THE PREMIER IN A NEW ROLE.

We are informed, from sources entitled to all credence, and we are personally aware, that there exists much speculation and surmise, and that much comment is being made regarding a fence lately erected by Premier Farquharson to guard a lot of land owned by him in the vicinity of Black Sam's bridge.

Now, the fact of the Premier putting up a fence to secure a portion of his landed property from trespass is not a matter to which should be attached much importance. Nor, if this were a matter of ordinary account, would it call for particular notice.

But we are told, and inspection has corroborated the information, that the material that has been used in the fencing-in of this lot of land is nothing less than venerable timbers and boards procured from the framework of the old Prince of Wales College building, lately pulled down to make way for the present seat of learning!

Think of this, all ye who revere the memory of your old Alma Mater! Why, many people who never even trod the classic halls of the old college venerate the traditions connected therewith, and are pained to learn of the ignoble use now being made of these interesting relics.

The question is asked: what right has the Premier to take these boards—on which are inscribed the names of many who studied in the old building—and put them to their present undignified use?

We prefer to leave this an open question and to bring forward a theory that may account for the Premier's action.

It may not be known, except to our older readers, that many years ago the lot of land now in question was occupied by "Black Sam," who, like Diogenes of old—lived in a tub, or a hogshead, and was quite a celebrated character. It may be that the Premier considers this humble imitator of the great Cynic philosopher is entitled to have his memory perpetuated in some appropriate and classical form and has thought it fitting that "Black Sam's" former abode should be surrounded with the boards of the old college, to which, it may be presumed, a flavor of the ancient and modern classics, of all languages, was imparted in the days gone by.

THE PROMISE BREAKERS

The Moncton Times has a lengthy report of the address delivered before the Tupper Club on Friday evening by Hon. Senator Ferguson. The address is highly spoken of and was followed with the closest attention throughout. In the course of his remarks Senator Ferguson took up the ante-election pledges of the Laurier-Tarte government and said he was not able to recall one single promise made by the Liberals before taking office that they had carried out. The promises were made by the party assembled in solemn conclave in Ottawa in 1893, yet, after obtaining office, not one single pledge had been fulfilled. Protection was one of the things they attacked and denounced, but the tariff under the Liberals showed that there was only the reduction of a small fraction of one per cent. from that of the last year of Conservative rule, and, adding the increased excise duty, the revenue from the tariff was increased. The Liberals in opposition pledged themselves to save five millions of dollars in the expenditure. Instead of doing that the last year for which we had figures showed an increase of ten millions in the expenditure over the amount spent by the Conservative administration. And Mr. Tarte says "wait till you see us next year." Another pledge of the Liberals was that they would get reciprocity with the United States. But little or no effort has been made by the Government in this direction, the premier saying that the people of Canada did not want reciprocity with the United States. As in other matters so had the Liberals violated their pledges with reference to their trade platform. The course adopted by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his party in regard to the preferential trade question was also taken up by Senator Ferguson. Sir Wilfrid, the Senator pointed out, in Canada advocated a preference for products in Great Britain, but when he landed in Liverpool he told the British people that Canada wanted no preference in the British market. The original aim of the Liberals, the Senator showed, was not to give a preference to British goods alone, but was intended to apply to other nations. The favored nations' clauses, however, prevented this and the government, after scoffing at Sir Charles Tupper's advice in the matter, had to recede from her original position. The bungling way in which the government handled the whole preferential trade question was elucidated at some length. The result of this preference tariff, the Senator showed, has been to increase our imports from Great Britain only 12½ cents, while our imports from Belgium increased 150 per cent., United States 59 per cent. and Germany 24 per cent. An increase in our imports of only 12½ per cent. from Great Britain showed that this great preference was only a sham and had not had the effect it should have had. Senator Ferguson, while not disposed to oppose giving British products a preference in our markets, was favorable to a reciprocal preferential tariff. He concluded his able address by predicting a brilliant victory at the forthcoming election for the Liberal Conservative party led by Sir Charles Tupper.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

—Webster Davis, the somewhat notorious pro-Boer, will, until the night before the election appear in the different cities and towns of the South as an advocate of Mr. Bryan for the Presidency. Mr. Sulzer, another pro-Boer, who appropriated all but $10,10 of some $1400 collected in Washington for Boer widows and orphans, will represent Mr. Bryan in the west. No avowed "Boer" sympathiser has been announced as one of his orators, but there is yet time for one to be put forward.

A CATASTROPHE AVERTED

By Mrs. Geo. H. Webb's Presence of Mind.

"Miss Ada McCluskey, of Franklin Avenue, accompanied by the two children of C. J. McCluskey, of Jersey City, started with the Episcopal Sunday School on Wednesday morning, for a day's picnicking. Miss McCluskey noticed an odor of burning wood as she entered the trolley car on the journey to the picnic grounds, but thought nothing of it. When the car was just outside the borough line a flame of fire burst up through the floor and her dress was ignited. Mrs. Webb, of Kipp Avenue, was sitting next Miss McCluskey and with great presence of mind and courage seized the burning dress and smothered the flame, burning her hands considerably in the operation. The dress was of light material and was completely ruined. There was great excitement for a few minutes and all in the car were frightened. Fortunately the car had stopped just previous to the accident. Had it been in motion the draught would have fanned the flame, and a dreadful catastrophe would have occurred for there were many women and children in the car and the clothing of all was of light inflammable material which, would instantly have burned. Too much praise cannot be given, Mrs. Webb for her prompt action.

"Miss McCluskey and the two children returned to the Heights in the first car, being too nervous and frightened to continue with the pleasure party. All are congratulating her that she and her charges fortunately escaped injury. The fire was occasioned by an over-heated box; an unavoidable accident which is not of frequent occurrence." — Hasbrouck Heights, N. J. Press.

[The Mrs. Geo. H. Webb, to whom reference is made above, resided for some years in Charlottetown, and is kindly remembered by many citizens.]
