

keeping pace
with a nation's growing needs

The Charlottetown Hotel

During the past century, Canada and her railways have experienced a tremendous growth which promises even greater progress in the future. In Charlottetown, as in towns and cities throughout the nation, Canadian National has been proud to play a part in the development of commerce, industry and the daily life of the community.

The Canadian National has grown into a vast system of 24,000 miles of line serving all ten provinces of Canada and twelve states of the U. S. A., and is North America's largest railway. Many of Canadian National's famous name trains, including the modern "Ocean Limited", are now powered by diesel locomotives, and more new units will soon be ready for passenger service.

The gracious Charlottetown, one of Canadian National's chain of year-round and resort hotels from coast to coast, is a favorite stopping place for visitors to Canada's "Garden Province." Its fine food and traditional hospitality have also made it a centre for business and social activities of the province.

Linking Canada's people, businesses and industries to the world, Canadian National offers the services of its passenger and cargo vessels plying the waters of both coasts and the Caribbean routes . . . as well as its world-wide telegraph, express and money order services.

In Charlottetown's next century, as in Canada's, Canadian National will continue to help write a story of vigorous growth.
