Ambassador Tells Rotary Of Austria's Successes

When foreigners hear the name of Austria, they primarily think of music and culture, good food and generally kind and easy-going people," according to the Austrian Ambassador to Canada, Dr. Franz Leitner, who was guest speaker at yesterday's meeting of Charlottetown Rotary Club.

Dr. Leitner went on to say "while it is true and we are proud to confirm that Austria really is one of the leading cultural countries in this world and Austrian people like to make life as nice and agreeable as possible, we have learned and hard years of war, political disunity, destruction and occupations have taught us to become also a diligent and industrious people who reconstructed their country and gave it a political and economic stability better than ever before."

After a brief outline of the history of Austria of the past 1,900 years, Dr. Leitner brought his listeners up to March 1945, when World War Two was drawing to a close.

LIBERATION TROUBLES

He said "by the last days of March 1945, the liberation of Austria was becoming a reality—Russian troops from the east, American from the west and British from the south, all crossing the Austrian frontiers."

"My country, however, had to start her liberated state with almost unbearable burdens. In the last weeks of the war, $500,000,000 worth of dismantled machinery and other goods had been taken away by the Soviet Army as war booty. And every year since 1946 for almost 10 years, $20,000,000 worth of industrial output, $50,000,000 worth of oil were taken out of the country by the Soviet Union from the industrial and oil enterprises which this occupying force had seized and run as so-called German assets under the Potsdam agreement. Furthermore, occupation costs had to be paid to all armies which amounted to $300,000,000 until the liberation in 1955."

Dr. Leitner said "under these circumstances it seemed almost impossible that the country could be reconstructed but it was and Austria is better off today than ever."

THE "MIRACLE"

According to Dr. Leitner, foreign financial aid was a basis for the "miracle" of recovery that occurred. He said "the first financial support was given under the United Nations—under this plan some support also came from Canada—and although between 1945 and 1948 Austria was presented with $380,000,000 worth of goods, mainly from the United States and Great Britain. A further $110,000,000 was placed at the disposal of the Austrian people by institutions abroad."

"All this generous aid, however, could only meet Austria's most immediate needs and it was not until Austria qualified for aid under the Marshall Plan was it possible to work out and put into practice a long-term policy of reconstruction designed to secure Austrian independence."

In the political respect, according to Dr. Leitner, the Austrian people have shown great firmness and maturity. He said "since 1945, we have had a coalition government composed of the slightly conservative People's Party and the Socialist Party. The communist party has never obtained more than five per cent of the votes and in 1949 the communist party was eliminated from Parliament as they were not able to get enough votes in any single riding for a seat."

FULL INDEPENDENCE

Dr. Leitner said it was in 1955 that a treaty was signed giving Austria full independence. "The treaty which gave Austria liberty," he said, "meant the end of occupation and restored to Austria all the industries which in accordance with the Potsdam agreement on former German property, had been under Russian administration."

Stating that Austria's economy was in a "most deplorable situation" at the end of World War Two, Dr. Leitner said "with foreign financial assistance and the indefatigable efforts of the Austrian population her economy recovered and the 1964 gross national product reached $9,160,000. I am happy to state that the standard of living has reached a level higher than ever before and unemployment practically does not exist."

"Austria is rich in mineral resources, is third among oil producing nations of Europe and has become one of the foremost producers of hydro-electric power in Europe."

Dr. Leitner said relations between Canada and Austria have developed in a most satisfactory way and are based on the common outlook of our two governments—based on the same political principles and moral standards of our peoples."

Dr. Leitner was introduced by Walter Hyndman and thanked by Frank Curtis.

ROTARY GUESTS

Guests of Rotary at yesterday's meeting were Fred Halliday, Toronto; Newman MacLellan, Charlottetown; H. J. Kennedy, Charlottetown; Dr. Paul Cudmore, Halifax; Reid MacVicar, Halifax; David Rogers, Canadian ambassador to Spain; Paul Crandall, South Edmondston, N.Y.; Harry Scates, Kentucky; and J. H. ## Problems At Dump Occupy Town Council

MONTAGUE — Circulars announcing open hours of the town dump will be available in the near future, it was reported yesterday at the regular monthly meeting of Montague Town Council.

Mayor Bruce Yeo was in the chair, and present were Councillors Reid, MacLure, Robertson and Greene.

The council, after reviewing and discussing the town bill resulting from general upkeep, voted that the bills presented before them be paid as submitted.

