Frondizi Regime Totters As Peron Backers Strike

COMPARING NOTES on marketing problems are Reid Sangster, left, P.E.I. marketing director, and James MacNeil, Halifax, director of marketing for Nova Scotia. Looking on is George MacDonald, president of the P.E.I. Federation of Agriculture. Both Mr. MacNeil and Mr. Sangster spoke at a Federation of Agriculture marketing meeting held in Montgomery Hall last night.

FEDERATION DISCUSSES ISSUE

Meetings Are Requested On Marketing Problems

A motion to the effect that the Federation of Agriculture sponsor commodity meetings in an effect to overcome some of the marketing problems, was passed at a Federation of Agriculture marketing meeting held last night in Montgomery Hall. The meeting was chaired by George MacDonald, president of the federation.

In moving the motion, Daniel Gass of Cornwall asked that the federation sponsor a meeting of the livestock producers and let them consider problems in their own field.

"If they can't solve their own problems, how do they expect anyone else to," Mr. Gass stated.

It was pointed out that there was a need for education in problems where producers are involved, with one member noting that Island cattle can compare with any other province with the exception of the Prairies.

"Farmers don't know too much about grading their cattle and are shipping before they are ready," it was stated.

It was suggested that the public should get an insight into these marketing problems by way of a television panel and following that a meeting could be held.

New Annan Plant Foreman Is Killed

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

Percy Winfred Clark, 56, of Lot 16, was killed almost instantly yesterday morning about 11:30 when he was caught between a truck load of potatoes and a fork lift-truck in Seeman Bros. (Canada) Ltd. plant at New Annan where he was employed as day shift foreman.

Mr. Clark was standing at the rear of a stationary truck loaded with potatoes, which had backed in on the floor of the plant, where he was inspecting the potatoes for quality as they were being unloaded by the truck driver, Eric Wigmore of Bradalbane.

The lift-truck, a small four-wheel vehicle used for transporting produce within the plant, was driven by Montgomery Owen of Kensington and was proceeding with a pallet loaded with 1,600 pounds of potatoes in the front of the production line when the accident occurred.

Mr. Owen stated he shouted when he realized the pallet (a wooden box that holds about 16 hundredweight of potatoes) was going to strike him. However the victim apparently didn't realize the danger and was pinned between the tail gate of the truck and the pallet.

Dr. Henry Moyse was called to the plant and pronounced Clark dead on arrival. The Summerside detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, under the direction of Cpl. Calvin Bungay investigated and summoned the coroner, Dr. W. E. Callaghan, who empanelled a jury and ordered an inquest which was adjourned to a date to be set later.

Members of the jury are James Johnston, Freetown (foreman); Paul Paynter, French River; Gerald McCarville, Kensington; Donald Bealrsto, Malpeque; Elmer Foiland, Bradalbane; James Simmons, Kensington and Donald Reeves, Kensington.

Mr. Clark, who was unmarried, made his home in Lot 16 where he resided with a cousin, Winfred Clark but during the winter months he was living in Kensington close to the frozen food plant where he was a very popular employee. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Abel Clark of Central Lot 16 and is survived by two brothers, Ivan, Belmont Lot 16, and Sydney, London, Ont. Two brothers, Herman and Earl, predeceased him.

12,000-Ton Sale Of Uranium Near

OTTAWA (CP) — Edmund Morris, Trade Minister Hees' parliamentary secretary, said Thursday night it is expected that Britain will complete negotiations with Canada in late April for the purchase of 12,000 tons of Canadian uranium.

Mr. Morris gave no details as to the price the British will pay for the uranium or the dates it will be delivered.

His statement indicated that talks with the British on renegotiation of a 1957 U.K. commitment to purchase the 12,000 tons of uranium have been completed or are nearing completion.

Under the 1957 commitment Britain was to pay $192,000,000 for the uranium at a price of $8 a pound, with deliveries to take place in 1963-66.

