New Speaker Of House Follows Political Line

While having seen some of the toughest political battles in his day, the Hon. Frank Myers, new Speaker of the Prince Edward Island Legislature, remains one of the easiest-going, softest-talking men on the local political scene today.

Mr. Speaker has always been noted for his quietness in speech and action, his easy approach to any task assigned to him no matter how difficult, and most of all for being the professor of that rarity among politicians—a sunny, friendly disposition.

Frank Myers, now a veteran himself, is carrying on a long family tradition of service to district and province. First elected to the Legislature in the general election in April 1951, he had to wait then for a re-count before being assured of a seat.

He was out of the House for a time when he went down to defeat as the Progressive Conservatives suffered one of their worst beatings and only three members of the party were returned. However, Mr. Myers won a by-election when the Liberal member, Alan Stewart, died and he has been in the House ever since.

DEPUTY-SPEAKER
Back in 1959, when his party was swept into power on the wings of the oratory of their new leader, Walter R. Shaw, Mr. Myers was named deputy-speaker and since then frequently filled the chair for Hon. John McLean until the recent death of the Speaker.

Although he had little personal political background prior to his first election win, he had a family tradition, known to several past generations of Islanders, to maintain.

His father was the mighty debating warrior, John H. Myers, a meeting with whom on the hustings in the days of joint meetings was something to be avoided by political opponents if they could, and regretted if they couldn't.

Even further back a great-grandfather also sat in the House, but nearer the present, John H. Myers went from his first District of Queens into the federal field and held a seat in Parliament from 1930 to 1935. Now his son is Hon. Frank Myers, Speaker of the House.

The new Speaker was born in Hampton in 1906 and just last week celebrated his birthday. Even his birth contains a political touch as his mother, the former Adelaide Dixon, of Desable, was a niece of the late Premier John H. Bell.

Married in 1928 to the former Miss Florence Proffitt, of Victoria, Mr. Myers is the father of three children. His oldest daughter, married, now lives in Calgary, while the second girl lives in Crapaud with her husband and three children. His only son, who was married only last December, received one of the finest wedding presents (farm youths can expect) on that day his father and mother turned over the home farm to him as a gift.

U.S. Colonel Was A Son Of City Family

Colonel James Gordon MacCabe, 47, died at his home in Richmond, Virginia, Saturday evening, Feb. 20.

He was the son of James Harold MacCabe and the late Ethel Burhoe MacCabe, originally of Charlottetown. Mr. MacCabe was the husband of the former Harriett Carmon of Atlanta, Georgia, and father of Edith MacCabe, 22, Kathleen 20, Carey Leona, nine, and Lucy Gay, five. He was the brother of Phyllis MacCabe of New York City, and Elizabeth M. MacCabe of Boston.

Colonel MacCabe served in the United States Air Force as a test pilot during World War II, participated in the Berlin Airlift and served with the strategic air-command with rank of colonel. He later was associated with the Martin Aircraft Company, Baltimore, Maryland, the Reedy Company and the Old Dominion Iron and Steel Works in Richmond, Virginia.

His last position was a contract sales manager with Small Business Administration of the United States Government.

A full military funeral was accorded Colonel MacCabe Wednesday at National Cemetery, Fort Harrison, 10 miles from Richmond.

New Food Plant Wants All Islanders Possible

Industry and Natural Resources Minister Leo Rossiter made an impromptu tour of the new Gulf Garden Food Plant at Georgetown yesterday morning.

Mr. Rossiter stated "the plant continues to expand even in this early stage of development. The Findus Company of Switzerland, which will distribute the plants products, will install fully automatic filleting machines. Norwegian partners, through Norinvest, an investigating firm made up of 14 banks, will install a complete canning line."

Mr. Rossiter said "the firm has already started an advertising campaign to secure the personnel it will require when the plant goes into operation. Company president Jens Moe has assured us that, wherever possible, Island people will be employed."

VISIT GEORGETOWN

Mr. Moe also expressed the wish that Island people would visit Georgetown, see the work that is going on and take an interest in the progress being made. We have been told that some of the technical people will, of necessity, have to be imported but that the majority of jobs will be available to Island people."

Mr. Rossiter said "another important aspect of this whole project is that Findus of Switzerland is supervising the construction to the extent that the plant will be built according to Findus specifications. This means that the plant is being built by the most knowledgeable people in the food industry in the world."

According to Mr. Rossiter,

Personalized Tax Form Reveals Inner Secrets

With national newspaper advertisements and a spate of radio announcements, the Department of National Revenue has launched its campaign to bring its new "personalized" income tax returns to the attention of taxpayers.

By now you should have received your tax forms by mail — not from your employer. His responsibility this year is to give you 74s.

What's the reaction to the department's "personalized" return? Well, it doesn't make tax-paying any more palatable — but then it wasn't meant to. The real reason behind these labelled forms is the number — not just a number plucked out of the air and stamped on you indiscriminately, but a number carefully built out of facts from your last year's return. Facts such as your birthday, for example, which means the number is yours and no one else's.

What happens when a girl marries during the year and changes her name? Or when a taxpayer has changed his address? If either happens, make the change RIGHT ON THE LABEL itself. Some taxpayers who have changed their name or address seem afraid of making their alterations on the label — and they are not giving the department a return address to which refunds, or other correspondence, should be sent.

Suppose two people at the same address have the same name? How do they know which "personalized" return belongs to whom?

It's fairly simple: the first digits of the number on the label contain your birthday (or should if the department punched the right keys).

Here's how to work it out: divide the first three digits by 31. Let's say your first three digits are 868. Divide by 31. It goes into 28 twice. That means two full months elapsed in the year BEFORE the month of your birthday. You have leftover 4. Therefore your birthday is March 4 — the fourth day of the THIRD (be careful, not SECOND) month.

Try it again: suppose your number is 246. 31 goes into it 7 times with 29 left over. Your birthday is therefore on the 29th of the month AFTER seven full months have elapsed — or August 29th.

NOT JAMES BOND
If your number is 001 or 031 your birthday is sometime in January. (007, for example, would be not James Bond, but January 7th).

The department agrees it might occasionally have picked up a wrong birth date on the computer. It doesn't matter to the taxpayer: so long as he files his labelled return — without altering the number — the department can identify him speedily and get his refund to him efficiently.

of unskilled jobs to "substitution of capital for labor"—modernization and technological advances. To prepare workers for skilled jobs "the board attaches the greatest importance to improvements in education and technical training."

The report also emphasizes the need for improved transportation and freer trade in the North Atlantic area. It stresses that "new industries" should be the type that can quickly become self-supporting, provide permanent jobs and need little or no subsidization.

"Increased employment for its own sake, achieved in any way possible, would not constitute a worthwhile contribution to economic improvement in Nova Scotia."

The over-all plan for the first four years is expected to be ready by the end of this year. The report says it will likely include a plan to attract secondary industry to Nova Scotia.

A working committee is to be

INDICATES TRENDS

The report warns of a continuing decline in the demand for unskilled labor, particularly in agriculture, fishing and mining. However, some increase in unskilled woods employment may result in the next four years from an expansion in pulp and paper-making.
