BUSINESS AT LLOYD'S

OR GIN, HISTORY, AND METHOD OF REGISTERING.

Coffee-House That Became Famous—Its Evolution into a Place of Business—Curious Claims and Insurance Policies.

The word Lloyd or Lloyd's is familiar in commercial circles language in Europe, being everywhere more or less distinctly associated with merchant shipping. The principal commercial publication of one of the most inland marts in Europe is known as the Pesther-Lloyd. The phrase A1 is used by schoolboys, and by thousands who never saw the heavy oblong book known as "Lloyd's Shipping Register," who perhaps never heard of Lloyd's at all. Lloyd's is, in most people's mind in connection with shipping, but just what it is few but ship-owners and others connected with ocean shipping know. For the information of Canadians in particular, and the world in general, Mr. Henry Fry, the agent of Lloyd's for Quebec district, has in a pamphlet described the origin, history and methods of Lloyd's. What Lloyd's is and is not is well told in Mr. Fry's pamphlet by describing its origin. About the middle of the seventeenth century a coffee house was established in London by a Greek whom an English-Turkey merchant took home with him on one of his voyages. Within a few years coffee houses became so popular and numerous that they were suppressed by a proclamation, but the order was revoked on the petition of traders, who found them useful as places at which they could meet on common ground and talk to one another on business or politics, or literature, or social affairs. The taverns which had been used for this purpose were superseded by the coffee houses, which became fashionable meeting places for all classes and conditions of men. Addison and Steele wrote in the Spectator and Tatler about the different coffee houses and the clubs which met at them, and Macauley, in his History of England, referred to them as an institution which must be counted with by the historians. It is not improbable that the oldest political or literary or art club in England if traced to its origin, would find it in the meeting of some political artist or literary man at "Tom's," or "Will's," of "Button's" or the "Rainbow."

The Royal Society of London for Improving National Knowledge, better known now as the Royal Society, originated in 1660 in the gathering of a few learned men at the Bull's Head tavern, in Cheapside, a name which recalls another club held at a tavern earlier still, which may also be called "Royal," since Prince Hal was a member, and Falstaff and with Shakespeare for its reporter it deserves the name of the "Wits," perhaps even more than "Will's." One of these coffee houses on Dover street, kept by a man named Edward Lloyd, was a favorite resort of "sailor men." The date is known because of an advertisement in the London Gazette for a thief who had stolen some watches, the reward for information to be paid at Lloyd's. In 1692 Lloyd removed his coffee house to Lombard street, in the very centre of that portion of the old city of London most frequented by merchants of the highest class, and these became his clientele. To make his coffee house popular with sailors, Lloyd kept up a correspondence, principally about shipping and sailors with home and foreign ports, which his clients were allowed to read. This proved the germ of "Lloyd's list" of "arrivals," "departures," "sighting," "reporting," and movements generally of ships the world over, and is the foundation of the large corporation of to-day. In 1696 Lloyd's News, a tri-weekly in which appeared all information received either by letter or report, was published, but for reporting some proceedings in the House of Lords it was suppressed, and thirty years later started again under the name of Lloyd's List, now a daily. Lloyd's coffee house became such a favorite resort for all interested in shipping that people with shipping business to do found it most convenient to do it there, and thus underwriters and brokers arranging for the insurance of ships' cargoes or freights came to arrange all their transactions there, where the earliest and most reliable news was received. Before the last quarter of the eighteenth century the principle use of this coffee house was as a place of business for the transaction of marine business, and the place being too small, larger quarters were found in the Pope's Head Alley.

