

MR. AND MRS. EDWIN PETERS
Colorful Summer Wedding
Performed At N. Rustico

Stella Maris Church, North Rustico, was the scene of a colorful summer wedding on August 7th when Norma Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gallant, became the bride of Edwin Peters, son of Henry Peters of Kinkora and the late Mrs. Peters.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Father Francis Corcoran. Appropriate hymns were sung during the ceremony by two uncles of the bride, Alyre and John Pineau. The organist was Bernadette Gaudin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride entered the church to the strains of a wedding march. She wore a floor-length gown of white satin trimmed with blue appliques, which featured detachable train. Her headpiece was of nylon tulle veiled and topped by a crown with simulated pearls. The bride's only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom and she carried a cascade of red roses.

The maid of honor and bridesmaid, Elaine and Marilyn, both sisters of the bride, wore identical gowns of pink satin with an overskirt of pink net. Their headpieces were matching veils and rosettes and they carried bouquets of white and red roses.

Linda Dunn, niece of the groom, was flower girl in a dress of white nylon with matching headband. She carried a bouquet of white and pink carnations.

Ronnie Peters, brother of the groom, was best man while another brother, Reggie, was usher for the bride's group. The groom, usher and best man wore identical white coats and dark trousers. The guests were ushered to their seats by Regis Gallant, brother of the bride and Vernon Peters, brother of the groom.

The ring bearer was Richard Peters, brother of the groom. For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Gallant chose a two piece pink linen suit with white accessories and a corsage of white and pink carnations.

Mrs. Henry Dolron, aunt of the groom, represented the groom's mother. She wore a blue flowered dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 90 guests was held at the Legion Home, North Rustico, where the bride's table was centered by a three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom.

The master of ceremonies was John Pineau. The toast to the bride was proposed by Raney Gallant and responded to by the groom, who also proposed the toast to the bridesmaids. The guest book was circulated by Dolores Doucette.

For a short honeymoon the bride wore a two piece white bougie suit with beige accessories.

The newweds are residing in Toronto, Ontario, where the groom is employed at Goodyear Tires and the bride is on the staff of Allied Towers Stores.

Out of the province guests included Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Dunn and Linda, Montanara, U.S.A. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gallant and Garry, Reggie and Vernon Peters; Dolores Doucette, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kennedy — all of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peters of Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gatem, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gatem of Cheslea, Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Gallant, Mrs. Conny Fleming, Mrs. Bob Hebert, Mrs. Kay Comeau, all of Halifax, Nova Scotia and Regis Gallant, St. Margaret's, N.B.

MARY HAWORTH
Litterbug Husband Poses
Problem To Happy Wife

Dear Mary Haworth: If you can help me solve one tiny problem today, who knows, eventually I may end up with the perfect marriage!

My first little problem is this: My husband never will stoop to pick up anything, whether it is a piece of paper he tossed at the wastebasket and missed, or the garments he invariably drops on the floor when changing.

Meanwhile he is developing a little paunch which is beginning to resemble the "before" picture in the diet advertisements. I hate to be pessimistic, but once in a while the image of King Farouk crosses the back of my mind.

How can I get the idea across to my husband that if he would begin to pick up after himself, it might add years to his life, and might also increase my desire to have him around a little longer? Sincerely, V. J.

Dear V.J.: Am I right in inferring that you are newlyweds, both just getting harness broken? Well, never mind; perhaps it makes no difference, concerning the measure of the problem, and the solution, if any.

The classic approach to teaching your husband good manners on the moot point of picking up after him, etc., and it is good manners to stow away one's own litter — is as follows:

First, speak tactfully and lovingly to the offender about the irritating, explaining how much he considers helpfulness would be appreciated, if he would distribute his discards in the proper containers, instead of strewn them all over.

Second, if he fails to act on that invitation, the next move is to let his litter lay where he drops it, for as long as it takes him to discover that the place is beginning to resemble a park rat's nest, due to his negligence.

At that juncture, he'll probably have something to say that will give you an opening to restate your case for fair play. If he still refuses adamant refusal to nurse-maid himself, as a matter of lifetime selfish principle, you'll then have to decide: "what next?"

