Queen Orders Pre-War Glamor For Palace Staff

The pre-war glamor of servants in dazzling uniforms has returned to Buckingham Palace by order of Queen Elizabeth. She had decided that the palace footmen and pages look too austere in their navy blue battle-dress which replaced their impressive tunics when World War II began. So she has ordered the uniforms of pre-war days to be taken out of storage.

Make Table Attractive For Family Brunch Meal

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN
Whether brunch means a late breakfast or a combination breakfast and lunch, it is often one of the few meals during the week that the family can enjoy together. Make the table attractive and make an important hot bread or pancake the climax of a substantial menu.

While in Rochester as a guest at the Treadway Inn, I discovered wild rice pancakes at Sunday morning brunch. They were made from a new pancake mix and were spectacular! People drive from miles around to enjoy them. I understand the mix is now on sale practically throughout the country.

But if you prefer a brunch bread that can be cooked a day in advance, here's a new loaf from the test kitchen.

All measurements are level; recipes proportioned to serve 4 to 6.
Spiced Butterscotch Bread: Sift together 3 c. already-sifted enriched flour, 1 1/4 tsp. double acting baking powder, 1/4 tsp. salt and 3/4 tsp. each ground mace, ground ginger and baking soda. Beat 2 eggs in a mixing bowl. Gradually blend in 1 1/2 c. light brown sugar. Add 1 1/2 c. melted butter or margarine and 3/4 c. chopped nuts. Stir in the flour mixture alternately with 1 1/2 c. buttermilk. Mix only enough to blend the ingredients.

Turn into a well-oiled, lightly floured 9 by 5 by 3-in. loaf pan. Bake 1 hr. in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F. or until a wooden pick, when inserted in the centre, comes out clean. Cool 10 min. in the pan. Turn onto a wire rack to finish cooling. Let stand at least 8 hrs. before slicing. Serve with butter, marmalade, cream cheese or peanut butter.

MONDAY DINNER
Tomato bouillon, fricandelles, brown sauce, french fries, buttered onions, celery salad, spiced butterscotch bread, coffee, tea, milk.

All measurements are level; recipes proportioned to serve 4 to 6.
Fricandelles: Combine and put through the grinder 3 times, 1/2 lb. each raw veal, chuck of beef and lean fresh pork.
Add 1/2 c. fine white bread crumbs, 1/4 c. warm milk, 1 beaten egg, 1 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/4 tsp.

MARY HAWORTH

Husband Is Being Unfair

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Every day I watch with interest for your column in our newspaper. I am impressed with your answers, as I feel there are times in life when one desperately needs help in the form of advice, sympathy and understanding of one's situation. The right word in such a crisis can keep a marriage or a life from becoming a lost cause.

This is leading to your article, some time back, about the young matron baffled by her loss of interest in her marriage. You explain that her husband seems at fault, in denying her co-operative companionship; and that she unconsciously resents the unfair deal. You say that a mature view of marriage, with a clear understanding of a wife's rights and duties, is the long term remedy in her case. You prescribe certain reading, to help her attain this growth.

Your answer is good. But is it good enough to save her character and her marriage? If her husband considers housework a woman's work, then why shouldn't she consider wage earning a man's work, and give up her factory job whereby she helps support the household? And thus place upon him the responsibility and duty, as head of the family, to provide for his wife and children?

I am an old-fashioned homemaker and believe the place of the wife and mother is in the home. Sincerely yours,
M.H.

DEAR C.C.: I feel that every married woman who actually prefers to stay home, and be a full-time wife and mother, ought to be granted that choice, if humanly possible.

However, it takes all kinds to make a world. And not all wives want to give full time to homemaking and related projects, in the so-called "woman's world," although I think the majority do.

There are some matrons, as we know, who honestly feel that they can't abide what seems to them the monotony and treadmill grind of round-the-clock housekeeping. They regard it as a form of captivity.

