Principal Explains Non-Graded System

An explanation of the operation of the non-graded system, which will go into effect at St. Jean's Elementary School at the grade one level, in September, was given at Wednesday night's meeting of St. Jean's Home and School Association.

The non-graded system eliminates the formality of the child's moving from one grade to another at the end of the school term, and permits the child to progress at his own rate in each of the three basic, elementary skills — reading, arithmetic, and language.

In outlining the implementation of the new system at St. Jean's next fall, the principal, John MacDonald, stressed that it is not something new in that it has been tried and tested in Saskatchewan and several Canadian cities, including Toronto and Hamilton, as well as in many parts of the U.S. "It is not a new method of teaching, but more a change in classroom administration," Mr. MacDonald said.

The non-graded system will be making its first start in this province at St. Jean's, and Mr. MacDonald said it is planned to expand it in subsequent years to cover all the elementary grades.

The principal said a workshop will be held in September to lay out the whole program for the non-graded system. This workshop will involve teachers and parents and will give parents of children involved in the system a full insight into how it operates.

NEW PROGRAMS
In his report on the year's work, Mr. MacDonald discussed new programs for math and reading in the elementary grades next year, he noted that Mary Duffy has been appointed librarian at St. Jean's on a full-time basis; a reading consultant for city schools will have headquarters at St. Jean's next fall; two classes of retarded children, at the educable level, will be moved to St. Jean's from Prince Street, and a workshop classroom will be provided for these classes and for auxiliary classes at St. Jean's; and the district will be zoned for grade one pupils starting school next September, with those east of Elm Avenue, and south of Chestnut Street and Churchill Avenue going to Rochford Square.

The school's participation in the Red Cross Water Safety program was discussed at length, and a number of members volunteered their services to assist in the carrying out of the program. These were: Mrs. D.J. McCormack, Mrs. Art Gallant, Mrs. Ed Chinery, Mrs. Lorne Hennessey, Mrs. Anthony Doiron, Mrs. Mary McQuaid, Mrs. W. Ledwell, and Mrs. Raymond McCloskey.

The meeting was conducted by Bill Ledwell, president of St. Jean's Home and School.

HALIFAX (CP) — The weather office says skies were cloudy in most Maritime regions late Thursday and scattered showers were reported.

A weak weather system crossing Maine will reach Cape Breton this morning and Newfoundland in the evening. Slightly drier air following this system will move into northern New Brunswick before dawn and into most other regions in the morning.

Sunny skies were forecast today for most regions, but afternoon cloudy periods and a few showers were expected to develop.

In Cape Breton, cloudy skies and scattered showers were forecast for most of the day. Temperatures there will be 'much cooler than the 80-degree temperature reading reported at Sydney Thursday.

Regional forecasts:
Mainland Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Eastern New Brunswick Counties, Lower St. John River Valley: Cloudy with showers overnight. Sunny today with a few showers; not much change in temperature; winds light; low-high at Halifax 52 and 70, Yarmouth 51-65, Kentville 55-75, New Glasgow and Gospen 55-70, Charlottetown 55-68, Moncton 53-70, Fredericton 55 and 70, Saint John 51 and 70. Outlook for Saturday, cloudy with scattered showers and little temperature change.

ALL CANADIAN
This year's festival, Mr. Moore said, "looks like great fun. It is all-Canadian and based on previous successes, so we have some assurance that it will work."

"With the publicity the festival has gained in the past two seasons, he added, "many more actors, actresses, directors and so on are interested and would like to be part of the festival; but he added the competition is getting stiffer and since in terms of money we can't compete we are still relying on patriotism and the desire to try something new."

On his own future Mr. Moore, who has been associated with the Charlottetown Festival since its inauguration in 1964, said that he hopes to be able to make some arrangements this summer whereby he can continue to work with the festival in some respect. He will be going next summer to the St. Lawrence Center for the Arts, but he added, he has a great interest in the Charlottetown festival and would like to continue to do some work in conjunction with it.

Industries Help Re-Educate British Columbia Engineers

By JACK MOORE
VANCOUVER (CP) — Major industries in British Columbia are teaming with educationists to overcome one of industry's most pressing problems—a critical shortage of engineers trained in modern techniques.

A committee, comprised of members of the University of B.C. faculty, engineers' societies and representatives of large corporations, has been formed to plan the continuing education of engineers.

"This sort of thing is absolutely essential," said Professor Les Crouch, president of the Association of Professional Engineers of B.C.

"The kids at university today are studying, as routine, things nobody ever heard of 10 years ago. There are so many new concepts and new techniques, an engineer can't keep up with them by himself."

Because of the scarcity of engineering graduates, companies are paying to re-educate their present staff.

G. F. Macfarlane, chief engineer at B.C. Telephone Co., said only 45 electrical engineers graduated from the University of B.C. this year.

"We went looking for at least a dozen of them," he said. "So did a lot of other companies."

B.C. Tel., along with the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority and several other firms, are represented on the new committee.

START CLASSES SOON
"We hope to have some classes rolling by September," said Prof. Crouch. "Further more we, along with other provincial engineers' associations, are trying to influence more young people to study engineering."

He said a variety of new vocations have sprung up within the last decade and sciences such as chemistry and physics have wooed many bright young men.

However, first-year registration in engineering at UBC has increased 10 per cent for each of the last two years after remaining static or declining for the seven years previous.

"With the re-education program going, and hopefully the registration continuing to increase, there may come a day when there is no shortage of engineers," he said.

Mr. Macfarlane said he doubts there will ever be enough engineers to go around. "But one encouraging development is the opening of technological institutes," he said. "Many engineers today are being used as technicians, or just glorified draftsmen. Graduates of technological institutes can do this work, sometimes better than engineers, and leave the engineers free for engineering."

for all those receiving Old Age Security pensions from the Federal Government. It is unnecessary for people receiving Blind Pensions, Old Age Assistance and Disabled Persons Allowances to register as the Provincial Government already have the names of these people and will be mailing the cheques out to them at the end of June.

Registration forms have been made out and these will be available in the registrar's office in each of the communities. The offices will be open from 9 a.m. until 12 noon and from 1.30 p.m. until 5 p.m. Monday to Friday. Individuals in the Charlottetown area may register at the Department of Welfare, third floor, New Provincial Building, Rochford Street, Charlottetown. This registration is necessary