Early last year Britain asked that the contract be renegotiated. It did so on grounds that its uranium requirements have been greatly reduced.

Mr. Morris made the announcement in the Commons during debate on a $2,400,000 supplementary estimate for Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, the trade department agency which buys and sells uranium.

The money will be used by Eldorado to purchase uranium concentrates from Macassa Gold Mines Limited until late in April.

Mr. Morris said this will enable the company's mine to remain in operation until late April "by which time it is expected that negotiations will be completed with the United Kingdom for he purchase of 12,000 tons of uranium."

Bank Rate Slips In Great Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's bank rate came down by one-half per cent to five per cent Thursday—the second reduction this month — catching London's financial quarters completely by surprise.

Not since 1932 has the bank rate been changed twice in a month.

With only 17 days to go to Britain's annual budget, there was immediate speculation the cut might foreshadow a gradual relaxation of the government's tight economic policies. These were introduced last July to counter inflation and get Britain's dwindling gold and foreign currency holdings onto firmer ground.

Thursday's cut brought the rate back to the level ruling before Chancellor of the Exchequer Selwyn Lloyd introduced an extra "little budget" last July which brought with it a two - per - cent increase in the bank rate, making it seven per cent at the hight of the economic squeeze.

But the present level of five per cent still is high compared with other leading international financial centres.

'GUESTS' OUST NEWLYWEDS

LIVONIA, Mich. (AP)—Determined not to be evicted from their honeymoon cottage, newlyweds Charles and Sandra Guttersohn were searching Thursday for a new anti-skunk weapon.

"We've tried everything," they said, in relating how the first month of their marriage has been occupied with efforts to oust a pack of unwanted guests from beneath the house.

Everything seemed all right when they bought the home in this Detroit suburb, a few weeks before their marriage on Feb. 24.

But the noise of repairing and decorating apparently aroused the skunks, who responded in the manner conventional to the species.

"The odor got so bad we couldn't go near the place for two weeks," said Charles, 21. "But after the wedding, we went ahead with plans to move in."

Again the skunks retaliated, driving the Guttersohns, in frustration and pyjamas, into the street one morning.

Since theg, the young couple has been forced to spend most of the time at the homes of their parents, who live close by but, fortunately, out of skunk range.

Union Critics Must Join Now

LONDON (Reuters) — Two brothers who made a film movie satirizing unions were told by the high court here Thursday they had to join a union themselves.

John and Roy Boulting produced and directed I'm All Right, Jack, which poked fun at both labor and management in a British factory.

They brought an action described as a "test case" against the Association of Cinematograph, Television and Allied Technichians Union in which they claimed they did not have to be members of the union, although they had once been members.

The union maintained that because the brothers were their own employees, in such capacities as editor or technician, as well as employers they should be eligible for membership.

Military Backing Said Wavering

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Arturo Frondizi sped to Government House early today as his four-year regime appeared to be tottering under renewed pressure from Argentina's military leaders.

His post-midnight dash came after followers of exiled dictator Juean Peron launched a national strike.

The Peronists were making a last-ditch move to regain election triumphs that Frondizi wiped out at the command of the nation's military bosses.

Frondizi was host at a glittering banquet for Britain's visiting Prince Philip while top military leaders were meeting across town to discuss what appeared to be a final decision on whether to force Frondizi out.

Word leaked out that irate navy leaders had resumed their demands that Frondizi resign, army and air force chiefs were reported wavering.

SLAP DOWN APPEALS

Party after party slapped down Frondizi's appeals for participation in a coalition and hopes for achieving this compromise began to fade in the confusion amid political and military ranks.

The Peron — hating military chiefs were faced with the consequences of the general strike called by Peronist unions planning to use their biggest weapon —the Argentine working man— to regain the election triumphs.

Nearly 2,000,000 workers were under call to walk out today. Responsible quarters expressed fears a widespread Peronist strike might lead to the

Philip Visits Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Prince Philip arrived Thursday amid Argentina's worst political crisis in years.

