This appears to be a great year for comets, for there are said to be no less than seven now visible with the telescope. At an earlier period in the history of the world such a visitation would have been regarded as the prelude to some wonderful event, but we look upon comets now with a more practical eye, and so long as they keep clear of the orbit of the earth we do not care how many are in sight.

Subscribers continue to send us the circulars with which "green goods" men are flooding the country. It is somewhat remarkable that this barefaced fraud should still continue to flourish as it appears to do. One would imagine that a determined effort on the part of the authorities of the two countries would soon put the scamps who practise this dishonest game behind the bars. It is probably the fact, however, that no one feels disposed to make much effort to protect dishonest men from themselves. Anyone receiving a circular of this description should send it at once to Mr. Percy Sherwood, superintendent of Dominion police, Ottawa, who has already done a good deal to make it unpleasant for these swindlers.

THE NEW HOTEL.

Some of our newspaper friends, and, to a certain extent, the hotel committee have fallen into an error in supposing that the fate of the scheme depended upon the support of those fortunate people among us who can, if they will, invest one thousand dollars at a time, and as soon as the committee had asked many such people for their support and seemed to be at the limit of their tether in that direction they came back to the starting stake and had to receive an impetus before they started off for pastures new in another direction. It is not the great events which constitute a man's life—it is the aggregate of all the minor events with the greater ones standing out more conspicuously as mile stones on the way; it is the constant dropping of small drops which wears away the stone; it is the saving of pennies which makes a pound, and it is often the small leaks which sink the ship. So, too, it is usually the small offerings which make up the bulk of a fund, and in the present instance it will probably be the smaller amounts that will give us the longed-for hotel.

If one person cannot subscribe even one hundred dollars, why cannot four friends club together and take one share. And why should not the clerks of one establishment subscribe towards one or more shares in small amounts, so that in the list of shareholders there would appear such a name as "the employees of Mark Wright & Co.," or "the employees of John Newson," or "of McKinnon & McLean," or of any dry goods firm or of any other kind of business.

It is wonderful how powerful a force is personal interest. We all know how it impresses a process upon our memory to do a thing, instead of simply knowing how a thing is done, and it is personal interest which always "booms" an undertaking. Think, then, how much more likely the hotel to become an accomplished fact if a great number of individuals have personal interest in it. Each one will work for its success, each one will write letters to their friends lauding its advantages, and spreading the knowledge of its existence and competition in this direction will lead to the same result as it always leads to if not abused, that is to say, increase of revenue.

What better Christmas box could a wealthy firm give its employees than a share in the hotel, and what better gift could a well-to-do father give his children!

Among the innumerable advantages of a popular summer resort may be mentioned this: Frequently talented people resort thither for a rest. Money-making by their talents for the time is abeyance, yet from time to time, to pass the time, or to assist certain deserving objects, these artists appear in public and treat the public to lectures, musical performances and dramatic representations, such as under ordinary circumstances little out of the way places such as our much beloved Charlottetown would hardly be able to command. As for instance, remember how Mrs. Scott Siddons came here not very many months ago to rest in the quiet retreats of the North River, where she came so in public appearance upon more than one occasion. With her was Mr. Waller, the talented pianist, who gave two recitals long to be remembered by lovers of music among us.

It is not seldom that strangers among us, to occupy their time, undertake schemes for the public good. Rev. Hylton Stewart it was who, years ago, conducted the concert for the benefit of a hospital, and it was only the indifference was in contrast with his interest that a hospital did not rise from that beginning. Last year an American gentleman visiting Charlottetown and "killing time" here worked hard to bring the Press Association to the island, and the loss of the advertisement we missed by the failure of his work is chargeable in some degree to the partial indifference and slow action of our people. To have such people among us is worth something, and the prospective summer hotel will bring them to us.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Note Problem.

SIR.—When and from whom are we to have a decision regarding the accuracy of the solutions to that "note problem?" What is the problem, anyway? If it is a decision of whether or not compound interest should be computed on a note drawn as it was, I presume any lawyer, bank official or money lender in the city could quickly tell you the island statutes say on that point. If, however, it is only a matter of computing simple interest, any school boy should be as well able to do it as the clerks in the employ of the Journal of Commerce. There has been only a few cents difference in the figures of our local solutions to it, and these doubtless arise from the different ways the time has been computed. For example: the interest on $245.00 for three months would be $4.55, but for 93 days (April 30, May 31, June 30, and July 2) it would be $4.64, which difference of 9 cents at the start would make 28 cents difference in the final figures.

As a matter of fact, from April 1st, 1875, till December 1st, 1892 (both days inclusive), there are 6,456 days, which, by the problem, have been divided into eight periods of 93, 42, 235, 612, 2,170, 2,178, 468, and 657 days respectively. Here calculation has been made for leap years, and interest worked each time by days:

Table with columns for date, interest, and total amount. Includes entries for April 1, 1875; July 2, 1875; August 13, 1875; April 4, 1876; Dec 7, 1877; Nov 16, 1883; Nov 2, 1889; Feb 13, 1891; Dec 1, 1892.

"I Was a Stranger, and—"

SIR.—I notice in this morning's Guardian that a stranger from Nova Scotia staggered down Richmond Street on Wednesday evening last. On nearing Zion Church he noticed a light in the basement. "He proceeded into the prayer meeting, not noticing the steps he went down them on the run and fell. Some persons from the inside came out and carried him up and laid him on the sidewalk." They called for the police. What a burlesque the above incident is on our boasted Christianity! Is it any wonder that many of our people consider that, out of forms and ceremonies very little good is to be found in the churches. But comment is unnecessary.

Dec. 2, 1892.

To the Librarians. SIR.—The grocers respectfully request that you will send in your orders this evening or early to-morrow, in order to have your goods delivered in good condition, and enable the poor drivers to get home before Sunday morning. The streets are very bad. Telephone communication.
