Pope Known In Milan As Bishop Of Workers

VATICAN CITY (AP)—To the people of Milan, Pope Paul VI is "The Bishop of the Workers," a prelate who donned a miner's helmet to see how the men in the pits work to earn their daily bread.

That is one of the things the new Pope did as Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini, archbishop of Milan—an industrial centre where the Communists are strong.

He is a blue-eyed, grey-haired man of moderate height with a trim figure. Much of the time he has an intense look on his face, dominated by black eyebrows and a prominent Roman nose.

It is the look of a man who has a reputation for deep thought — as reflected in his many public writings and speeches as a cardinal.

Inevitably there are comparisons with his predecessor, Pope John XXIII, whose progressive policies he is expected to continue.

Physically there was little likeness between the two.

Pope John weighed more than 200 pounds, had a jovial mien and the heavy features and husky build that told of his peasant ancestry.

Pope Paul is a slender man who was sometimes sickly as a child. He has the grace and carriage that reflect his diplomatic training and bt eboyhood in the well-to-do home of his cultured journalist father.

SHARE IDEAL

Both popes shared the same ideals and Pope Paul has the training and determination to carry them on.

Pope Paul has behind him the broad, pastoral experiences of eight years as archbishop of Milan—most important diocese in Italy after Rome.

IS GOOD MIXER

When he went there on a rainy winter day after years in the Vatican secretariat of state, some wondered how he would mix with the people in the working class districts of industrial north Italy. Despite his shyness and sometimes aloof manner, he mixed well.

One of his first visits there was to the convicts in the city jail, just as Pope John, a few years later, visited Rome's Regina Coeli (Queen of Heaven) prison soon after his coronation.

As archbishop, Montini went himself to the working districts of Milan and talked persuasively and amiably to labor groups packed with Communists.

He went time and again to carry the appeal of Roman Catholicism to the industrial suburb, Sesto San Giovani. It is called Italy's "Little Stalingrad" because of its militant Communist population.

Friendly stories about him circulated widely: How he seemed to remember everyone's name; he enjoyed television and sat up late chuckling over the quiz show or intently following bicycle races for which he was an enthusiastic fan.

They even remembered that when he came to Milan to take up his post as archbishop he brought along only three suitcases. They contained all his worldly goods except his big collection of books which he crated and sent on ahead of him.

LIKE HOMECOMING

Returning to the apostolic palace as Pope was almost like coming home for him.

For years he had lived in apartments here as substitute secretary of state and later pro-secretary of state under Pope Pius XII. He was recognized as a top-flight administrator.

He speaks fluent French and good English in addition to Latin and his native Italian. He has considerable knowledge of Spanish and German and has some use of Polish—gained on his first diplomatic mission as a young priest who was secretary to the papal nuncio in Warsaw in 1923.

He was born Sept. 26, 1897, in Concesio, near the northern Italian city of Brescia.

The man who became Pope refused only 10 years ago to become a cardinal.

Pope Pius XII said at the 1953 consistory that he had wanted to make Montini a cardinal, but that Montini pleaded against it. He said he could serve better in the secretariat of state.

It was a year later that Pope Pius sent him to Milan as archbishop. He received the red hat of cardinal from Pope John four years after that, in December, 1958.

His father, Giorgio Montini, a lawyer and journalist, named him Giovanni Battista—John the Baptist. The father for 25 years published a Catholic newspaper, "Il Cittadino" of Brescia, and served three terms as a deputy in the old Italian parliament.

Male Admitted To Canadian Dietetic Ass'n.

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Laliberte of Quebec City, who admits he's a poor cook, was the first male to be given membership in the all-woman, 1,200 - member Canadian Dietetic Association and is the only man among 300 women attending the association's annual convention here. The association was founded 28 years ago.

A married man with four children, he is food service director at Laval University, directing a staff of 60 who serve 2,500 meals daily.

"I don't do any of the cooking," he said in an interview. "In fact, I'm a very poor cook."

Mr. Laliberte worked as a salesman for a kitchen equipment firm before deciding to take advanced training in food management and control. In 1959 he graduated from the University of Montreal to become the first university-trained male dietitian in Canada.

He did an internship with a firm in Hartford, Conn.

Mr. Laliberte says men have an advantage over women in the food industry. "It is difficult for a chef with 15 to 20 years service to take orders from a young woman fresh out of university."

Sir Winston Begins Cruise

MONTE CARLO (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill, 88, waved his hat to a cheering crowd of 100 persons Friday before boarding a yacht belonging to Greek shipowner Aristotle Onassis for a 13-day cruise to Greece. Churchill will fly home to London from Athens about July 4, a spokesman said.

Russia Refuses To Pay UN Bill

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union announced it will not pay "once cent or one kopeck" to meet United Nations assessments that it considers illegal.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko thus turned back an appeal, embodied in a draft resolution, that countries in debt to the UN pay up "without prejudice" to their political or juridicial positions.

Fedorenko denounced a five-resolution plan set up to maintain UN forces for another six

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	5♥	5♠	Dble
Pass	6♥	6♠	Dble

Opening lead—ace of hearts.

You don't get a ten-card suit very often. As a matter of fact, the odds against being dealt one are over 60,000 to 1.

However, a ten-carder did pop up in the match last year between Italy and the United States. It occurred in Deal No. 8 of the 144-board match.

At the first table, the American South (Key) opened the bidding innocently enough with a spade. West (Forquet) overcalled with five hearts. North (Nail) bid five spades which East (Garozzo) doubled. Probably Garozzo should have bid six hearts — despite his void — instead of doubling, but he didn't.

Forquet was in no mood to let the opponents play the hand, so he bid six hearts, for better or worse. Nail bid six spades, which drew another double from Garozzo, and that was where the hand was played for down two—300 points.

Garozzo might have passed six spades and thus invited Forquet to go on to seven hearts, but he decided against it even though he had two aces which his partner knew nothing about.

The American pair at the second table fared better with the ten-card suit. The bidding went:

South	West	North	East
1♠	4NT	5♠	Dble
Pass	6♥

The Italian South (D'Alelio) bid a spade and West (Mathe) four notrump, apparently a Blackwood call. When Chiaradia now bid five spades, East (Von Der Porten) doubled.

Here also West didn't stand for the double — Mathe hadn't seen a ten- card suit in years — and he bid six hearts. For some reason not altogether clear, the Italians refused at this point and Mathe became declarer at six hearts.

He made seven for a score of 1,010 points, and the American team gained 710 points on the deal. Both sides staggered aimlessly without knowing exactly where they were heading, which would seem to indicate that no one has had much experience with ten-card suits.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
