

An Ode to Dancing.

The following poem originally appeared in The Jewish Messenger:

Not dance! Just take her hand in yours In an easy, friendly way, And glide along with noiseless feet At the closing hours of day.

Just let a soft tress of her hair Blow lightly o'er your cheek, Your heart will beat and pulses thrill With the words you cannot speak.

Not dance! Why every hour is worth Its weight in solid gold, Each step is regaled with the joy Of a happiness untold.

Why speak of dancing as a sin Because of Herod's daughter? In fabled days the sirens sang Deep down below the water.

And drew men to an ocean grave By the beauty of their lays; Yet no one tells us not to sing Some Heavenly hymns of praise.

For God above has made us all To share all pleasures sweet, Whether it be by tuneful words Or the movements of the feet.

Hints for Young Horsemen.

Never pass behind a horse in the stable nor place your hand behind him in the stall without first speaking to him. You may save life or limb by bearing this in mind. Be kind in word and manner to all horses. Do not whip even a "contrary" or balky horse; make him forget his ill or stubborn intent in some way, such as putting a little dry dirt in his mouth, or wrapping a mitten of newspaper about one or both ears; in studying to know what it means he soon forgets his notion of stopping, and at the prompt, decided, but not angry voice of his master, he moves along. In case of any accident, do not shout or appear frightened; your excitement will at once be communicated to the horse. Instead, you should pacify and reassure him with firm, kind tones.

Form a habit of glancing all over your horse and harness before starting from the door. It may save life. In the winter be sure and have the bits covered with cloth or leather. On the road you may go pretty fast down hill and on the level ground, if you are a good driver, but don't hurry up hill; never do so with a load; short pulls and rests by "trigging the wheels" will prolong the service of your horse. Never feed a horse on musty hay; it may do for cows or oxen, but often brings fatal lung diseases upon horses. Hay that is dusty from ordinary road dust blown over it in a dry time, should be well shaken and sprinkled before being fed to horses.

Do not feed a horse when his blood is heated; give him a moderate drink of water and let him cool off gradually and then do not overfeed. Many a horse has been killed by not observing this injunction. Feed well when your horse is working hard, but give more grain than hay. If he is having a vacation of several days or weeks, cut his feed down from a quarter to one-half. Rake up plenty of oak leaves for bedding, if you have not straw; give your horse a good bed, but do not have sticks, pebbles, or frozen manure among it; lying down on such, the horse rises and "paws" away his bedding and thus learns a bad trick.

Never run after a horse in the pasture. If he does not like to be caught, feed him a little grain in a pail, but never deceive him with an empty dish. You can soon teach the wildest horse to come to you when he does come, let him eat a little while before you lead him off. When you "turn the horse out to pasture," do not give him a slap with the bridle; he will remember it to your regret if you do. Make a pet and a friend of your horse, it will improve him and make a better person of you. If you can't afford to feed high; give good air to your horse. Nature has provided enough of this for both of you, and transports it free; do not rob him of his share, for it "will not enrich you, but make him poor indeed." Therefore keep open a window where heaven may send a fresh supply to him.—H. W. AL., Newburyport, Mass., in American Cultivator.

BURNS, Scalds, Chapped Hands, Cuts, Boils, Frost Bites, and Skin Sores of every description. It is said by those who have tested the "Magic Healer" for Burns, that it is the best and quickest remedy for extracting heat they have ever used. For Chapped Hands or Cold Sores, it is unparalleled for its speedy and effective results, making the skin soft and pliable. For Fishermen and persons employed in handling wet or rough articles, it is invaluable for giving the hands a smooth texture and healthy tone. Its cleansing and healing properties are remarkable where the skin is broken by external means, while its rapid action in removing all offensive matter from Boils or Old Wounds, and forming a new skin is truly wonderful. Price, 25 cents per box. Sold at the Drug Stores of W. R. Watson, Apothecaries' Hall and Fraser & Beddin, and by the manufacturer. Address, P. O. Box 179. MRS. JEAN A.