More than 1,000 persons cheered at the airport when President Arturo Frondizi, taking a break from efforts to patch together a Coalition, shook hands with the touring husband of Queen Elizabeth.

It was almost as though there was no crisis at all.

Prince Philip plans a 10-day stay before returning to England.

Vendetta Debate Rejected

LONDON (Reuters) — The government made it clear Thursday it hasn't the time for a parliamentary debate on newspaper publisher Lord Beaverbrook's alleged "vendetta" with the Royal Family.

Two days ago Conservative legislator Sir Martin Lindsay proposed a motion of censure because of 70 allegedly adverse comments in newspapers owned by Lord Beaverbrook.

But Lindsay got the cold shoulder Thursday in the House of Commons when he asked for time to debate his censure motion.

Conservative leader Iain MacLeod, who arranges the agenda, replied:

"I do not exactly leap to Lord Beaverbrook's defence, but I am bound to say I cannot find an opportunity in government time for such a motion."

SAYS IT'S 'NONSENSE'

Beaverbrook's Daily Express Thursday termed Lindsay's accusations as "nonsense, nonsense, nonsense" and described his motion as "a silly and ignorant attack."

At the same time, the rival Daily Mirror editorially patted Philip on the back for calling The Daily Express a "bloody awful newspaper."

The Daily Mirror said the Queen's husband was "completely within his bloody rights and good luck to him."

Low Moss Price Same As P.E.I. House Is Told

HALIFAX — (CP) — Prices obtained for Irish moss in Pictou County were lower than received in other parts of Nova Scotia but were the same as received in Prince Edward Island, Agriculture Minister Hallburton informed the legislature Thursday.

He provided the information at the request of Peter Nicholson (L — Annapolis West) who had said Wednesday Irish moss harvesters in Pictou County had complained about the price received from Marine Colloids Limiter, a firm which has an exclusive permit to buy Irish moss along the north shore.

Prices along the north shore and in P.E.I. were between five and seven cents a pound and were as high as 10 cents in other parts of Nova Scotia said Mr. Haliburton. The reason was the lower quality of the moss.

B.C. Fisherman Blasts MacLean

VANCOUVER (CP) — The United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.) Thursday demanded the recall of federal Fisheries Minister J. A. MacLean and his replacement by someone "interested in the fishing industry."

Delegates unanimously endorsed a resolution calling upon Prime Minister Diefenbaker to replace the minister.

Vancouver gillnetter Joe Yarmish said Mr. MacLean is an apple grower from Prince Edward Island and "that's why he's giving us so much apple sauce."

One delegate said Mr. MacLean seems totally unconcerned with British Columbia fishermen and has taken no action to build up the province's salmon industry.

Rochford Street Residents Object To Site For Building

A letter, signed by 21 tenants and property owners in the Rochford Street area of Charlottetown, objecting to the proposed site of the new Provincial Provincial Building, will be sent to Premier Walter R. Shaw and Provincial Secretary J. David Stewart, chairman of the government committee that recommended the site for the proposed building.

A copy of the letter has been sent to the editor of the Guardian. It reads as follows:

"Dear Sir: We wish to correct an erroneous impression which seems to be prevalent in the minds of many citizens, concerning the tenants and property owners in the West Kent School proposed site for the new Provincial Building. People seem to think we do not object to the suggested expropriation.

"We the undersigned, tenants and property owners in the Rochford Street area are most determined that we do not want to give up our property and be forced to move or buy new homes. Many of these citizens have lived there for a great many years and we feel that there are other sites which would be far more appropriate for this new building rather than destroy many valuable and fine homes.

"In order that there will be no mistaking our opinions we are sending a copy of this letter to the Premier and the Provincail Secretary."

