NOT A BAD IDEA.
Nor is the idea of Simian domestics a new one. Buffon, in the last century, staked his great reputation as a naturalist on the following statement:
"I have seen a chimpanzee that always walked on two legs, even when carrying heavy burdens. A word or sign was sufficient to make him obey, and his temper was equable and gentle. I have seen him offer his hand to lead out those who had been calling on his master and walk with them like a companion. I have seen him take his seat at table, unfold his napkin, wipe his lips, use a spoon and fork, pour out a glass of wine and pledge a health when invited. I have seen him take a cup and saucer, place it on the table, pour out tea, put sugar in it, let it get cool before drinking, and all without other instruction than the signs or words of his master."
"He never injured any one, but always approached you carefully, and as if wishing to be petted. He was prodigiously fond of candies, everybody fed him with them, and as he had a cough and his lungs were affected, it is supposed that the indulgence of this appetite shortened his life. He only lived one summer in Paris and died the following winter in London."

SIMIAN SERVANTS.

Domestics to be Recruited from the Monkey Tribe.

AN INTERESTING PROBLEM DISCUSSED BY A FRENCH NATURALIST—NOT A NEW IDEA—SOME VERY INTERESTING CASES—THE NEXT QUESTION.

Can monkeys be domesticated and made useful to man as the horse, the ox and the ass are useful, but in a different way? Such is the interesting problem discussed in a book just issued here by M. Victor Meunier, who has made a study of these curious specimens of the animal kingdom. And this problem, according to the author, will in time receive a successful solution. Mankind will in the future draw from the ranks of the Simian tribes servants skillful enough to perform tasks now only discharged by reasoning—I had almost said "reasonable"—beings—tasks that require only strength of muscle, skill of hand and ordinary intelligence.
But M. Meunier draws a very distinct line between the higher and lower orders of the monkey race. Among the latter he places the Barbary ape, the pouched, the striped and other varieties; among the former the chimpanzee, the gorilla, the orang-outang and the "gibbon," or long armed species. And it is only from among the last named that the servants of the future will be recruited.

The work of frescoing the interior of this fine church was completed a few days since, and is most beautifully done. The walls are painted in blocks and strips about eight inches wide, in imitation of stone work, of blue-grey and silver-grey tints, which give a most pleasing effect, while brightening up the church wonderfully, in comparison with its former partial gloom. The colors are evenly and smoothly put on, the shading, blending, and harmonizing being perfect. The figures of the apostles are shown in niches (apparently) between the windows, and those of SS. Simon and Jude, the titular saints of the church, over the sacristy door, and facing the side aisles, stand out in relief, all having the appearance of statuary. The central arches are blue with gold stars, and the side arches have a blue-grey ground work, with delicate gold tracery, which is very beautiful indeed. The sides of the central arches also bear handsomely finished emblems representing the prayer of St. Mary.

The whole work is a most charming combination of colors that blend and harmonize in the utmost beauty, a triumph of the painter's art. The object in view, in the selection of tints, seems to have been to give light and brightness to the interior, while preserving a rich warm tone, and in this the artists have admirably succeeded. The contractor in charge, Mr. F. E. D. Meloche, of Montreal, a gentleman of large experience in his profession, says he has not seen a more perfectly proportioned church in Canada, and this assisted him greatly in producing so excellent an effect. Mr. Meloche had twelve skilled artists employed for several weeks at the work, which is a lasting credit to himself and the people of Tignish. The cost of this painting is, we learn, $3,100.

The roof of the church has been shingled, as the slates with which it was until recently covered, did not give good satisfaction.
On the evening of the 18th, the painters, assisted by one or two local musicians, gave a concert in St. Mary's Hall, consisting of songs, choruses, and a pantomime, which realized $71.80. The collection at Mass the following day amounted to about $50.—Agriculturist.

The Reporter's Vacation.

Editor—"Think you need change and rest, eh? Well, shouldn't wonder; your life is a hard one, and I believe it is several years since you had a vacation. Which do you most enjoy, seashore, mountain or pastoral scenes?"

Hard-worked reporter (with enthusiasm)—"Oh! the mountains, always."
Editor—"Well, the Mind and Matter Association will hold their 16-hour-a-day metaphysical sessions at the Black Top this year, and you can go there and report them. Don't miss anything, and keep each day's essays down to six or eight columns. The paper has a bill against the hotel keeper at Black Top for advertising. I will charge it to your account and let you take it along. Just before leaving hand him the bill in payment for your board, but be careful to do it politely, because he's a retired prize fighter and the wickedest man east of San Francisco."—Omaha World.

Experience counts for a good deal in discovering sea serpents. Men who have seen snakes in their boots are generally those who see sea serpents in the surf.

The annual report of the United Kingdom Band of Hope Union, just issued, states that there are 7,083 Bands of Hope connected with the union, with a membership of 956,205 boys and girls.

To the DEAF.—A person cured of Deafness and noises in the head of 23 years' standing by a simple remedy will send a description of it FREE to any person who applies to NICHOLSON, 30 St. John Street, Montreal. 4m—m14

The Philadelphia Ledger relates that to an old couple who boasted that they had lived man and wife for fifty years and never had a dispute, the listener replied, "What a delightful, monotonous life you must have had!"
The English House of Lords was dissolved in "roars of laughter" at a late session, at the curious solicitude of Lord Fortescue. He wished to ask the Government to introduce into the agricultural holdings bill "some provision for alleviating the great hardship now suffered by the family of any clergyman if he died while occupying his glebe, as many clergymen have lately found themselves reluctantly compelled to do." Was Sir Boyle Roche translated to the Upper House when he died? This question recalls his famous complaint that "the churchyards are fuller than they can hold; people are dying this year who had never died before."

The report that the promoters of the Hudson's Bay railway scheme have effected arrangements in England which guarantee the completion of the work in a moderately short time, if fully borne out, is most important. There are many who think, and with good ground for so doing, that the profitable operation of such a road is out of the question. There are others, however, and among these many men of pre-eminent ability in the railroad world, who endorse the scheme. We have learned much about the capabilities of the Northwest within a year even that was undreamed of by the world. It may be—we hope it will be—that within a year or two we will learn still more to the country's advantage. If the road is built, and regular ocean communication can be maintained, the effect upon the Northwest—United States as well as Canadian—will be tremendous. Canada will have a new seaboard available with a commercial port in the heart of the continent.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind. [April 1 '88]
