

High-Rail Rates Declared Letting Down Coal Industry

By VERN LACEY
 TORONTO (CP)—The parliamentary secretary of the federal labor minister says high rail rates are letting down the coal industry.

James Byrne, who is also member of Parliament for Kootenay East, told the Dominion-Provincial conference of coal here that lower transportation costs are vital to development of coal markets.

"They (railroads) have approached the problem with a lethargy characteristic of the stories of Huckleberry Finn."

Traditionally, coal from Eastern and Western mining fields has been unable to compete for the Ontario industrial market with American coal in the Great Lakes region, mainly because of differences in transportation costs. Mr. Byrne said Canadian railroads, unlike the numerous and more competitive American railroads, have a captive market for coal movement.

Mr. Byrne shared general optimism of the conference that coal is making a comeback from its disastrous market drop of the early 1950s.

Production for the first seven months of 1965 was 7,750,000 tons compared with 6,300,000 tons in the corresponding period last year.

He praised mining companies which "in the face of heavy odds forged relentlessly onward in their determination to cut costs," and miners for their cooperation in cutbacks.

He said miners have "accepted the inevitable—automation versus joblessness in the coal fields."

"The same high praise, however, need hardly be directed to the Canadian railways," he said.

About 160 coal experts from Canada and the U.S. attended the first day of the two-day conference.

Stephen F. Dunn, president of the U.S. National Association of coal producers, said a threat to the coal industry.

He said the U.S. has a guaranteed 500-year supply of low-cost coal, while cheap uranium reserves will run short by the end of this century, barring new discoveries.

At present, atomic power is breathing down the coal industry's neck he said.

But atomic power plants "have not yet proved to be reliable sources of energy when needed, despite publicity to the contrary."

Opening lead—three of hearts. A play may be wrong in principle and yet be right in practice. Here is a striking example of a departure from normal defensive play which resulted in South's defeat.

West led a heart against four spades and East won it with the king. If East had played another heart at this point, which is what most players would do, South would have made the contract. After drawing two rounds of trumps, he would have forced out the A-K of clubs and then discarded three diamonds on the established clubs.

But East was a very careful defender and avoided this trap.

Ceremonial Dances Fade With Indians

ST. PAUL, Alta. (CP)—The sights and sounds of ceremonial dances are fast becoming an oddity even to Alberta's 23,000 treaty Indians.

The meaning of the traditional dances is being lost as young people turn to the Frug, Swim and Watusi, say old Indians on the Saddle Lake Reserve near this community 100 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Even the tape recorder, which can preserve the shrill guttural sounds of Indian singers for ceremonial dancing, is only a stopgap in what elders of the tribe see as a dying art.

"Very few Indians now know the real meaning of the ceremonial dances," Louis McGillivray, a Cree Indian from Saddle Lake, said in an interview.

"Not everyone can be a singer. You must have the ability. The art is passed on from old to young. The meaning is

Lord Snowdon Wins Title From Press

LONDON (Reuters)—Lord Snowdon, who was made an earl after he married Princess Margaret, won a new title last week from the British press.

Fashion editors here elevated the photographer, formerly Antony Armstrong-Jones, to Royal Mod in publishing pictures of him shopping with Margaret in Scotland.

Mod, from modern, is teenage slang here for someone who wears the latest, or even later-than-latest fashion.

Snowdon was shown in the main street of Ballater, near the Queen's Scottish residence at Balmoral, in corduroy shock-top, large-check shirt, knee breeches and high leather boots.

His wife for once was almost overlooked. She was wearing her traditional country garb: Tartan kiln, long thick-knit sweater, headscarf and low-heeled walking shoes.

Snowdon, 35, designed a range of women's ski clothes before his marriage and still causes regular fashion controversy with his own off-duty outfits.

On vacation with Princess Margaret in Rome last month, he outdressed the Italians in a light summer suit of Norfolk jacket and slim pants, worn with a dark shirt and tie.

In May Tony—as the London headline writers still call him—had already put himself a long jump ahead of male fashion here. He went off to a Scottish skiing vacation dressed in thigh-length furry coat, slender corduroy trousers and Scandinavian peaked cap.

It wasn't until this week that similar coats, in simulated fur, were presented by Royal couturier Hardy Amies in his 1966 collection.

Snowdon may have aroused disapproval from London's traditional corps of bowler-hatted, umbrella-carrying businessmen. But British teen-agers have decided he's the most "with-it" member of the Royal Family.