The council's attention was then drawn to a letter from the department of highways, regarding regulations affecting trailers and trailer courts. It was suggested that these regulations be adopted into the town by laws but the matter was dropped and the general feeling was that no need for immediate action on this matter.

FURTHER INVESTIGATION

Three tenders were submitted to the town clerk, G. Arnold Wightman, for the supplying of radio equipment to the town for the police and fire fighting vehicles. The council agreed that the tenders lacked information concerning servicing, and a three-man committee of councillors Robertson, Reid, and MacLure was empowered to investigate and accept whatever tender they found most feasible.

The motion committee then presented their reports:

Constable Ed Downe reported that during the month of July seven cases were before the court and a total of 20.25 in fines was collected.

The finance committee submitted its report stating some work still was unfinished but would be completed shortly.

The street committee reported the streets in the town were being kept clean and properly maintained.

The finance committee reported that minor loans were paid off and between $60 and $70 was collected from the sale of dump tickets, which the town clerk stated were available for sale to those who used the dump.

The council discussed problems of minor nature concerning the incinerator. It was noted that some of the regulations, regulating the use of the dump and incinerator were not being carried out and that sometimes there was more garbage at the dump than could be disposed of by the caretaker. A motion was passed that a letter be written to Louis McErierson advising him not to dump any truckloads of garbage after 4 p.m., on certain afternoons during the week.

Town clerk G. Arnold Wightman, after being questioned, reported that tax notices would not be sent out for two weeks, but that he had several people processing these notices.

The council also discussed past due taxes, but reached no decision on what to do with them.

PHOTOGRAPH PRESENTED

In other council business, Stan McInnis presented an aerial color photograph of Charlottetown to the city. The large photograph is one of two copies in existence; the other is located in the national archives.

The photograph, to be hung in City Hall, was presented "in honor of the Charlottetown Police Force for dedicated service, and in part, in memory of Sgt. Larry McInnis."

Finance chairman W.R. MacNeill announced $1,030,437, or 48.9 per cent of civic taxes had been collected so far this year. This compares with last year's figure at the same period of $844,877, or 40 per cent of taxes.

PARKING SUGGESTION

Coun. John P. Nicholson, police committee chairman, said the city engineer's department had studied the Queen Street parking situation and recommended a h a r p angle parking where parallel parking had previously been enforced.

A change from parallel to 30-degree angle parking would provide more parking spaces, but would still allow four-lane traffic, unlike the usual 45-degree angle method.

It was noted that regulations banning parking around city squares would be strictly enforced.

Town planning chairman Elmer MacRae said the new city map would be on public display at City Hall until the end of August. Following this, he said, there should be a joint meeting of the town planning board and council to discuss city by-laws in relation to the map.

Mayor Cox reported that representatives of Canadian Mortgage and Housing Corporation were visiting civic and provincial officials this week.

Contrary to what council had previously been told by the provincial government, he said, CHMHS was not unable to proceed with its low income housing survey, but needed an order-in-council from the government on its stand on participation in the project.

CONSTABLE APPOINTED

Council passed a resolution appointing Robert Crockett probationary constable on the city police force for a six-month duty to pay for the education of children in our schools, they should come across with the money."

SUGGESTS BRIEF

Coun. MacDonald suggested council should present the government with a brief asking for equalization of education costs in every Island district.

Coun. Frank Zakem expressed doubts the city would ever obtain the needed financial aid.

"The thing that worries me is when other schools were built here, the provincial government said it would look into it. The schools have been built, and they're looking into it!"

"I'm firmly convinced that if we start building this new high school, that would be the end of it."

Coun. Zakem said he thought few people realized Charlottetown and Summerside had to "pay the full shot" for their schools. Citizens should also realize, he said, that the school board has authority to tell council the quality and quantity of schools it wants.

Coun. Wright questioned whether the provincial government would be approached "before there is a sod turned."

Mayor Cox said pressures will be brought to bear on the government but there were "no assurances of anything definite before we begin."

OCTOBER START

A start on construction of the building, slated as soon as possible to take advantage of the federal-municipal loan fund, is due in October, with September, 1966 as the target completion date.

Mayor Cox said the PWC board of governors has definitely stated the college will not take grade 11 students after the spring of 1966, and will eliminate grade 12 classes the following year.

St. Dunstan's wants to get rid of its high school as soon as the city school is built, he said, and it has been rumored Notre Dame Academy will also close in a few years.

The mayor said he had talked yesterday with PWC principal Dr. Frank MacKinnon, who assured him the college would continue to use its present buildings.
