Successful Illustration Field Day Is Held At Long River

"I always notice that it is the best and most enterprising farmers that come to field days such as this," said Mr. R.C. Parent, superintendent of the Charlottetown Experimental Farm speaking at an illustration field day held yesterday at the farm of Mr. W. E. Johnstone and Sons, Long River.

Mr. Parent said he had been coming to illustration field days for 29 years and each year seemed to be an improvement over the previous one.

About 350 farmers, from the surrounding districts attended the field day which brought to a fitting climax by the serving of a delicious salad supper by the ladies of the community.

Mr. W.N. Black, agronomist, Illustration Stations was in charge of the field day and conducted the visitors on a tour of the Johnstone farm where a number of tests are being conducted.

PASTURE EXPERIMENTS. Of particular interest were the experiments being conducted for fertilizer application on a permanent pasture which has been broken for 25 years. The farmers were able to see first hand the effect of various fertilizer applications and at the same time were given an opportunity to have questions answered to many farm problems.

Another interesting feature was the test being conducted in connection with weed killing. The effect of different chemicals at different strengths was plainly noticeable in the experimental plots.

Mr. Bruce MacLaren, cerealist at the Experimental Farm discussed with the farmers the various varieties of oats being grown on the island and the effect of certain fertilizer combinations on the growth of the crop and on its ability to resist lodging.

Dr. Fisher in pointing out the advantages of the A-1 program said it removed the danger of the herd sire on the farm which ways constituted a threat to the farmer, his children or his friends. It also made room for another cow or two cows in the barn.

But most important it made available to farmers the very best of breeding stock which would eventually improve the life blood of the stock thus increasing production and making the effort of farming more productive.

Referring to the Maritime and other markets near at hand, Dr. Fisher said "We on Prince Edward Island are become the bread basket for these areas but we must take the initiative by objective planning and increased production."

4-H CLUBS. Mr. Keith Clay, Provincial agricultural representative gave a short talk on the work of 4-H Clubs "Not only do boys and girls learn how to care for and feed animals; they learn to speak and express themselves in other words they are being taught to be the citizens of tomorrow."

Mr. Alan Palmer, agricultural representative for Prince County spoke briefly. He invited the farmers to visit the office at Summerside where they might discuss Assassination A "Mistake" NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—The Cypriot underground organization EOKA Tuesday apologized for the assassination by "a tragic mistake" of U.S. vice-consul William Boteler in a bomb attack on a Nicosia restaurant last June 16.

In typewritten leaflets signed "The leader Digenis" and secretly distributed in Nicosia streets Tuesday, EOKA said: "It was a tragic mistake. No Greek has any hatred toward the Americans who, we feel sure, are in a majority with us in our just struggle."

"We deeply regret the death of an American diplomat is a result of a tragic mistake. We recommend to foreigners living in Cyprus that for their own safety they should avoid frequenting English-owned places, because it is not always possible to distinguish them from Britons, who are our enemies."

The leaflets accused Britain of making propaganda capital out of Boteler's death by suggesting that Americans were intended bomb targets. A bomb exploded in a U.S. consular official's empty car following Boteler's death.

Meanwhile, in northwest Cyprus Tuesday, windswept flames raged through an estimated 16-square-mile forest region.

In Nicosia Tuesday, a 23-year-old Cypriot Greek, Jacobus Andreas Patsou, was found guilty of killing Turkish Cypriot policeman in Nicosia on April 23, and sentenced to death.

Holman's Birthday Sale Attracts Record Crowds

Holman's set smashing new sales records in both their Charlottetown and Summerside stores yesterday with a volume of sales that far surpassed anything ever previously achieved during one day of business.

Old sales figures went falling by the boards as customers joined with Holman's in celebrating the well known island firm's 99th Birthday Sale which opened yesterday—and will continue until Friday night.

Mr. Alan Holman, Manager of the Charlottetown Store, stated last night that he had never seen anything like it during his years in business. "The people kept coming in and buying from the time the store opened in the morning until we closed the doors yesterday evening. It was tremendous." There was every indication from the time the stores opened that a sales record for one day would be set. By 9.15 yesterday morning in the Summerside store 1,100 people had forced their way into the store.

And although there were very heavy demands in some store sections the people did not restrict their buying to certain articles. Obviously in the festive spirit of the birthday party they brought with equal enthusiasm in every department.

In addition to the outstanding savings offered to customers, the $2,110.00 in birthday presents certainly acted as an incentive. During the four day sale there will be 50 winners sharing in this money.

Hundreds of Charlottetown children had their first swimming lesson of this season at the Kilmorris Pool yesterday. Five Red Cross Swimming and Water safety instructors were on duty at the Pool throughout the day.

Numbers of youngsters were disappointed because they were not included in the first courses. Red Cross officials were busy explaining to both the young candidates and their parents that three more courses will be conducted throughout the summer.

Each child who was enrolled will receive a card notifying him when his course begins.

Mrs. Marjorie Dover is chief Red Cross supervisor this summer. Those assisting her are: Douglas Cadmore, John Fielding and Carol Peter.

Miss Margaret Jardine is the instructor for the advanced classes, Intermediate Senior and Life Saving, which will be conducted at the waterfront at the end of Brighton Road each day.