It is significant both of the world-wide importance at that time of London as a port that a Dutchman and a Russian of German extraction were the prominent members of the coffee house who organized "Lloyd's" as an association and established it in suitable rooms in the Royal Exchange. The association of underwriters as formed was exactly of the same character and aims and with the same government as the Corn Exchange Association of this city was and still is, though now an auxillary of the Board of Trade. The Corn Exchange is an association managed by a committee which furnishes a meeting place for merchants who do business in grain, flour, provisions, etc., and in transporting and insuring them. Buyers, and sellers, grain brokers, underwriters, forwarders, railway agents meet on 'Change daily between 12 and 1 o'clock and, with market reports and newspapers and telegraph instruments and tickers at their service, do business with one another or talk it over. The association does no business as an association; the farthest it goes in interference is to lay down certain rules and regulations by which disputes between members are settled, and by penalty of expulsion it enforces its agreements upon its members. "Lloyd's" is a similar association of underwriters and brokers, which gathers news by means of agents at the principal ports of all the movements of shipping and accidents thereto. These agents superintend the valuation of wrecks and their cargoes, report sales of wrecked ships and goods, and investigate frauds in the interest of the association. With all this information thus gathered before them, the underwriters of "Lloyd's" and ship-brokers meet one another at "Lloyd's" arrange insurance of ships, cargoes and freights, and settlements also. There is still a coffee room in connection with "Lloyd's" and a room for captains to meet in, but these, of course, are now merely incidental and subsidiary to this great association one of the greatest of such corporations in the world, it having been incorporated in 1871. "Lloyd's" register of shipping, before referred to as being associated with "Lloyd's" in the minds of most people, is an entirely distinct association, which grew out of a registry of shipping established in London in 1760. The chairman of "Lloyd's" is on its committee, but that is the only connection, unless, indeed, it is a namesake of "Lloyd's." It appoints surveyors at British and colonial ports, who survey and class ships when building. Ninety per cent. of all the ships built in the United Kingdom have been surveyed and classed by this society, whose reports, published in annual volumes and in semi-monthly supplements, are absolute necessities to underwriters. A good deal of curious and interesting information is given by Mr. Fry in regard to the history of "Lloyd's," such as the insuring at "Lloyd's" in 1813 of the life of Napoleon for one month at three guineas per cent., and also that of a famous race horse, "Ormonde," which belonged to the Duke of Westminster; and about the settlement of claims arising out of accidents owing to strange causes, such as the thrust of a sword fish, the "whack" of a whale's tail, a sounding rod dropped too often in one spot going through the bottom of an iron ship, a red-hot iron put in a pitch pot to fumigate the steerage, causing the loss of a vessel and 471 lives, a single equinoctial gale in the Atlantic that wrecked 300 ships in the North Atlantic. The risks taken at Lloyd's are estimated as from 250 to 350 million pounds sterling per annum, and the premiums at between three and four million.—Montreal Witness.

A SUFFERING ARMY.
Borne Down by a Relentless Foe.

The great army of sufferers from various rheumatic conditions joyfully welcome Chase's K. & L. Pills because the foster parents of their aches and pains are the Kidneys, which, on account of a diseased condition, are unable to relieve the blood of uric acid poison, which is deposited in the joints, producing on the first provocation irritating aches and pains in the bones, joints and muscles. The reason that Chase's Pills relieve and cure is their wonderful power in restoring degenerate Kidneys to a perfect and natural condition, without which the system is supplied with blood teeming with poison that adds fuel to the fire of rheumatic complaints, demoralizing the entire system and rendering it liable to a complication of diseases terminating in dropsy, diabetes, or Bright's disease. A pleasant feature of these Pills is that, while most Kidney remedies encourage constipation, Chase's relieve and cure it. In nearly all rheumatic attacks there exists constipation of the bowels, which is easily over-come by Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills; in fact, they are a perfect cure for constipation. This is endorsed by Edward Garrett, editor and proprietor of the Bradford, Ont., Weekly Witness, and thousands of others. One pill a dose. 25 cents a box. The cheapest medicine on earth. Sold by all dealers. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

London People Have Become USED To The Great Specific Remedy.

LONDON, Aug. 19—The despatch from Detroit with reference to the cure from Brights disease and blood poisoning of Mr. Langley, of this city, by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, has recalled the wonderful facts of the case to the citizens, among Mr. Langley is well known. It has reminded them that Mrs. Langley among others also made an equally wonderful recovery. The use of the pills however has become so universal here, and there have been so many instances in which they have been used with beneficial results that a similar case would hardly excite as much interest now as it did then when the medicine was less known.
