Spanking Makes

comes from my own experience in raising six children and helping raise 14 grandchildren. It is that you must uphold each other in front of your children.

No Blind Obedience

Parents should not be made to feel the brunt of fear. Some-of them are pretty hard to scare anyway. But when you tell a child to do something, your spouse should uphold you in every way possible. If one parent says "No" and the other says "Yes," a child will simply go from one to the other to get what he wants.

How can you expect obedience in a situation like this?

QUESTION AND ANSWER
A. R.: How should I treat a sly?
Answer: When a sly first forms, the use of cold compresses sometimes is helpful in preventing its development. Later, hot compresses may be necessary to hasten the appearance of pus. If too much pus forms, the sty may have to be lanced.

The Spaniards in 1774 were the first white men to see the Nootka Indians on Vancouver island.

Strange But True

By F. H. MacArthur

It is remarkable indeed how the Hallowe'en customs are retained from year to year, and century to century, and much in the same fashion.

In the south of England at this period of the year it is regarded as unlucky for a bride about to go to church to look in the glass after she is completely dressed. Hence, very great care is taken to put on a glove, or some article after the last lingering and reluctant look has been taken in the mirror. The idea is that any young lady who is too fond of the looking-glass will be unlucky when married.

The custom of throwing the peel of an apple over the head, says Mrs. Conway, marriage or single blessedness being foretold by its remaining entire or breaking, and that of finding in a peel so cast the initial of the coming sweetheart, is as well-known in America as in England.

In Folk-lore, of the old Northern counties, cats are said to bring good luck; and in and about Scarborough, Filey and Whitby, the sailors' wives keep cats to ensure, as they believe, the safety of their husbands while at sea. A black cat is most in favour. Various proverbs, however, give preference to tabbies and white cats.

"Whenever the cat o' the house is black,
The lasses o' lovers will have no lack."
And again—

"Kiss the black cat,
And 'twill make ye fat;
Kiss the white one,
'Twill make you lean."

Cutting the nails on an October Sunday, or indeed on any Sunday, is thought unlucky. According to the Devon and Cornish jingle—

"Who on the Sabbath pairs his horn,
'Twere better for him he had ne'er been born."

In some places Friday is the unlucky day; and in others each day of the week is named for this domestic operation:—

"A man had better ne'er been born
Than have his nails on a Sunday shorn.
Cut them on Monday, cut them for health;
Cut them on Tuesday, cut them for wealth;
Cut them on Wednesday, cut them for news;
Cut them on Thursday, for a pair of new shoes;
Cut them on Friday, cut them for sorrow;
Cut them on Saturday, see your sweetheart to-morrow."

Many versions of this old-world rhyme exist; and it even makes its way into a comic song.

"Mr. Jones would have married Miss Lundy,
But he lost her, he lost her, and only because
He cut his toe nails on a Sunday."

In October a flush and glory so bedeck the trees that their very leaves are flowers. Queenly in decay, nature assumes her crimson robes again.

And in the woods are many varied colour. The garden indeed is dun and faded.

"There is a beauty inexpressible—
A charm that cannot be passed by Without in some sort speaking to the soul."

Large Numbers

ember 5, wherein a correspondent was advised:
"As a spiritual tonic in all seasons, follow the Manual of Prayer, a monthly magazine distributed cost-free to all who need it, by the United Prayer Tower at 1571 Grand Avenue, St. Paul 5, Minnesota. That which is given by the Spirit is for all, and is not for the personal advantage or profit of anyone, the magazine's interdenominational sponsors say."
Since receiving your letter, I've been looking again at the cover-page of the magazine. And here is the full text of your give-away policy:

1. "Not copyrighted. Any part of this book may be reproduced without written permission of the publisher. That which is given by the Spirit is for all, and is not for the personal advantage or profit of anyone."
2. "This Manual has no price, but is distributed without charge. Its publication is made possible by free-will gifts of those to whom it is sent."

Want to Invest in God's Work?

I realize now that your work, or your product, can't be correctly labeled "cost-free"—and I regret the error, which might lead thoughtless persons to take advantage of your openhanded ministry, by falling to pay what they might well afford to pay, for an invaluable service.

Now that you have brought the mistake to my attention, I take this means of passing the correction along to the thousands of newspaper readers who are asking for the Manual. It is my belief that all those with adequate funds will appropriately reciprocate your generosity, thus permitting you to continually expand your wonderful ministry without financial jeopardy. Also it is my hope that this statement of your situation may spur titling-support from many others, interested in investing in God's work.
