Alberton Pays Last Tribute To Fire Chief Stephen Burke

ALBERTON — Places of honor in Alberton closed Saturday morning as citizens assembled at the Sacred Heart Church to pay their last tribute to Stephen M. Burke. Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Gerald Steele...

TIMING

Hon. Hubert McNeill, minister of health, who was not a member of the 1956 Legislature, said: 'Last time I did not know what was going on and neither do two percent of the people. At least if we go down to Alberton we will be because we were above-board about our dealings.'

HAD OPPORTUNITY

He said members of the Opposition had an opportunity Friday night to vote against the bill, but they did not. He said the vote was 10-10, and remarked, 'If members said what is within them they would agree it (the increase) is needed.'

NOT WELL RECEIVED

The Liberal leader said 'if the government had come out with a surplus and then a new sales and gas tax the increase would be OK; but under present conditions it will not be well received. I feel it is wrong to bring this in now with a deficit.'

Commenting on the convention, for which organization he was only a week previous, Mr. Cutcliffe said last night it was a huge success and he was proud that at least twice as many communities will be represented next year.

PRISON GUARD

In return for the release of the guard, Gerard Caisy, 28, was sentenced to 18 months in jail at about a plane Saturday for Montreal and St. Vincent de Paul prison.

Two hours before dawn, after comparative quiet of some hours, the prisoners in the block of Webster, in the block 3 started a demonstration—smashing windows, burning beds, breaking glass, and MOUNTIES CONVERGE.

TALKS TO REPORTERS

Warden Hall, whom Webster said maintained "the most incredible calm and decision," said the conference when he was able. He chose his words carefully, saying at one stage: 'Yes, I would say the men are very dangerous.'

building, grabbed guard Dennis, who was supervising the return of prisoners to their cells, and bound him. Each prisoner had a knife, apparently fashioned from prison kitchen-ware.

But meanwhile, prisoners in the main cell block, a huge concrete building up a grassy slope from the prison entrance, refused to return to their cells until the auditorium business was cleaned up.

CLEANED CELLS

Scant hours after dawn the offending prisoners were cleaning their cubicles, heavy with the acrid smell of tear gas and burning.

Men of the Royal Canadian Engineers, a company of which relieved the RCMP at 8:30 a.m., spaced themselves along the lawn outside the dormitory block, they carried automatic weapons and bayonets.

Warden Hall said of the drama's aftermath, 'police had managed to contain the complete population of some 100 convicts and the damage was minor.'

There were other sightings that held as the crisis developed—a priest was unsuccessful in consoling the prisoners; one prisoner was injured when a gasoline bomb was thrown as the block was taken; Sydney, 48, 50, 52, 54, 56, 58, 60, 62, 64, 66, 68, 70, 72, 74, 76, 78, 80, 82, 84, 86, 88, 90, 92, 94, 96, 98, 100.

Webster told of the extreme nervousness of the prisoners in the block, filling up to the cell block line after line. They whined more than a score tear gas bombs among the rioting prisoners and got 'in the return from the' side. It was 'sight before the' light was quelled and a long 'single-file line of prisoners' marched under heavy escort into an exercise yard, surrounded by police and barbed wire.

In the pre-dawn darkness, the atmosphere at the bastion was electric, with thudding bombs, shattering glass and the deafening shouting of prisoners. At one point, an officer-phonied Vancouver city police for more gas, telling the force to 'turn on their sirens' on the way out to the penitentiary. 12 miles east of Vancouver. In their time of waiting to go on duty, officers spun the chambers of their revolvers. Most of the RCMP force had been called from bed and looked sleepy-eyed in the chill, dark morning.

Webster's tapes Saturday introduced a sub-plot into the dramatic night. They told how John Peters, 28, formerly in Kingston, Ont., penitentiary and now in the Essondale mental hospital near here, was brought to the prison, and how the trio wanted Webster to fight for Peters' cause, saying he wasn't a 'nut.'

Peters was moved to B.C. after five Kingston prison officers were held for 28 hours Aug. 1, 1961, by two men. It was learned reliably that Peters was one of the most violent help Peters get a medical examination.

The trouble started Friday when the trio slipped from a window of the prison auditorium. They were spotted and shots were fired above them. The men ran back to the

Girl Guide Annual Meeting Sees Honors Presented

Lady Baden-Powell, the world chief guide sent warm greetings and will wishes to the 29th annual meeting of the Prince Edward Island Council, Girl Guides of Canada held Saturday at the Charlottetown YMCA.