Perhaps they lack the emotional quietude and deep acceptance of femininity as the stabilizing principle in life, that help womankind (in the main) to thrive on the background role of domestic service.

HAPPY HOUSEWIFE
Perhaps they also lack the vital stamina, and the experimental approach to craftsmanship, and the natural industry, that carry the born homemaker through her complex assignment, with a triumphant sense of accomplishment. We find her painting, gardening, dressmaking, refinishing furniture, helping the neighbors, entertaining hospitably — the list of her extra efforts are endless — in addition to coping competently with the daily cooking, cleaning, counseling, mending, etc.

The reluctant housewife is geared to a different pace. Rightly or wrongly, she urgently feels that getting away from the house, as part of the daily pattern, is an absolute must to keep her sane.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Stewart Parkman.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem and lunch was served by the committee in charge, assisted by the hostess.

Minutes were read and approved. Roll call by 15 members. The members were pleased to have Mrs. Rev. R.A. Patterson with them for their meeting. Letters were read from Mrs. J.S. McLeod, Mrs. T.W. Cutcliffe, Mary E. Carions. Committees for next month: Worship, Mrs. Earl Willis; prayer, Mrs. Owen Younker; Lunch, Mrs. Ralph Younker, Mrs. Owen Younker, Mrs. Lorne Smith. herself from going to pieces—or to seed. Thus she may elect a casual job in the business world, that pays enough to cover the costs of hired household help, and a little over—to justify her wage-earning respite from domestic harness.

Such may be the case with the discouraged young matron to whom you offer a word of advice. She admits to doing factory work and helping financially at home. But she doesn't say that her husband expects such help or approves of it. So maybe it is her own idea, and an escapist device; and thus perhaps she needs to be educated out of the mistake.

GET PERSPECTIVE
If so, my suggestion earlier given, should be sufficient to save her character and her marriage, if she acts on the prescription. Namely, to study Wingfield Hope's book Life Together (Sheed and Ward) to get a clear understanding of her rights and duties as wife and mother—so that her own behavior in the marriage will produce a chain reaction for the better.

Dr. John Schindler's book Woman's Guide to Better Living (Prentice-Hall) was also mentioned as a possible lead in the same direction.

ONLY 280 DAYS 'TIL CHRISTMAS . . . Yet now's the time to take out insurance against those after-Christmas bills. The best way I've found to do this is to figure out my Yuletide expenses now. Divide the answer by the number of pay-days between now and December, and that's the amount I deposit from my allowance each pay-day in my Special Christmas Account at the BANK OF MONTREAL. A B of M Gift Fund is the best way I know of putting "merry" into Christmas. Why not open yours today at your nearest B of M branch?

SHE KNOWS THE ANSWER TO, "What's the best type of flour for all cakes, pastries, cookies, muffins?" Right! A cake and pastry flour that's milled from soft winter wheat. Not an all-purpose flour milled from hard spring wheat—which is fine for yeast-raising doughs. I like MONARCH CAKE & PASTRY FLOUR . . . and am thrilled with the lighter, higher cakes it makes. All recipes are based on weight of flour—so add two tablespoons extra, per cup, when you use Monarch Cake & Pastry Flour if your recipe calls for all-purpose flour. This flour, although it's lighter, finer, softer, is sold by weight—so the bag's a little larger than all-purpose flour.

ALL OF MY FRIENDS WHO ARE GOOD COOKS know that Baker's Chocolate gives the best results. When it comes to Chocolate Chips, Baker's is again the brand that gives you greatest satisfaction. There are so many wonderful ways to use BAKER'S CHOCOLATE CHIPS—to decorate cakes . . . in cookies . . . quick frostings . . . creamy puddings . . . candies . . . And Baker's Chocolate Chips always come to you completely fresh. The exclusive new foil package keeps Baker's Chocolate Chips in perfect condition until the last chip is used. I know you'll like Baker's Chocolate Chips! Do try the One-Bowl Cookie recipe on the package.
