GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

BEFORE their discharge, on Thursday, the Grand Jury made the following presentment in reference to the Queen's County Jail:—

GRAND JURY ROOM,
26th June, 1879.

The Grand Jury, having visited the Charlottetown Jail, desire to bring to the notice of the Court, the following matters requiring, in their judgment, immediate attention, in order to the maintenance of the health of persons therein incarcerated.

The Grand Jury suggest that the criminals be taken out for—say, at least one hour each day, in charge of a keeper—in order that the prisoners may obtain fresh air, and to afford an opportunity of airing the cells.

The Grand Jury call attention to the fact that, in the different cells visited, no water-closets are to be found, and that the necessary conveniences are not at all in keeping with the requirements.

The Grand Jury call attention to the fact that, in each of the criminals compartments a continuous fire is kept on for cooking purposes during the day, rendering the atmosphere much too hot for either comfort or health.

The Grand Jury call attention to the lack of ventilation at night in the Debtors' prison, and beg to suggest that an iron grating or ventilator be placed over the doors of said rooms.

The Grand Jury beg to recommend that the prisoner—William Young—be removed to the Lunatic Asylum at as early a day as possible, the said Young being, in their opinion, a fit subject for that Institution.

For self and fellows,

RICHARD HEARTZ,
Foreman.

In the case of the Queen at the prosecution of J. S. McKay vs. Jane McInnis, for larceny of ring, the Jury returned a verdict of "not guilty."

The case of the Queen at the prosecution of Peter Connolly vs. Peter Donnelly, for larceny, is now being tried.
