The death occurred on Feb. 20, of Mrs. Elizabeth MacDonald widow of the late Barnaby MacDonald, a highly respected and dearly beloved citizen of Little Harbour at the age of 88. She was formerly Elizabeth Wadman, daughter of the late Michael Wadman, shipbuilder and farmer of Chepstow and Margaret Dean, the last of a large family whose ancestors were among the first pioneers of Chepstow district. She was a woman of kind and quiet disposition, a loving wife and mother and will be greatly missed by her many friends and loved ones. Although not in robust health for some time, she was admired by all for her pleasing personality and the courage with which she bore her sufferings. Despite medical skill and tender nursing by her daughter-in-law, Margaret and son William, with whom she made her home, on the old homestead, she passed peacefully away on the above mentioned date fortified by the rites of Mother Church administered by Msgr. J. A. Murphy and Rev. P. Murnaghan of St. Mary's Souris. She leaves to mourn the following sons and daughters who will ever cherish her memory. William on the homestead, Peter in Souris, Ray of Waterville Maine, Margaret, Mrs. Murphy Worcester Mass, Christina, Mrs. Stephen Gregory, Fairfield Maine, Mary, Mrs. McAskill, Fairfield, Maine.

Once West has added the two jacks, the meld consists of four jacks and a joker. Now East knows that he can afford to take that meld seriously. If East wants to add two wild cards, the meld will become a canasta. That might be the wisest course for East with certain types of hands. If East has a different kind of hand, he is not compelled to complete the canasta. He has been given a choice, and it is up to him. It is sound play to establish a base of four natural cards fairly early in the play of a hand. Sometimes it may even pay to establish two such bases, so as to have a choice. There is no advantage to setting up more than two such bases during the early stages of the play. Distributed by Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate.
