

WEEK AT SDU

Students Move Into Final Two Weeks Year's Studies

By Charles McMillan
 "Two weeks hence and she'll be all over for another year." That's the cry heard around the campus the past week as students buckled down for the final exams which start on Tuesday night. Besides thinking — and worrying — about exams, there is the looking forward to graduation, and what an event that will be. This convocation exercise will have a star-studded platform come May 12. Some 64 students will get degrees, the second largest class in St. Dunstan's history. Then there will be the Doctor of Laws degrees honours causa. Very Rev. G.A. Macdonald, president of SDU, announced recently that Senator Ted Kennedy will get an honorary degree, and will give convocation speeches to the graduates. Also receiving degrees will be His Eminence, James Cardinal McGuigan, who graduated in 1914; and Jean-Louis Levesque, a graduate of 1964. All in all, it shapes up to be quite an affair, a fitting end to quite a year.

AWARDS DINNER
 "Wherever you go and whatever you do, remember your years at St. Dunstan's." The football games, the hockey games, all the little things, these teach you a lesson about growing up. The college athlete of today has changed. No longer is he just a dumb football player, rather he is a man seeking an education. The fact that St. Dunstan's produced a top athlete who won a Rhodes scholarship is evidence of this. These were excerpts from an enlightening talk given by Dr. John Theriault at the SDU awards dinner held at the Rec Centre on Tuesday. Dr. Theriault paid tribute to all the athletes who made the year so successful and reminded of some of the highlights of the past year.

Open House of a week ago-Saturday was a great success, according to organizer, Rev. Doctor Charles Cheverie. There were over 200 high school students attending the affair, as well as a host of parents and teachers. The booths were impressive as were the displays around the campus, but certainly the Science Building was the highlight of the campus tour. The exhibits put out by the science students were simply fascinating. Some of the displays were various animals half dissected, slides under microscopes, and dials given special hormones. It doesn't sound very great — a cat nipped wide open — but it sure attracts the visitors.

Congratulations are in order to John Dunphy, a Senior Arts student, who won a $1,000 scholarship to Dalhousie University. He will go there next year to take up post-graduate studies, majoring in English. John has had an illustrious career at St. Dunstan's. He has worked on the year book, which is called Memorise, since its inception two years ago, he is life president of the Class of '64, and was the first chairman of the Winter Carnival. He has also received a silver 'D' in administration.

BASKETBALL TITLE TO SDU
 The St. Dunstan's Jayvees basketball team has officially won the City Basketball League, according to President Cleaver MacLean. This marks the second year in a row that SDU has copped the coveted trophy. Last year the Jayvees won the title under playing coach L. C. A. Stross; Walter Buzotte coached the team this year to victory. SDU won the championship on the basis of its first place finish. The six team loop started a playoff series, but they didn't even finish the semi-finals. As time was running short, the Executive declared St. Dunstan's the champs.

The Students' Union has finished its business for the year, as the members had the final meeting last Wednesday. Besides the usual amount of tidying up, the Union devoted to construct a Students' Union office in the basement of the gym. It was felt that because there was now no location for one to be built, the office will be made by partitioning a section of the gym basement with the view to the Union. Construction costs will amount to over $1,000, part of which will be borne by the administration. Adding this amount to the cost of the new Coffee Shop indicates a fairly aggressive bunch of business men. Either that or a bankrupt Students' Union!

George Chaisson, president of the SDU Debating Society, announced last week that Colin McMillan will receive a special plaque at the graduation in recognition of his outstanding debating. Colin has won all his Maritime debates — seven in all — and has participated in three Canadian championships.

RED AND WHITE EDITION
 Next edition of RED and WHITE should be out by the first of this week, according to Editor Roger Macdonald. This will be only the sixth issue of the year, rather sad showing for the paper. RED and WHITE reached an all-time low this year since its incorporation as a paper in 1960. At that time it had been put out as a booklet three times a year. Then Dan O'Hare decided that it was high time RED and WHITE be put out as a newspaper, and a undertaking to do just that.

In the years following, the paper came out once a month, or occasionally every three weeks. Around November of this year, it was decided to make the paper a bi-monthly affair, but the quality of the issues were too poor to continue. Paul Foster took over the editorship and improved the paper somewhat. However, there had been such a backlog of old news that the paper couldn't do anything but improve. In his two months in office, Foster put out two issues, but still didn't solve the problem of getting the paper out every two weeks. He did build up a staff, though, and brought about a new air of excellence to the paper.

Roger doesn't have the time to really prove himself this year, but there are eight months next year. He thinks that he can get the paper published bi-monthly in town here, so that will be one stumbling block less to overcome. If confidence and desire can insure success, Red and White will have a good future in the years to come.

Integration Of Pensions Seen Tough

TORONTO (CP)—Integration of the proposed Canadian Pension Plan with existing private pension plans could prove one of the knottiest problems the federal plan faces, the Canadian pension conference has been told.

In a panel discussion, James Gill, pensions secretary for Confederation Life, said that while there are few problems expected in integration with low-return private plans, large-returns plans will have to make considerable adjustments toward integration. J. H. Craig, research director of the Ontario Federation of Labor said he felt the federal government has not gone far enough in converting its principles to reality.

J. G. Connor, Steel Company of Canada's director of employee benefits, said he was aware of a great deal of disquiet in Canada because of the haste in implementation of the plan "at the expense of analysis and research" into its effects. He said he felt a large fund under the plan could upset not only the internal economy of the country but also its balance of trade.

Prof. Robert J. Clark of the University of British Columbia economics department said the pension plan is wrongly inversely related to need with those aged 65 now deriving no benefit from it, while those reaching 65 after 10 years will benefit immensely by comparison.

He said those most in need of benefit under the plan will get the least return, a person earning $2,400 annually at retirement will get back $8,000 while those earning $6,000 will get back $16,000.
