French Leave UN On Algerian Slam

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN.
Canadian Press Staff Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — The French delegation walked out of the United Nations General Assembly Friday when the ambassador from Saudi Arabia declared Moslems face a "blood-thirsty" choice in Algeria.

President Charles de Gaulle's plan for pacification of Algeria received its hardest wallop in the assembly so far as Ahmad Shukairy of Saudi Arabia said it was not really a free choice that the French leader had in mind. He accused the French army of touring Algerians.

The French delegates — led by Ambassador Armand Berard — returned to the assembly hall after Shukairy finished his heated speech, explaining that they refused to listen to insulting language.

Shukairy added: "If you threaten the people of Algeria with all these perils, there is nothing to choose, particularly so when the choice is to be exercised under French administration."

The Algerian people should be given a free choice and a referendum should be taken by the UN, said the Saudi Arabian delegate.

Appeals Swamp Soviet Leader

By HAROLD MORRISON
WASHINGTON (CP) — Premier Khrushchev is being swamped by appeals to have Soviet emigration restrictions lifted on the ground of compassion.

The flood of requests has reached such a height that he has called a halt to further personal interviews on the subject and has ordered all further requests directed to the Soviet Embassy here, Wiley Buchanan, chief U.S. protocol officer, said Friday.

"I informed a Canadian—George Hugh Lapenson of Montreal—that he hasn't a ghost of a chance to see chairman Khrushchev," Buchanan added in an interview.

Lapenson, a concert violinist, is one of many Canadians and Americans with loved ones behind the Iron Curtain who are unable to travel to the West.

At Pittsburgh, Khrushchev told Donna Armenas he would grant permission for her mother and brother to leave Lithuania.

Inquest Set Over To Hear Testimony Of Junk Dealer

The inquest into the deaths of Alphonse MacIsaac and George Francis Murphy, whose bodies were found in Charlottetown Harbour on the 16th and 17th respectively of this month, was adjourned last night to a date to be fixed by Judge Dr. C.A. Coady in the City Hall. G.R. Foster represented the Crown.

Dr. John Craig, provincial pathologist, told the jury that both bodies had been in the water for a number of days and added that in neither case was there any evidence of previous injury or disease. Both men were alive when they went in the water, he said. The amount of alcohol in the bodies he said was above levels compatible with driving and death resulted from drowning.

James H. Morrison, an employee of Prowse and Agnew at the foot of Prince Street stated that young Douglas Murray drew his attention to the first body and that he had notified the police.

GATES DISAPPEARED
Mr. Foster: "There used to be gates there?" (Prince Street wharf).

Witness: Yes, they were on until very recently and then they disappeared. The matter was reported to the city police and they reported it off. Still replying to the Crown prosecutor, the witness said the body was that of Alphonse MacIsaac. He later saw the gate at O'Brien's scrap yard where he was taken to identify them.

The next witness was William Taylor, Guardian-Patriot news photographer, who identified photographs he had taken in connection with the double fatality and explained them to the jury.

A statement made by Frank W. MacKinnon of Charlottetown was read by Chief of Police C.W. MacArthur. Mr. MacKinnon said in part that he had been in his cottage at Rosebank about 1.30 p.m., Sept. 17th when he saw the body of a man lying on the shore about 15 feet from the bank and notified the police.

SKIN DIVER TESTIFIES
Avon Andrews Charlottetown, amateur skin diver, said he was called Thursday morning after the first body had been found and discovered the car upside down facing the pier at the Charlottetown terminal of the old Rocky Point ferry. He did not see any body and the doors of the vehicle were closed and latched. At this point the coroner suggested that the men might have gotten out through the windows.

Malcolm Reeves of the Department of Highways told the jury that the "Fairview" had been sold to Lester O'Brien for junk and that O'Brien had been given the use of the slip until it was dismantled. The gates were closed all the time except when they were loading or unloading. The ramp was to be left intact and he presumed the gates were also. He had inspected the ramps and the gates for safety early in September.

New Work

The minister is reported as receptive.

"At the present time," Mr. Bisson said Friday in an interview, "there are some 270,000 Canadians registered as looking for work with our national employment service."

"But, he added, employment officers are having great difficulty filling jobs that demand some skill, some education, some training.

"Eight, nine or 10 applicants have to be interviewed before a qualified worker is found," he said. "And in all too many cases it turns out to be impossible to find anyone able to do the job."

BIG PROBLEM
"For some time now," Mr. Bisson said, "we have been asking ourselves what this means. Is it a temporary phenomenon? Is it a dislocation caused by the recent recession? Is it the labor market struggling to adjust itself to the demands of an expanding economy?"

"Or," Mr. Bisson asked, "is it something more? Is it the first concrete evidence of what automation is going to do to the labor force?"

"This high, hard core of unemployment," he said, "may be, in fact, the first concrete evidence of what automation is going to do to the labor force."

At the last public report on national employment, he said, "the service is under the commission—there were some 278,000 persons registered for jobs in late August. There were 21,250 unfilled vacancies.

Mr. Bisson's plan is to educate job registrants to make them capable of taking over the available jobs.