The word leader, in a letter to the provincial commissioner, Mrs. Gordon Avard, expressed her best wishes to the Island guides and bid them every success at their annual gathering.

Powell also expressed her warm feelings toward the Guides and members of the province for who was at this time two years ago that she had been in hospital in Charlottetown recovering from serious illness.

The meeting which followed a special commissioners' training school saw many guides from across the province in attendance, and also the presentation of honors to several of the girls.

GOLD COORDS PRESENTED The highest honor that can be bestowed upon a guide, the Gold Cord, was presented to two girls at the meeting.

Linda Kines of Charlottetown and Estelle Bernard of Summerside accepted their award at a special ceremony Saturday afternoon. Making the presentations was Mrs. F. W. Hyndman, wife of the lieutenant-governor.

Mary Blair, Crown Guides introduced by Mrs. R. Royau; all received their warrants. THANKS GIVEN The commissioners thanked Mrs. Eric Pound for all her time and effort spent in organizing the training period immediately preceding the annual meeting. Appreciation was also extended to Mrs. Fred MacMillan and her hospitality committee.

A characteristic of our age is reluctance to be different from everyone else," said Mrs. Eugene MacDonald as she addressed the annual meeting. Under the topic "On Having a Sense of Values" and elaborating on the point of choosing what is right she said, "Our problem of choice is increased for other reasons. If everyone is doing it we hesitate to do or think—otherwise and often we are led to follow the mediocrity of the crowd."

We must find quiet and solitude and think for ourselves to decide what is right and to reach our own sense of values in this manner," she said. TELLS OF TRIP Land Ranger Betty Carol Matheson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Matheson, Southport, gave an illustrated talk on her trip to Alabama and Button Bay, Vermont, where she represented P.E.I. at a Hostess Council of the Deep South and a Scout Round Up. She displayed many souvenirs to the group at the end of the meeting.

The Girl Guides serving were: Betty Shefferson, Heather Armstrong, Beth McLeod, Sandra Mahon, Barbara Flanagan, Helen Kelly and Diane Griffin.

Mr. Matheson rose again to say the Premier had compared him with the only perfect man in history but "I am not perfect and I admit it. You think you are the acme of everything that is good and right... The rest of his remarks were lost in a chorus of shouts from the government benches as the Premier rose to protest what he apparently had not clearly heard. To the Press Gallery it appeared the Premier had misunderstood the words used. Later Premier Shaw visited the gallery to say he resented remarks which "downgraded me."

Mr. Matheson earlier had been a "serious misconception by the newspapers" of the voting on the estimates the night before. However, he said he did not blame the reporters as there were many members of the House who did not fully understand either.

He said the increases had not been given in the estimates, "this is the operative act and it was wrongly brought in. It should have been produced before the estimates."

Commenting on the convention, for which organization he was only a week previous, Mr. Cutcliffe said last night it was a huge success and he was proud that at least twice as many communities will be represented next year.

Red Cross provincial commissioner of the Prince Edward Island First Aid Association was held Saturday, April 20, at Parkdale Junior High School. Shows is Miss L. Arsenault.

Set. Eric T. Tedford, RCMP, gave a talk on highway traffic safety. Phillip Barlow, motor vehicle examiner, discussed training and treatment. Particular stress was given the subject of training, in which it was pointed out that the members of each group will be given thorough training by the Red Cross headquarters staff, and then it would be the responsibility of these leaders to pass on their knowledge to other members of their group.

Each group has been given the responsibility of providing a properly trained person to be on hand to render assistance at all times. Activities, such as sporting events, aquatic meals, picnics and also to entertain guests in an equipped Red Cross station.

During the day the delegates received a similar talk on a wide range of subjects related to the field of first aid, plus first aid certificates. Dr. W. R. Stewart, chairman of first aid services.

FRAISES NEWCOMERS TORONTO (CP)—Because of post-war immigration, Canada no longer is a "stodgy, boring, largely Presbyterian community," Alan Jarvis, executive director of the Canadian Conference of the Arts, said here Friday. Jarvis, who is returning to the opening session of a Metropolitan Toronto Social Planning Council conference, said new Canadians have done the country "nothing but good."
