The true Dignity of Labor.

RÉSUMÉ OF SERMON BY REV. E. B. MOORE

The Rev. E. B. Moore, son of the late James Moore, of this city, and now of the Nova Scotia Conference, preached last evening in the Methodist Brick Church. The audience was large, and in addition to the regular worshippers, we noticed several strangers present. The text was taken from the fourth chapter of St. John and the thirty-seventh verse: "One sower and another reapeth." Christ was talking to the woman of Samaria when his disciples returned from the city whence they had gone to procure food, but he had in the meantime forgotten his hunger in his conversation with the woman and said to them: "my meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work. Lift up your eyes and look on the fields for they are white already to harvest. And he that reapeth receiveth wages and gathereth fruit unto life eternal, that both he that sower and he that reapeth may rejoice together. And herein is that saying true, 'One sower and another reapeth.'" The idea that these words convey, refers to the spiritual culture of mankind. This agricultural principle of sowing and reaping was well understood by the disciples and the Great Teacher, and it is an illustration of the spiritual kingdom. Sowing and reaping are different things, and require different skill. The sower has to prepare the ground and put in the seed, often under very difficult circumstances, when the reaping is comparatively easy work, but without the former there cannot be the latter.

While the earth lasts we have the promise of seed time and harvest and the covenant of grace is the same as the covenant of nature. "For as the rain cometh down and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither again, but watereth the earth and maketh it to bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater; so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and prosper in the thing whereto I send it." In the kingdom of grace, as in nature, labourers are required, and while the harvest is great, they are often very few. Perhaps all would rather be reapers than sowers, but each one must act his part in whatever sphere he may be placed. The division of labor brings out the different faculties of man and each should use his skill in the direction of his gifts. But all are required to work. While there is so much sin and misery and degradation in the world, none need stand idly by and ask what have I to do? Christ says, my Father worketh and I work; and if men will follow Christ they must do his will, and work his reward.

The true dignity of labor lies not in the amount of work performed, but in the way it is done. He that is faithful in a few things shall be made ruler over many things. If the soldiers of the cross were as faithful to the cause of their master as the soldiers of the Queen are to her, the world would soon be converted to Christ.

The Franciais has been giving some advice to the French people which is greatly reminiscent of what "G." in his article in Fortnightly says of Prince Bismarck. If Fortnightly said the writer, "has been the recipient of his ceremonious attentions, Germany is the object of his first and paramount regard. When he has urbanely permitted us to take the initiative in a settlement of the affairs of Greece and Montenegro, and to follow our own course in Egypt, he has done so, we may be sure, from other motives than those of mere civility," and so on. The Franciais, in like manner, commenting on the friendliness of the chancellor towards France, says that the French official journals, instead of being so jubilant, would do well to reflect what are the motives by which his policy is inspired. It then points out that France is already weakened by the dispersion of her forces, and that Bismarck is desirous of setting France and England at loggerheads to the further his own plans. This is especially the case since he has taken up his colonizing schemes. Germany has been noted for its large emigration, and the chancellor naturally wants to make that emigration a gain, instead of a loss, to Germany. But the chief obstacle to his projects is the rivalry of England, and by stirring up dissension between that country and France he hopes to increase his freedom of action.

UNCLE CUTHBERT.

[CONCLUDED.]

Clarence Hyde took his leave, dejected enough. It is not pleasant to set up a fair idol and worship it with all the strength and tenderness of your nature, only to find, after all that it is dust and ashes—hollow-hearted and false!

Cuthbert Hyde sat opening his briefwood meerschaum by the open window as Clarence entered—a square, shrewd-looking old man, with deeply-seamed wrinkles on his brow, and restless, sparkling eyes, gleaming like live coals beneath his shaggy brows.

"Clarence my boy, something has gone wrong," he said, brusquely, after he had regarded his nephew in silence for awhile, "Tell the old uncle what it is."

"I have told you about Rosa Eldon, sir, well, she and I are—in fact, it is all over between us."

"Engagement broken, eh? Past the power of patching up!"

"Yes, uncle."

"And it was on my account? Nay; boy, don't turn away—I can read the truth in your eyes. So she played you false?"

"We are parted, uncle—is not that enough?"

"Well, perhaps so—perhaps so. It was well you found her out in time, Clarence. It's for the best my boy."

rusty. Appearances aren't anything in this world!

And so Clarence and Lizzie began the world with the fairest of prospects, and true love enough to float the barque of life into the sweetest haven.

Rosa Eldon was somewhat chagrined in her secret soul, but she wisely kept her feelings to herself, and Old Uncle Cuthbert was quite satisfied with the choice his nephew had made.

"She's worth twice a hundred thousand dollars in her own sweet self, Clarence," he said confidentially to Mr. Hyde, junior.

The Duke of Argyll says the world is ten million years old.
DeLesseps proposes to visit Panama early in 1885 to inaugurate a section of the canal.
Dom Pedro, Emperor of Brazil, while returning from naval review, narrowly escaped drowning. His boat capsized.
The gold reserve at Washington on Wednesday amounted to 129 millions. It has increased about fifteen millions during the past few weeks.
The Indian farmers on Pyramid Lake, Nevada, thresh their wheat by hand and winnow it in baskets, just as the Egyptians did 3,000 years ago.

Journalistic amenities in Nevada are spiced with originality. One editor says that his esteemed contemporary has been known to kiss a child and inoculate it with delirium tremens.

A German newspaper contains the following advertisement:—"If Charles Frankenberg will either call or write to Karl Schmitz, on the Kaiserstrasse, No. 26, he will hear something to his advantage. His wife is dead."

All the railroads in Great Britain stand to-day at an average cost of $240,000 per mile, and pay 5 per cent. on the investment. The average cost of all the railroads in existence in the United States to-day is $59,400 per mile.

The London Standard, speaking of Dufferin's qualifications for the post of Viceroy of India, counts as the most valuable of any "the splendid faculty of incredulity" with which his negotiations with the Czar have endowed the Viceroy.

Russia, Austria and Germany show a disposition to interfere unpleasantly with England's action in Egypt. Their protest, following so closely upon the meeting of the emperors, may be significant of breezy times in the near future.

Ulm cathedral, one of the largest in Germany, will soon be completed, after having remained unfinished for nearly 400 years. It was begun in 1377 and finished in 1494, except the towers, which are now being erected according to the ancient design.

This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send self-addressed envelope to Rev. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York.

Lord Salisbury has written an exhaustive article in the National Review, in which he undertakes to prove that the Conservatives in reality desire the franchise to be coupled with redistribution. This, he says, will give the Conservatives more seats than they now hold. The article is exciting much attention.

The London Times special from Shanghai says the German Government has instructed its consuls and naval commanders to maintain an independent attitude during the continuance of the Franco-Chinese difficulties. It is feared, however, that complications may arise which may prevent German neutrality.

At an intended wedding, just as the ceremonies were to begin, the bride suddenly called upon the bridegroom (a sea-faring man) to abdicate tobacco, on pain of forfeiting her wedded bliss, etc., which he refused to do—then and there taking a fresh quid from the tobacco-box to show his independence. Where upon the young woman took out a box, "took a chew, amid the applause of the spectators, and requested the clergyman to go on with the service. This was too much for the bridegroom, who fled the scene, leaving the girl triumphant with a piece of liquorice in her mouth.

While the French Ministerial newspapers are crying "down with England," the French finances appear to be in a bad way. It is estimated that the deficit at the end of the present year will reach the tolerably large sum of $
