

iNSiDE

at the end of the world

Departments

Dead Letter Office	page2
Masthead	page3
Cool Love	page3
Editorial 09	page4
News/Op. Ed.
Wrestling with the Student Union	page4
Advisory Committee aims to help Health Centre	page5
Little Kids, Big Needs	page6
The Speech from the Throne	page6
The Montreal Massacre: Ten Years Later	page7
Poverty in Canada	page9
A brush with fear, shame and Jean Chretien	page11
Politics: Paint It Black	page12
Apocalypse, Good	page13
Arts & Entertainment
The Jive Kings	page14
The Cinephile	page14
Reviews, Etc.	page15
Sports
Panther Basketball	page16
Panther Hockey	page16
Scores, Facts & Figures	page17
Parting Shots
Horoscopes	page19
Letter from the President	page19
Fact & Opinion	page20

Dead Letter OfficeDear DLO:

That photograph of the two people in front of the Student Centre picture was frightening! It was like some sort of surreal scene in a David Lynch film or something. For the past three nights I have been having nightmares of that old man with his mouth agape and crouching. You guys should put warnings on the cover! I dare not open the next issue for fear that there will be more photographs of that nature.

- Dale CooperDear Dale:

The point of the cover was not to scare you so I'm sorry. The truly scary thing about the new SUB may well be the end cost of the project.-Ed.

Dear Editor:

Why do people take humour so seriously? It's as if nobody is allowed to make a joke anymore in case someone gets offended. Humour is not a form of hatred, but a form of acceptance. People accept each other's differences by laughing at them. The cartoon in the November 2nd issue of the Cadre may have been disrespectful, but who is to say that Christianity is the be-all and end-all, that it is untouchable. As a practicing Buddhist, I could care less what people say about Buddha. Let our lives on Earth be filled with joy and laughter and let no one take offence. Let us all be friends and not take harmless jokes so seriously. We will all be better for it.

-Roderick JaynesDear Roderick:

I only know one truly non offensive joke. A baby polar bear ask his mother, "am I 100% polar bear?" His mother answers, "Of course dear, my father was a polar bear, my grandfather was a polar bear, ask your father." So the boy asks his father the same question. His father responds, "Of course I come from all polar bears as did my father and his before him, why do you ask son?" The baby polar bear responds, "because Dad, I'm fucking freezing."-Ed.

Dear DLO:

You guys sure messed up this time! You guys put the wrong date on last week's issue! I almost thought I missed a couple deadlines for my papers! Cant you guys do anything right?

AnonymousDear Anonymous:

Sorry about that one, a small communication error between us and the good folks at the Guardian. By the way, you should probably not be setting your watch by the student newspaper.-Ed.

Dear DLO:

I just thought I would comment on the exam schedule. I am a Science student and all my exams are crammed together in the first three days. And I'm not the only one. Most of the Science students I know are in the same boat. Sure I'll have a longer break but that means I will have to go through three days of hell. Its not as if the science professors need a lot of time to correct the exams. They are all multiple choice and calculations that only have one answer! I'm not going to be writing any essays or anything. Someone has to take a serious look at the way the exam schedules are made.

-Isaac ClarkeEND