MR. AND MRS. G. RODNEY IVES

Nuptial Eucharist Performed At St. Paul's Anglican Church

On Saturday, September 15th at St. Paul's Anglican Church in Charlottown, Sheila Ann Bagnall became the bride of George Rodney Ives. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Bagnall and the late W. Ellsworth Bagnall of Hunter River and Mr. Ives is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Ives of Charlottetown.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Louis Elias assisted by the Ven. Archdeacon J.T. Ibbott. Mr. George Thompson was organist and Choirmaster. Both senior and junior choirs sang "We Lift Our Hearts Oh Father" before the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register.

The church was decorated with floral arrangements of all white glads on the altar. Guest pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Allan, wore a floor length gown of white silk organza over taffeta. The fitted bodice featured a scoop neckline delicately patterned with lace appliques and long lily point sleeves. The waistline was enhanced with lace appliques following through to the top of the skirt. The skirt fell on the front from unpressed pleats to a semi-bell. The lavish bustle at the back extended into a full chapel train. Her bouffant veil of tulle illusion, matching the bustle, fell from a princess tiara of seed pearls and sequins. The bride carried a white Bible beautifully arranged with stephanotis and white glads. The stephanotis extended down the front of her gown from white satin ribbons.

Attending the bride were, as maid of honor, Miss Diane Beairsto, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Oswald Pineau as matron of honor, friend of the bride. The bride's attendants were identically gowned in autumn gold peau de soie semi-bell styled skirts with bustles and scooped necklines to match the brides gown. Their headdresses were gold peau de soie tiaras and they wore matching gloves and shoes. They carried cascades of bronze mums.

Miss Rosemary Ives, sister of the groom, attended the bride as flowergirl. Her dress was of mint green taffeta accented around the hemline and sleeves with dainty lace appliques with a cummerbund tying into a large bow at the back. Her headdress was a coronet of white and yellow shasta daisies and matching bouquet.

The groom's brother, Mr. John Ives, attended him as best man and the ushers were Mr. William Ives, brother of the groom and Mr. Charles Pratt of Halifax.

Mrs. Bagnall chose for her daughter's wedding a draped sheath of bronze and white taffeta enhanced with a mink fur piece. Her white mariboun hat and accessories completed the ensemble. Her corsage was pale yellow carnations.

Mrs. Ives was gowned in a fitted two piece mint green brocade with matching shoes. She wore a mariboun hat and white accessories. Her corsage was pale coral carnations.

The reception for seventy guests was held at Caroma Lodge, Charlottetown. The bride's table was beautifully decorated with a three-tier crystal - columned wedding cake garlanded with ivy and gladiola blossoms.

The toast to the bride was proposed by the Rev. David Lennerton of Dartmouth and responded to by the groom. Mr. John Ives proposed a toast to the bridesmaids and read telegrams from Hamilton, Toronto, Ottawa, Edmonton, Sydney, Boston and Peterborough. Mrs. William Ives, the bride's cousin was in charge of the guest book.

Serving at the reception were Mrs. Fred Curtis, Miss Gail Cameron, Miss Carol Ann Hogan, Miss Diane Roberts and Mrs. Joseph Hambly.

For travelling, the bride wore a red Algo original double knit jersey with matching sash under an off-white coat of English wool and mohair with white fox fur cuffs. Her hat was red with a black band to match her accessories. Her corsage was of peppermint carnations.

After honeymooning around the Cabot Trail in Cape Breton, Mr. and Mrs. Ives will take up residence in Halifax where Mr. Ives will continue his studies in theology at the University of King's College.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Lois MacGregor, Miss Carol Ann Hogan, Mr. Charles Pratt, all of Halifax; The Rev. David and Mrs. Lennerton, Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Pineau, all of Dartmouth; Mr. Robert Owen, Mr. George Abbott, both of Moncton and Mr. Vimy Gregory of Middleton. N.S.

Prior to her marriage, the bride, her mother and the groom's mother received at a tea for over one hundred guests at the home of the groom's parents. Showers were given by friends in Halifax and in Charlottetown.

