

Strawberry Harvesting Calls For Many Workers

Almost two hundred strawberry pickers and hullers have been placed with growers and processors in Queen's County by the Charlottetown National Employment Office since the harvesting of strawberries commenced about ten days ago. The office commenced registering applicants for this work about the middle of June and was able to fill all orders promptly when sufficient advance notice was given.

Orders for pickers given on short notice are difficult to fill quickly. Each worker must be reached by telephone and notified with whom he or she is going to work, and where to report for work. In one day alone the office made one hundred telephone calls to gather up strawberry pickers for various growers. It is not the policy of the National Employment Service to have large numbers of people waiting in their offices for work. It is therefore necessary that employers give some forewarning of their needs so that workers can be notified of any available employment.

For the past five weeks the local office has been carrying out the annual renewal of Insurance Books and in that period of time has issued more than six thousand new books in exchange for old ones. Concurrently with the book renewal procedure the office has been re-registering on special form all people engaged in insurable employment

The renewal of insurance books is now more than seventy-five per cent. complete, and with the co-operation of employers it is hoped to make it almost one hundred per cent. accomplished before the end of July.

According to recent information the National Employment Office will be moving to new ground floor accommodations in the new Federal Building sometime after the middle of September. Mr. John R. MacKinnon of the Architectural Section of the Dominion Department of Public Works in Charlottetown, will supervise the movement of all National Employers equipment and supplies, to the new location.

Women Investors Are Successful, They're Cautious

TORONTO (CP)—Helen Cleveland, an investment counsellor for 40 years, says that although fewer women play the stock market they invest as wisely as the men.

Bound for Hawaii for her first long holiday since she started working, Miss Cleveland said women are more cautious because they are more successful.

"They have to be," she said. "They don't get the salaries that men do and they have to be careful with what they have."

Because of women's cautious characteristics investing should be a family matter.

better than one," she said. "And if the money is lost the head of the household doesn't get all the blame."

"Men haven't the time today and getting the information is the wife's job. After all, why shouldn't women do the investing for the family? They do all the other buying and it's the same principle but a different type of buying."

She advises beginners at the stock market to be wary of tips. "You have to be sure your information source is reliable," she said. "Someone might have started a rumor to push up the market and get rid of his own stock at a handsome profit, leaving the green speculator holding the bag."

Her only tip is not to invest haphazardly. "A good yardstick is to have 35 per cent in bonds and those not all the same kind, 15 per cent preferred, 40 per cent common and 10 per cent speculative," she said. "There are no hard and fast rules, of course. It all depends on circumstances."

The investor should not speculate with any amount he can't afford to lose.

"You hear only about the people who made money, never about those who lost," she said. "Nobody's smart enough to win all the time."

The daughter of a mining engineer, Miss Cleveland entered the brokerage business after graduating from high school. "I had no experience but I absorbed it," she said. The stock crash in 1929 was a "cheap lesson," she said. She'd made some money that year and "thought I knew it all."

CROP DESTROYED
More than 50 per cent of France's 1956 wheat crop was destroyed by bad weather and it will have little or none to export.

TWO HEADS BETTER
In the old days men believed investing was too difficult for women but today two heads are
