Egyptian War Notes.

RE-LIGHTING THE PHAROS
During the bombardment of Alexandria, the large lighthouse (the Pharos), which stands at the entrance of the harbor, of Alexandria suffered severely. Halfway up the staircase was cut in two by a shell, and in some places the stones were made dangerously loose. For several days the house was not lighted, but finally an officer and three sailors were found to make the dangerous ascent. After much difficulty they reached the lantern and caused the revolving light to shine in its familiar manner, but they were unable to descend alone. Special help and appliances had to be sent them. For several hours, however, they remained imprisoned in the unstable tower.

AT SUEZ
all is quiet, for the good reason that the natives are overawed by the presence of the English marines, who keep patrolling the streets night and day, in strong bodies, with loaded rifles and fixed bayonets. One native was caught in a dark alley with a petroleum torch, and is in custody till further orders.

PORT SAID
is being connected with us by a submarine cable, the shore end of which was laid here on Friday last. Zagazig and Ismailia are being reconnoitered by the Badouins. Fears are entertained of their being seized by Arabi's troops.

THE INDIAN TROOPS of India are beginning to move. The Seaford Highlanders are on their way to Suez, and will stay there, pending the movements of Arabi Pasha. It is thought that Zagazig, some fifty miles west of Ismailia, will play an important part in the campaign, as there is the point of water supply, and it is at present within Arabi's reach. By damming up the Sweet Water Canal there or destroying the iron pipe which supplies Port Said with water, Ismailia, and therefore Suez, together with Port Said, would be entirely cut off from fresh water. Hence the cry to send some of the Indian troops to Zagazig, whence are lines of railway to Alexandria, Ismailia, and Cairo. These troops can sail up the canal from Bombay to Ismailia, the natural base for occupation. From it is a direct line of about fifty miles to Zagazig, and from the latter is an easier and shorter line to Cairo than from the Suez, which involves eighty-five miles. If the course of the campaign drives Arabi south, Zagazig, with its two posts to supply—Ismailia and Alexandria—will become the centre of operations on Cairo.

The Noble Yankee Marine.
(From the Detroit Free Press.)
If Admiral Nicholson is not careful, the part which his marines played at Alexandria will be embalmed in heroic verse by the English poet laureate possibly after the fashion in which the "Charge of the Light Brigade" was commemorated. It would be very thrilling to read in Tennysonian verse how lickety lickety switchee, went the sixty down the Ras-el-Tin, not Russian or Spanish, French or Danish, but the Yankee marine. It would be almost the thing, too, to chronicle that into the burning town, mid crash of powder and plunge, aye into the very furnace of hell, the sixty went down, the gallant sixty, the noble sixty, with such a martial, fearless mien, that everyone knew 'twas must be true that they were the famous Yankee marine. A stanza embodying this sentiment would not be strictly true, but something must be allowed for poetic license. However, Tennyson would be clearly within bounds if he sung that at the consulate door, and pacing the floor, with a step that was neat, and guns not to be beat, the Yankee marine in all his glory, so famed in story, was there to be seen. He could add that houses to the right of them, to the left of them, crumbled and tumbled, but none thought to quail, much less to turn tail, for they were there "just for greens," were these Yankee marines. But it will not do to anticipate more completely the inspiring strains with which the poet laureate, when the spirit moves him, will hold the world spell-bound. It is enough for the present to know that the deeds of the sixty were not born to die, and that they have received the plaudits of the British press.

The aggregate resources of the twenty-five savings banks of New York City are $24,578,658 66, and their total liabilities amount to $219,478,278 55, of which sum $219,417,477 50 is due to their depositors, leaving a net surplus of $35,100,380 11. The number of open accounts is 566,163. There were 64,121 accounts opened during the last six months ended July 31 against 47,040 closed. The deposits received during the six months aggregated $36,587,840 30, and the withdrawals $32,147,281 27. The expense of management was $314,874 67.

There is only one Waterloo man now among the in-pensioners at Chelsea Hospital. He is 97. The Prince and Princess of Wales lately visited him.

