland, in a tone of quiet but positive authority.

dict with the federal laws, when you must appeal to the federal authorities. I prefer you should avoid any trouble until you are sure."

"I reckon dey won't try any games on me," said the negro, with a short laugh.

Courtland looked at him intently. "I thought as much! You're carrying arms, Cato! Hand them over."

The overseer hesitated for a moment, and then unstrapped a revolver from his belt and handed it to Courtland.

"Now, how many of you are in the habit of going round the town armed like this?"

"Only de men who've been insulted, sah."

"And how have you been insulted?"

"Marse Tom Higbee down in de market reckoned it was high time fancy niggers was drove into de swamp, and I allowed dat leaders and beggars had better roost high when working folks was around, and Marse Tom said he'd cut my haht out."

"And you think your carrying a revolver will prevent him and his friends performing that operation if you provoked them?"

"You said it was to protect ourself, sah," returned the negro, gloomily. "What foh den did you drill us to use dem rifle in de armory?"

"To defend ourselves together if attacked, not to singly threaten with them in a street row. Together, you would stand some chance against those men; separately they could eat up, Cato."

"I wouldn't trust too much to some of dem niggers standing together, sah," said Cato, darkly. "Dey'd run before de old masters—if dey didn't run to 'em, Shuah!"

HEART FAILURE, FAINTNESS,

ACUTE DYSPEPSIA, Complete Nervous Prostration, Cured by Using HAWKER'S NERVE & STOMACH TONIC.

A LADY'S EXPERIENCE. Mr. Wm. Thompson of Musquash, N. B., writes: "For 23 years past my wife has suffered with Acute Dyspepsia accompanied with complete nervous prostration and a smothering sensation about the heart which frequently produced an attack of faintness. She became weak and nervous, lost all energy, and had constant feelings of dread. She suffered with intense pain in the stomach after eating, which was usually followed by the most distressing sensation about the heart and fainting spells. She tried a great many remedies and was treated by the doctors for some time, but she derived no relief. She became so discouraged that she gave up all hope of ever getting better, when she was recommended to try HAWKER'S NERVE AND STOMACH TONIC AND LIVER PILLS, which had proved so successful in several cases he knew of. We did not doubt she obtained immediate relief from the distressing pain in the stomach, and she was enabled to improve ever since until today she is well as ever, and can enjoy her food without fear of suffering. I cannot speak too highly of these valuable medicines which have restored her to health and strength and saved much suffering and expense."

The Telephone Company

—OF— P. E. ISLAND.

PARTIES using the Telephone would find talking much more satisfactory if they would observe the following regulations: 1st. Speak with the mouth about four inches from the transmitter. 2nd. Speak in a moderate tone of voice, not too loud and distinct. 3rd. Place the telephone so as to cover the ear, just as if you wished to shut out all other sounds. Do not press too hard on the ear. It is possible to talk and be heard when standing back two or three feet from the transmitter, if you speak loud enough, but it is not a pleasant mode of conversation, is entirely unnecessary, and is a needless waste of wind and lungs, besides being very annoying to all within range of your voice.

ROB ANGUS, Manager.

MRS. LIZZIE A. KNOWLTON, LIBERTY, ME.

Cured of a Severe Case of Dyspepsia by using Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup. She is the wife of a well-known Spring Bed manufacturer. It is due to her that I am enabled to try Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup. She says: GENTLEMEN—For several years I have been afflicted with dyspepsia and a complicated stomach and liver trouble. The last time I ate was with great difficulty and I was unable to eat anything. My appetite was poor, and I had a very bad cough, was very nervous, could not sleep, and in fact my whole system seemed to be affected. I was unable to attend to my household duties. Physicians and medicine gave me no relief or benefit, and I had lost all faith in them, but I tried Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup. Before I had taken one bottle I was greatly improved, and continued its use, and in ten days I was able to eat, sleep, and enjoy my life, and I feel that I have been cured. Respectfully, Mrs. LIZZIE A. KNOWLTON, Liberty, Me. Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup, 111-112th St. June, 22.