Russian Girl Has Trouble Making Friends In School

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a girl of 13 years. I live in the United States one - and - a-half years. I come from a town in the Ukraine.

I am of Russian blood and have a problem. I learn English for two years now. My problem is friends in school.

No one wants to be friends with me. I try so hard. My accent they laugh at, also my name; and some of my clothes. I live with a cousin in a college town.

How can I make friends? What be friendly they mimic me. Thank you. A.Y.

Dear A.Y.: You are laughed at only because you are different. And when people laugh at someone only because he is different, it means that the persons who laugh are insular, ignorant and primitive in their social reactions.

It is more than just a college in which you are living at present, my readers would be surprised to learn that its citizens are so lax in the management of their children's behavior that they (the parents) either don't know or don't care that the children are crudely discourteous and inhospitable to a newcomer.

It is more thamn just a college town. It is a national and international crossroad on a modest scale, where VIPs from all over the world drop in, to pay official calls. Also it has a shifting population of world-traveled families, who are posted there on tours-of-duty in government careers.

Wouldn't you expect that children growing up in such an environment would develop the gentility of manner and breadth of mind to go out of their way, cordially, to help a lonely classmate from another land feel welcome and included? I certainly would expect at least that much of them, as a very minimum of neighborly decency.

What is lacking in their emotional education, I wonder, that they haven't enough human feeling to reflect: "What if the shoe were on the other foot? What if I were in A. Y.'s place?"

ELLEN'S DIARY

Boisterous Winds Bring Drift Of Autumn Leaves

A boisterous wind in the treetops, this Saturday brought. Apples falling, and a drift of spent leaves. And clouds massed, to move darkly across the autumn blue. There was drift of sun and shadow far and wide over the farmlands. Now an area up the valley was sunlit brightly, as though caught in the beams of some giant spotlight, which moving on, left it in shadow, while it brightened some other scene.

Our farmers took stock of sky and wind.

"There'll be showers" one offered, thoughts on the grainlands. And they went then to gather in firewood from the heap in the field.

"There won't be much crackle to the sticks this time" one cook remarked to the other, with a chuckle.

"They have had too little sunning this summer" the other agreed.

Yet they will boil our kettles. We shall steep our tea and prepare our meals. And, as it was with us tonight at Alderlea, we shall often, we hope, draw up our chairs to the hearthfire, to chat with visitors, and the hours will all too soon slip away.

This evening, we talked of the weather, and "since June never ensaw so much damp weather." Nor as James remembered "such excellent pasture" or "the stock so content" with the summer's fields! We spoke of the week passing, recalling that it had given us "no more than one good harvest - day." We talked of the moons that in a succession had been so wet, and trusted that this, which is to be a Sunday's moon, would bring us improved days. We hoped when we mentioned the harvestings, that all might be gathered — none left to waste on the farmlands.

"The farmers show a great spirit, despite the fact that they've had to do with contrary weathers since spring" a salesman of today commented. "My work takes me to numbers of farms. And I'm truly lost in admiration over the courage they display in the face of all the difficulties they've had, and are having" he said.

"Snowfall!" Alex exclaimed this morning, listening in to a forecast. "He says, we may get some here this afternoon! Yes, on this Island" he nodded.

He sighed. "I love it in winter, but I don't believe I'll like it today."

First traces of it blew along the fields later, in a warning, or maybe only a lovely promise, of what is to come.

And against the winter's approach, the family continued today in storing.

They brought in firewood to the shed, apples to the cellar, in a spell of stable sunshine, grai nto the barn, a pair of lads went to harvest the vegetables in the cooks' garden of field. They brought home its fruits: the carrots and parsnips, the onions and cabbages. Proudly by machine they came, young cheeks pink, eyes glowing from their work in the open, and as Alex said "As hungry as wolves!"

So these days, the farm-folk put on "the breastplate" of courage, and do the best they can against the ill-winds of fate, according to an old saying "The most wearisome trail will end" — the darkest clouds scatter and dissolve in the blue, and then shine radiantly again.