Irish National Land League.
A meeting of the Charlottetown Branch of the Irish National Land League was held on the evening of the 7th inst. J. M. P. Hogan, Esq., President, in the chair.
After the usual programme of regular business had been disposed of, the President announced his desire to resign, as he contemplated leaving the Province at an early date, and he therefore wished that the resignation be accepted. On motion, Mr. Cox took the chair, and after several members expressed their regrets at Mr. Hogan's resignation, the same was accepted.
A committee was appointed to tender the late President, with an address, which, being prepared, was presented and feelingly responded to.
The Secretary was instructed to issue notices for a full special meeting on Monday evening next, for the purpose of electing a President, after which the meeting adjourned.
EDWARD C. GRANT,
Secretary.
Ch'town, Aug. 8th, 1882.

More Atlantic Cables.
Still another Atlantic cable scheme is announced in New York, and a bill of incorporation has been introduced in Congress. Mr. S. L. M. Barlow, a prominent New York lawyer and counsel for the Erie railway, is announced as one of the corporation. The bill incorporating the Baltimore and Ohio Cable Company passed, but subject to the restriction that no acquisition or combination to establish rates, union or sale of cable interests shall be made to any existing company. This restriction, limiting the opportunities for profit to a single chance of success, will, it is thought, render the prospect so unattractive to investors that its success is uncertain in commanding capital, either in New York or in England. These, with the Canadian scheme, make three new projects, involving expenditures of over $10,000,000, and adding six to the number of existing cables, among which to divide the business, which, according to Mr. Wauver's recent letters, pay nothing as competing rates.

The Planets in August.
The astronomer of the Providence Journal has much to say, this month, about Venus, whose approaching transit across the face of the sun is exciting the interest of scientific men. She is evening star during August and is a conspicuous object in the sky, being now fifteen seconds in diameter and increasing steadily in apparent size until December, when her diameter will be sixty-four seconds. She is in close conjunction with Mars on the 2nd, at six o'clock in the morning, the planets at that time being only five minutes apart. The planets are below the horizon at their nearest point, but were close enough together on the evenings of the 1st and 2nd to make an interesting illustration of their seemingly near approach. They will come nearer than any two planets have come since the 18th of May, 1880, when Mercury and Neptune were one minute apart, or will come until the 25th of June, 1884, when Mercury and Saturn will be one minute apart.

Mars and Uranus are also evening stars, but there is nothing of special interest connected with their movements during August. Saturn is morning star, and is an interesting object during the month. On the 18th, at six o'clock or half-way home, and henceforth until opposition he will be nearer the earth than the sun. Telescopic observers are already at work observing his rings, belts and moons; they will make the most of his present aspect, combining three favorable conditions, for his rings are opening to their widest extent, his perihelion is approaching, and his northern declination is increasing. Students must bear in mind that the same conditions will not occur again for thirty years, and be sure to improve every opportunity for a peep at this magnificent planet through the telescope. Neptune, Jupiter and Mercury are also morning stars. The August moon falls on the 28th. The waning moon is in conjunction with Neptune and Saturn on the 6th, and hangs two degrees south of Jupiter on the 9th. The new moon of the 13th is in conjunction with Uranus on the 16th, and with Mars and Venus on the 17th. On the nights of the 9th, 10th and 11th a display of meteors may be looked for. The earth then plunges through the August meteor zone, a gigantic ellipse, whose perihelion is within the earth's orbit, and whose aphelion reaches beyond the orbit of Neptune. The meteors shoot from the constellation Perseus. Sometimes the showers are very brilliant, almost rivaling the famous November ones. These meteors are distinguished from those belonging to other meteoric systems by their yellow color, and they leave behind them tails of luminous vapor that often last several seconds. Poetry and superstition have given to the August meteors the name of the fiery tears of St. Lawrence, because they occur on the anniversary of the day memorable for the martyrdom of the famous saint. The constellation Perseus rises late in the evening in the northeast, and may be known by a semi-circle of stars forming the sword of the hero.

There is no member of his Cabinet to whom Mr. Gladstone is under such heavy obligations as to Lord Spencer, whose acceptance of the Vice-royalty of Ireland, now the most dangerous and disagreeable post of dignity in the gift of the Crown, can be due to nothing but from sense of duty. Lord Spencer, who has refused a Marquisate, is childless, and has at least $200,000 a year. His heir is his half-brother, nephew of Admiral Seymour, commanding in Egypt.
