

Gov.-General Will Return On Thursday

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor-General Massey will return to the capital Thursday after a three-week rest in Barbados, Government House said Monday. Mr. Massey, his term extended twice since he became Canada's first native-born governor-general in 1952, is expected to arrive home at 8:30 p.m. AST Thursday aboard the RCAF's C5 luxury airliner. The Barbados holiday began Feb. 5 to give Mr. Massey a complete rest, on the advice of his physician.

SUFFERED A CHILL At the end of December, he suffered a chill and slight fever which forced him to cancel his traditional New Year levee Jan. 1. A Government House announcement later in January said that although he had completely recovered from the chill and fever he was still suffering from fatigue and had been advised to take a rest in the sun. However, he fulfilled 10 official engagements before he left for the West Indies. His immediate future engagements include an address to the Century Club of New York March 5, a visit to the Minto Pollies in Ottawa March 15 and an address to the Montreal Women's Canadian Club March 26.

Eagles Defeat Montague 13-1

The local Georgetown Eagles playing on home ice took the measure of the visiting Montague team on Thursday night by the lopsided score of 13-1.

The score was hardly an indication of the play, as the game did produce some spots of good hockey. The winners led 4-0 at the end of the first, on goals by Wight, Stevens, MacLeod and MacPhee.

The middle from, saw the winners add four more on goals by MacLeod, who netted a pair and singles by Stevens and MacPhee. The losers got their lone tally of the night as Sullivan found the mark. In the final frame, Georgetown sank five markers as MacStevens a singleton. Referees netted two, Walsh two and were B. McCullough and E. Roche.

His will was filed for probate Tuesday.

Eisenhower Gov't Faces Tough Foreign Aid Fight

By DAVID ROWNTREE
Canadian Press Staff Writer
The Eisenhower administration faces a tough fight to have its 1958 foreign aid program approved. Traditionally, this annual request for money meets with opposition.

President Eisenhower is asking for nearly $4,000,000,000. There's more doubt than usual that he'll get it.

Two main reasons are worry about the economy and misgivings about the military spending. In the last few years a combination of Eisenhower Republicans and liberal Democrats have been able to muster enough votes to have the request approved. Last year, old-guard Republicans and conservative Southern Democrats sliced half a billion dollars from Eisenhower's request.

ECONOMY WAVE
This time, more congressmen from both parties are looking for ways to trim all government spending.

More than half the $3,942,100,000 in foreign aid is for military aid. There is criticism that not enough is spent on technical and economic assistance.

In a magazine article, Henry S. Reuss, Democratic representative from Wisconsin, says if the government continues the military emphasis it may find itself with a foreign aid program nobody likes—"neither the isolationists, who never did, nor the liberals, who are getting tired of supporting a program that departs more and more from their ideals."

AMOUNTS SECRET
Military aid projects are classified as secret and Congress can't debate how much individual countries get. Eisenhower warned Congress against any sharp reduction. It would, he said, impair free world power, mean "a massive increase" in defence costs and would ultimately leave America alone in a Communist-dominated world.

Reaction to this warning will be seen within the next month. First, Congress will be asked to approve renewal of foreign aid as a matter of policy and set a limit on the amount of money that can be used.

Second must come separate votes authorizing the spending. The House of Representatives foreign affairs committee has begun hearings and will question Secretary of State Dulles today. The Senate foreign relations committee probably will not begin hearings until mid-March.

A. F. Astley's drug-store as an apprentice, earning $7 for a 72-hour week, usual in those days. At 25 he graduated in pharmacy at the University of Toronto, then practised his profession in Ottawa for three years before joining Ayerst, McKenna and Harrison as a salesman, serving Eastern and Northern Ontario.

By 1941 he was sales manager of the firm and after it was purchased by American Home he became assistant general manager of U.S. operations in 1944. Since 1945 he has been president and general manager of Ayerst, and since 1946 chairman of the board of the Canadian division, whose president is William Leslie, Montreal.

Asked about his philosophy of work, O'Connor replied: "Essentially I'm a salesman. And the fundamental principle of salesmanship is the same whether the product is medical products or hats—it is service."

BIG TERRITORY
Dr. Cook, whose job as vice-president involves the interpretation of research for management, says the firm's operations provide an opportunity "for Canadian scientists to work in Canada, supported by sales in the U.S." The company also sells in numerous foreign countries from Formosa to Italy.

This provides plenty of work for O'Connor, who often carries a briefcase to the Manhattan apartment where he lives with his wife, the former Lillian Walker of Ottawa.

"His hobby is work—that's why he's one jump ahead of the next fellow," said Cook.

O'Connor now is president of the drug, chemical and allied trades section of the New York Board of Trade, which he considers a distinct honor for a Canadian.

Canada, we provide opportunities for Canadian resources brains, and ambitions.

"All our research is done in Canada, at the Ayerst, McKenna and Harrison plant in St. Laurent, Montreal, where 500 persons are employed. It's the largest pharmaceutical research staff in Canada. It's run by Canadians.

"And although Ayerst Laboratories (New York) is an American company, many of our important executive positions here are filled by Canadians."

WELL REPRESENTED
Here is a list, with former hometowns:
Dr. A. S. Cook, vice-president, Halifax, a graduate of Dalhousie and University of Toronto; Dr. J. B. Jewell, Fenlon Falls, Ont., medical director; Lawrence Simpson, Montreal, promotion director; Lugard Haight, Wellington, Ont., director of product development; Miss Marie Laliberte, Fort William, Ont., creative director; Miss Nina Connelly, Cobden, Ont., market research director.

"So you see we are pretty well represented, here," said O'Connor, a vigorous and youthful-looking 55. Gazing across his big mahogany desk in a Manhattan skyscraper, there was a no-blatency air about this executive of Irish descent, who carries 175 pounds on a five-foot-nine-inch frame.

Brought up in Ottawa where his mother, Mrs. Edward O'Connor, still lives, he has spent practically his whole life in the pharmaceutical business except for one year with the Bank of Nova Scotia.

"I left after putting the bank on its feet," said O'Connor with a grin, indicating he found banking a bore.
