

Justice Minister Upholds Security Risk Discharge

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Chevrier, in effect, has upheld the security discharge of a young RCAF communications expert in 1950 and said he feels the case "should now be considered closed."

Chevrier tabled in the Commons a lengthy review of RCMP security reports and denied allegations by New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas that the young man was an innocent victim of confusion between his activities in the CCF youth movement and Communist or Communist-front organizations.

Mr. Douglas raised the case early last month in urging that the government set up an appeal procedure whereby persons branded as security risks could face their accusers and clear their names.

The identity of the young man was not given by Mr. Douglas or by Mr. Chevrier.

The report showed that in 1957, a Communist organization met on his father's farm. In 1958, his college superior was "renounced" by a Saskatchewan cabinet minister for recommending him for a summer job the day after he acted as chairman of a Communist meeting in Regina. The young man admitted this act to school authorities, who expelled him.

Referring to charges by Mr. Douglas, the statement said "far from being hounded from job to job and being forced to sell from door to door, (the young man) has been apparently happily employed for the past 11 years with a provincial government."

The college principal had not, as claimed by Mr. Douglas, "cleared this man completely but maintains his original stand."

Surgeons near Port Elizabeth have successfully removed the prostate gland of a 19-year-old Xhosa tribesman.