My own view would be, if the matter seems crucial to you, and you've put your wishes on record with gentle clarity during these two parleys, you should then stand your ground, adamantly refusing to pick up after him, unless and until he relents, and meets you halfway in doing the job. M.H.

Dear Mary Haworth: I have been interested in the exchange of letters debating the merits of cluttered - vs - orderly house-keeping - or, as some might see it, the egghead - vs - the minicoop brand of homemaking.

I am beginning to believe that many lazy wives use intellectual pursuits, so-called, as an excuse to shirk their duty to maintain an orderly home life.

I am a young wife with a busy, hard-working husband and three children, pre-schoolers. I feel that my family has a right to expect a well run home, and that I am elected to see to it.

I resent the implication, frequently encountered, that one who keeps an orderly house simply has nothing better to do with her time. My house is neat and clean, though not always immaculate. We have a routine for meals, bedtime, etc., though not inflexible.

Yet I find plenty of time for fun activities with the children, time alone for reading, sewing, needlework, music, etc., and I've recently begun some volunteer teaching in the community.

I always have my evenings free for my husband, when he can be busy together or enjoy individual interests in each other's company. Our family life is relaxed and happy.

Running a home is like running any business: it takes logical organization to do it successfully. If the egghead scorn-ers at conscientious housekeeping are so bright, why don't they use their brains to promote and maintain some order at home? P.R.

MR. AND MRS. DANIEL FEEHAN
MacDonald-Feehan Vows
Exchanged At Little Pond

Summer flowers decorated the altar of St. Francis de Sales Church, Little Pond, and guests pews were marked with red roses on white doilies fastened with white satin bows on August 7th when Mary Sheila, daughter of Mrs. Lucetta and the late Raymond MacDonald of Howe Bay became the bride of Daniel Bernard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Feehan, St. Margarets.

Rev. Charles Gallant performed the double ring ceremony during the nuptial mass.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Wendall, was in a floor length gown of organza over a satin with appliques of chantilly lace on the bodice and skirt, the slim skirt was highlighted at the back by a full chapel train fastened with bows. Her shoulder-length veil was held with a pearl crown, and her bouquet was of white fuchsias and ivy. Her only jewellery was an airloom locket worn by brides-in her family for many years. Soloist Elizabeth Chaisson was accompanied by Mrs. Charles S. MacDonald organist, as she sang "Jesus My Lord My God My All" prior to the ceremony, and "Praise to the Lord" "My God Accept My Heart This Day", "Pans Angelicus" during the ceremony and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother" during the signing of the register. Altar boys were Raymond, Malcolm and F. D. MacDonald, brothers and cousin of the bride.

Maid of honor was Carol MacDonald, sister of the bride and bridesmaids were Bernadette Feehan and Clara Fisher sister of groom and cousin of the bride. They wore street length dresses of apple green peau-de-soie with scoop neckline and bell shaped skirts, their headpieces were bows of matching material and they carried bouquets of yellow and white daisy mums.

The winsome flower girl was Mona, sister of the bride, who wore a short dress of white floecel nylon and a band of flowers in her hair. She carried a basket of coloured mums.

Charles Feehan was best man for his brother, and Wendall MacDonald and Kenneth Cudmore ushered the guests to their pews.

The bride's mother wore a three-piece suit of pink lace with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The mother of the groom was in a blue figured dress of matte Jersey, with matching blue velvet hat and black and white accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception for approximately 80 guests was held at the Wheel of Fortune. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered cake topped with a gold corsage and rings, made by her aunt, Mrs. Alex Fisher.

The toast to the bride was proposed by F. D. MacDonald to which the groom fittingly responded. After the reception the bride and groom visited the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, St. Peter's Bay. Friends and relatives of the bride and groom gathered at her home in the evening where a buffet supper was served and dancing and singing enjoyed.

