

A Story of John Morrissey.
Henry L. Dawes of Pittsfield, Mass., successor of Charles Sumner in the senate, told the following story:
"When I was a judge in Pittsfield, Morrissey and Yankee Sullivan fought a prize fight at a neighboring place called Boston Corners. Sullivan was arrested and fined $1,000. He handed over the money and went his way. A day or two later, while I was sitting on the bench, a fine looking man entered the courtroom and sent a letter up to me. It was from a friend of mine introducing John Morrissey. He, too, was fined $1,000 and said to me that he would send me his check on his return to New York.
"Well, I didn't know what might happen if he was let go on that understanding, but I said to Morrissey that any arrangement for settlement which he made with the sheriff would be satisfactory. The sheriff, feeling as I did, insisted upon having the fine paid in cash, and since Morrissey didn't happen to have that much cash with him the sheriff locked him up until the amount was sent on from New York.
"I fancied that Morrissey felt he owed me a grudge because of this incident. Years afterward in Washington a number of new congressmen were brought up to be introduced to me. Among them was Morrissey. When he came forward, he smiled and said, 'Mr. Dawes, I believe we have met before.'"

She "Sassed Her."
Some visitors to East Gloucester paid a special call upon the woman said to be the original of Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward's famous story, "A Madonna of the Tubs." Mrs. Phelps Ward's summer home, be it known, is in East Gloucester. The visitors found a typical New Englander with a self evident capacity for taking care of herself.
"So you are the Madonna of the Tubs?" said the visitors.
"I am," said the New Englander.
"And Mrs. Phelps Ward wrote a beautiful story about you?"
"She did."
"Have you ever met Mrs. Ward?"
"I have. After she wrote that story she came round here one day and hunted me up. She said as how she wanted to see me for herself."
"How interesting!" murmured the visitors. "And what did you do?"
"Do?" repeated the Madonna of the Tubs. "What did I do? I sassed her well for writin' such a story as that about me. Such a pack of lies I never read. Why, there wasn't one-half of it true. And she had the face to come and see me afterward! Oh, I sassed her well, I did!"

TRAB AN INFERIOR FLEET—It is a queer commentary upon Dewey's victory that the United States Government should refuse the admiral the full prize money and offer him half the amount claimed, because it was an inferior fleet that he defeated.

DAIRYING NOTES—During the past summer the New Glasgow Dairying company received 1,695,003 lbs. of milk, which were manufactured into 162,641 lbs. of cheese. This was sold for $16,626.50, or an average of 10.22 cents per pound. From this the patrons received $13,439.06 an average of 79.23 cents per 100 pounds, after clearing a debt from the factory of $475.00, and putting in $100 of extra repairs. The average amount of milk to make a pound of cheese was 10.40. This has been the most prosperous year in the history of the factory, the amount of milk received being almost double that received last year. And we hope to see it still increase next year. The separator is now running with a good supply of milk, the cream being manufactured into butter at Kensington. Next year the company hope to put in a butter plant.

Educational Test for Workmen.
VICTORIA, B. C., January 27.—A bill amending the coal mines' regulation act, was introduced in the Legislature yesterday. It provides an educational test for workmen, the object being to secure the exclusion of Chinese, Japanese, Douklores and Hungarians, while evading disallowance on the score of discrimination. Mr. Helmcken is testing the provincial feeling on the disallowance (of last year's anti-Asiatic legislation by reintroducing the Tramway Act containing the celebrated Chinese and Japanese clauses.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

An Interesting Discussion on a Very Ancient Question.
"Mentioning the subject of queer names," said the man from the east as he smoked meditatively, "I had an uncle whose name was Woodenleg."
"Is that your name, may I ask?" inquired the man in the next seat.
"No. He was an uncle by marriage only. But my aunt's name fitted his to a charm."
"That is strange."
"Yes. She was a Walker. Couldn't have been more appropriate, could it? Ha! ha!"
There were silence and smoke after that until several stations had been passed, when a thin voice piped up:
"That's nothing so wonderful. Why it isn't in it with the name of an aunt I had once. She isn't living now, poor thing, but she changed her name before she died. It was Drythirst."
"By act of legislature?" asked the man from the east.
"No. She married a man named Drinkwater."
More silence and smoke. Then the first speaker resumed:
"I knew a man in Salem, Mass., where my folks lived, who was always called Slowcome."
"Well, wasn't that his name?"
"No, it wasn't. He had a peculiar kind of a slow walk, and the Salem boys fixed that name on him. It made him so angry to be nicknamed that they followed him around calling 'Mr. Slowcome' at his heels. He kept a shop, and they tormented him until he appealed to the police to raid the boys and protect him. A man in uniform was sent to read the riot act to the boys, which he did effectually. Then he went into the shop and said to the man they had nicknamed Slowcome: 'It's all right now, and you won't be called out of your name any more. Good day, Mr. Slowcome.'"
"I heard a story," said the man in the next seat, "of two ladies, mother and daughter. The girl was expecting a new young man acquaintance to call on her and was coaching her mother on his name. 'Now remember, ma, his name is Cowdry, and I want you to say it over so you won't forget it.' So when the young man called the mother met him with a hospitable smile and held out her hand. 'Good evening,' says the old lady; 'nice evening. I'm real glad to see you, Mr. Drycow.'"
"C-h-i-c-a-g-o!" called the conductor, and the interesting trio stepped from the car.

With a Doll Penell.
The philosopher of the curbstone rises to remark that:
The vulgarest people on earth are those who talk most of the vulgarity of others.
When a woman says of another woman's hat, "It's a sight on her," she means she believes it would be becoming to herself.
It is only the married woman who says "Thank you" when you resign your seat in a street car. The others take it for granted.
The only difference between the average girl and the average widow is: The former is consumed with curiosity; the latter has lost hers.
Is it to be wondered at that the look in a burglar's eye is steely?—Detroit Free Press.

Frightful Alternative.
"George is a nice fellow," mused Arabella, "and looks splendid in his lieutenant's uniform in spite of the fact that he lost one of his arms in Cuba. And Harry is a nice fellow, too, although he is an agent for one of these hated trusts. It is a hard thing to be compelled to choose between a one armed man and an octopus!"—Chicago Tribune.