The letter is signed by George J. Rogers, Mrs. H.B. Large, W. S. Pierce, Mrs. J. David Walker, George Gallant, Daniel L. Rice, C.F. Hine, Edna M. Hine, C.J. Dillon, Mrs. C.J. Eichmann's Appeal Opens

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Adolf Eichmann's lawyer Thursday sought a "proper court" trial in Germany or redress through the United Nations as the convicted mass murderer's appeal opened here.

Defence counsel Robert Servatius also hinted that U.S. officials may have tampered with a wartime Nazi document relating to Eichmann's role in the gassing of Jews.

The West German lawyer also asked Israel's supreme court to call as a witness former Nazi interior ministry official Hans Globke, now a senior aide to West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

OAS Commandos Launch Attacks On Gendarmes

CP from Reuters-AP

ALGIERS — Right-wing Secret Army Organization commandos launched three heavy attacks Thursday night against French gendarmes in an apparent bid to drive the security police out of Algeria.

Commandos of the European Secret Army blasted the gendarmes with bazookas, grenades mortars and machine - guns. Authorities said the terrorists made an all-out attempt to capture any key points but carried out heavy harassing operations.

It appeared the Secret Army was unable to mount an attack with enough support to hold any vantage point and limited itself to hit-and-run tactics.

The main attacks were made on the government delegation-general building, the summer palace and a downtown tunnel — three points strongly guarded by gendarmes.

The initial heavy firing died down after about two hours but broke out again almost as violently later.

And in Oran, a Secret Army gang seized the office of the newspaper L'Echo d'Oran, after disarming a six - man police guard.

BOMB BUILDING

At the delegation - general building, the attack was preceded by the explosion of five plastic bombs. The commando squad then let loose a barrage of grenades against the building, on a hilltop overlooking Algiers harbor.

The gendarmes raked the area with machine gun fire. They also replied with a barrage of gunfire when they were attacked at the tunnel running beneath the university in central Algiers.

The commandos opened their attack on the tunnel with two bazooka shells but were driven back when the gendarmes drove their armored car straight at them, spraying heavy machine-gun fire.

Earlier in the day, European gunmen raided a depot in Algiers' harbor, stealing 88 cases of dynamite.

12-Cent Subsidy On Butter To Cut Price To Consumer

OTTAWA (CP)—A consumer subsidy to drop the price of butter by 12 cents a pound effective May 1 was announced by the government Thursday.

It is aimed at halting the sharp decline in consumption which left the government stuck with about 165,000,000 pounds of surplus butter at March 1. It is held in storage warehouses across the country.

Defence Minister Harkness, acting for Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton who is ill, announced the plan in the commons.

Basically, it calls for the government to pay the dairy farmer 64 cents a pound the present support level—and sell to butter wholesalers for 52 cents a pound.

Formerly, the government bought and sold butter at the 64-cent level, which it guarantees as the farmers' minimum return.

The new move will cost the public treasury an estimated $34,500,000 a year. During the fiscal year ended March 31, 1961, the government spent $15,900,000 on support of dairy products, $2,400,000 of it for butter.

But it is hoped that the new plan will pay off by reducing the gap between production and consumption and also moving some of the huge stocks now in storage which Ottawa had little hope of selling under the old plan.

Last year Canadian farmers produced a record 350,000,000 pounds of butter but consumption totalled only 275,000,000 pounds. It was the fourth straight year in which consumption fell from the previous year.

The slump in sales has been accelerating since the government boosted the support level to 64 cents a pound from 58 cents in 1958. Meanwhile sales of margarine, the vegetable-oil butter substitute which sells at about 30 cents less, have rocketed.

Butter now sells at retail stores in eastern Canada for about 68 cents a pound and in the west for around 71 cents. Most of it is produced in Ontario and Quebec.

HANNAM 'DELIGHTED'

H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said he is "delighted" with the subsidy.

He said it will undoubtedly mean a better market for dairy farmers.

W. K. St. John, executive secretary of the National Dairy Council, said the subsidy "should be of some benefit," although the council had urged 14 cents as the minimum which would be effective.
