

Preservation of Eggs.

Australian eggs are preserved in the following simple manner: The vessel in which the eggs are to be placed are glass jars with patent stoppers, vulcanized Indian-rubber joints making them perfectly air tight. As soon as the eggs have been collected, the jars are stood in hot water for some time, and left until the air in them has become thoroughly warm and rarefied. The jars having been heated the eggs are wrapped up in paper to prevent them knocking together, and placed in a warm receptacle, their pointed ends being uppermost. The jars are immediately closed up, and then, and not until then, are removed from the hot water. It is said that if this process is skillfully carried out, the eggs will be as fit for the breakfast table as the day they were laid, many months after they were put in the jars. The great secret of success in carrying out this method is, no doubt, to thoroughly heat the air in the jars. The eggs will stand a better chance of keeping, if the paper in which they are packed is previously baked and used warm. Patent stoppers are not absolutely necessary, any stopper answering which effectually excludes the air. At the late Birmingham, Eng., cattle show, prizes were offered for the best dozen of preserved eggs, and they were given, as was the case the year previous, to those preserved in simple lime and water, or packed in dry salt. Samples were shown covered with melted suet, beeswax, oil, or lard, and all these were good. But strange to say, one exhibit which had been rubbed over with pure vaseline as soon as laid was the worst of all. All the eggs were putrid.

A Strong Man.

There is a man on the Derson River, below Dayton, named Angela Cordella, who claims to be the strongest man in the world. He is an Italian, aged twenty-eight, and stand 5 feet 10 inches weighing 195 pounds. His strength was born with him, for he had no athletic training. He differs from other men chiefly in the osseous structure. Although not of unusual size, his spinal column is much beyond the ordinary width, and his bones and joints are made on a similarly large and generous scale. He has lifted a man of 200 pounds with the middle finger of his right hand. The man stood with one foot on the floor, his arms outstretched, his hands grasped by two persons to balance his body. Cordella then stooped and placed his third finger of his right hand under the man's foot, and with scarcely any perceptible effort raising him to the height of four feet and deposited him on a table near at hand. Once two powerful men waylaid Cordella, with intent to trash him, but he seized one in each hand and hammered them both together until life was nearly knocked out of them.—Va. Footlight.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 50,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it. Samples bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada.