For their honeymoon which included a trip to the Cabot Trail and other points of interest in the Maritime Provinces, the bride chose a linen two-piece suit of powder blue with home or work in a wrap-and-button style with a smart surplice neckline. Sew it in care-free fabrics that scorn ironing. Printed Pattern 4960; Half Sizes 12 1/2, 14 1/2, 16 1/2, 18 1/2, 20 1/2, 22 1/2, 24 1/2. Size 16 1/2 takes 4 1/2 yards 35-inch.

FIFTY CENTS (50 cents) in coins (no stamps, please) for each pattern. Ontario residents add 2 cents sales tax. Print plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER.

ELLEN'S DIARY
Even The Dahlias Make A Nice Showing Now

Intriguing trails marked the days this morning. Scampie's, and the bantams. And Tabby's paws were damp, when she came mewing at times, up the driveway, a plump field mouse, the living trophy she carried home from an early morning excursion. Night showers, there had been. Indeed a mist of fog still lingered above the stream, when we came to the door to take our soundings of the day.

"If we had had the like of this in earlier summer, Ellen, what fine cross there would have been" James offered, about to set off to first chorings. "Oh well, use their brains to promote and maintain some order at home?"

I reckon Islanders, by and large, aren't left too badly off as it is. Not like some. Folks from some of the other Provinces I talked with at the town Fair, seemed to think the Island had been especially favored. There's had an extremely dry summer, a real drought, so they said. In any event, he smiled, looking away along the valley, "that bleached look, call it burnt, if you will, is gone now from the fields."

"Even the dahlias" we noted, "showing little life you may say for months, are making a nice showing now." Close by us, the lengthy discarded troughs on either side of the doostep, we had used as planters, showed little sign of their beginning. Quite overflown they are of late, overflowing with an assortment of blossoming geraniums and anagardons. Damoush and Good-night.

DA BAILEY ALLEN
Diet For Safer Driving
To Encourage Alertness

MORE highways, more cars, more drivers seem to add up to more accidents. Much is being said and written to promote safer driving, but little is said about conditioning the drivers. Yet accidents and casualties can be prevented, not only by observing the rules of the road, but by keeping physically and mentally alert.

Observation of a few simple rules of diet can be of the utmost help in maintaining safe and efficient physical and mental conditions for modern driving.

It is of the greatest importance that steady, continuous driving by the same driver should not be maintained for more than two and a half hours without a break. A suitable snack, and continuous walking for at least 5 min. should occupy the break.

The following regime will contribute considerably to safer driving by reducing general fatigue. It is equally helpful to the passenger. It will help to prevent nerve exhaustion and back-ache frequently experienced on a long motor trip.

Waker - Upper: 2 glasses water, 1 hot and 1 cold with juice & lemon.

Breakfast: Orange juice; choice of cereal with milk, or eggs (not fried) with or without broiled ham or crisp bacon; toast; strong coffee or tea with half milk, and sugar.

Mid-Morning Break: Choice of hot or iced tea, soup, tomato juice, a cola or fruit drink. An apple or pear.

Lunches: Fruit cocktail, tomato soup with a roll. Roasted, broiled, or boiled meat or fish, potato (not fried), a green vegetable or salad; choice of sherbet, gelatin or fruit dessert. Hot or iced coffee with sugar.

Mid-Afternoon Break: Sherbet, sundae, fruit, or a hard-boiled egg; hot or iced tea, or a fruit, cola or soft drink, and an open meat, tuna or cheese sandwich, or a hamburger or frankfurter (1/2 bun).

Dinner: Grapefruit or melon; roasted, broiled or boiled poultry, meat or fish with 1 roll; or a hamburger or frankfurter on a bun; 2 vegetables (no potato); tossed salad with French dressing; choice of fresh or canned fruit, fruit cocktail, a gelatin dessert, baked apple or sherbet. Strong tea or black coffee with sugar.

Mid-Evening Break: Hot or iced tea with sugar; or a soft drink; or unsweetened fruit juice and a small package of fruit candy drops.

On Retiring: A whole orange, followed by a big glass of milk or buttermilk.

This regime has been thoroughly tested. It provides easily digested foods, ample fluids, bulk, frequent nourishment, a balanced menu with a minimum of starch and fat, and sufficient sugar to produce quick energy.