What after all is courage? One has put it neatly:

"Courage is armor
A blind man wears;
The calloused scar
Of outlived despairs;
Courage is Fear
That has said its prayers."

Until Monday — — Diary — Good-night.....

Young Couple Plight Troth In Ceremony Held In Alberton

The marriage of Elizabeth Ann, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Profit of Alberton and Gerald Dinnis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Clough of Summerside, was solemnized at the Sacred Heart Church, Alberton on Saturday, October 13, 1962. The nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. V.J. Murnaghan.

Mrs. E.E. Larter played the wedding music and accompanied Miss Rosella LeClair and Miss Ann Moran, as they sang "Panis Angelicus" "O God of Lovliness" and "O Lord, I Am Not Worthy".

The bride given in marriage by her father was lovely in a street length gown of white peau de soie styled with semi-full skirt and lace bodice with scalloped neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. Her bouffant veil was held in place by a tiara accented with rhinestones and she carried a spray of yellow tea roses and a white missal, a gift from the groom.

Miss Janet Profit, as maid of honor, for her sister, wore a sheath dress of bronze peau de soie with overskirt and pillbox hat in a matching shade. She carried a bouquet of bronze mums.

Mr. Charles Broderick was the bestman and the ushers were Mr. Larry Profit and Mr. Micheal O'Brien.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Profit chose a blue wool suit with beige accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations. Mrs. Clough, mother of the groom wore a moss green dress with white accessories and her corsage was of pink carnations.

A reception for 75 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table was centred with a bouquet of flowers flanked on either side with white tapers in silver candleabra. the three-tier wedding cake was topped with a traditional bridal ornament.

Cpl. Ronald Pettitt was the master of ceremonies. A toast to the bride was proposed by the bestman and it was responded to by the groom. Rev. Father Monaghan and Mr. J.A. Noonan spoke briefly. Several telegrams were read by Cpl. Pettitt.

For a brief honeymoon trip, the bride wore a charcoal wool suit with heather muskrat jacket and beige hat and accessories. Her corsage was of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Clough will reside in Summerside.

Very likely the truth of the matter is that some of the children would like to be your friend, but lack courage to break the ice, so long as others in the group are holding you at arm's length.

As for how to make friends with these bad-mannered youngsters, I don't think you should try, unless and until you get some first-hand help from adult —such as your teacher, the school principal or your parents. They ought to wake up to the situation, and they ought to work behind the scenes, to make things easier for you socially.

For example, your mother might take pains to provide you with the sort of clothes your classmates, wear, so that you will fit into the picture nicely. Your teacher might take account of your special talents, as acting, singing, reciting or whatever, and arrange a class program with you in a featured role, so that you would have a chance to rehearse with, and become friends of classmates.

The principal of the school might address the student body in assembly hall, on the theme that education has meaning only to the extent that it enables a person to improve his understanding of, and enrich his friendships with, other human beings of any background.

The principal might say, pointedly, that any student who is snubbing or rejecting other students, in the belief that this makes the snob superior, is thereby registering his own mediocrity of spirit and character.

Finally, as an aid to morale, get a copy of Ralph Waldo Emerson's "Essays" and study his essay on "Compensation" — which teaches that every virtue is rewarded, every wrong redressed, in silence and certainty, in the working-out of human destinies.

Young Couple Are Honored At Shower

A miscellaneous shower was held in the Brae United Church Hall recently in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Alden Weeks (nee Audrey MacPhee) whose marriage took place recently.

The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion with bouquets of fall flowers and wedding bells and streamers, in shades of pink and white.

To the strains of the "wedding March" played by Miss Merry Barbour, the bride and groom entered the hall and were escorted to a decoated seat of honor on the stage by friends of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Weeks were the recipients of a number of lovely gifts and a sum of money. The gifts were opened by Beatrice Barbour and Lorna MacKinnon.

The gifts were presented to the young couple by June MacLean and Mrs. Errison MacLeod and arranged by Marjorie MacKinnon and Margaret Rose MacLean.
