Opening lead—king of clubs.
Strange things sometimes happen in tournaments. For instance, I was playing recently with Norman Kay in the Brooklyn Open Pair championship when this hand came up.

After Kay got doubled at one spade and one notrump, I responded with two clubs. For some unexplained reason South became obsessed with the idea that Kay was fooling around in the bidding, and launched into Blackwood.

North had a mental lapse when he responded five hearts, thus showing two aces. South, convinced now that his diagnosis was correct, bid five notrump, asking for kings.

Conscience-stricken by his previous error, North attempted to recoup by bidding six clubs, thus denying any kings. South might have saved something from the wreck had he bid six diamonds, but momentum carried him to six notrump.

Kay doubled and led the king of clubs. Declarer blanched when he saw dummy, as well he might. He won the ace, cashed the A-K of hearts, and finessed the jack of diamonds. Kay took the king, played the ace of spades, and led back the jack of clubs overtaken with the queen.

With three tricks already in, I could count six more tricks in hearts and clubs, which meant declarer was going down eight. As it wasn't enough, another peculiar thing happened. On the second club lead, declarer, upset, failed to follow suit. The revoke cost him still another trick.

So South went down nine-1,700 points. Fortunately, he was not vulnerable.

Another amazing thing happened in the event. There were 200 pairs originally entered in the contest. When the match first place with 449½ match points each. Mrs. Ida C. Bennett and her son James Bennett, Jr., Eli Jaye and Jay Folgas, and Norman Kay and this writer finished in a dead heat.

It was the first time in the tournament history of the American Contract Bridge League, which has conducted more than 25,000 pair events through the years, that a triple tie for a pair championship occurred.

LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints, each day the code letters are different.
