WEST ROYALTY NOTES.

The winter's passing from us now, while you come right along, And, like an honest shoemaker, the sun is waxing strong. The "beautiful" is vanishing, the robin's try to sing, "Old probabilities" declares that these are signs of spring.

Our roads are breaking up, and the sleighing is, of course, getting bad, though we should not grumble, for so far, the travelling has been very good.

The small boy is in his glory, for the smelts are here in larger numbers than ever, during this winter, and, judging by the hauls they make—they are running a little Klondike of their own.

Some time ago there appeared an item referring to the pretty girls of West Royalty. The said girls must be very slack, seeing the place abounds with bachelors. By the by the later seem to spend all their spare time in driving around with their trotters, perhaps they are only cautious and think that,

T'were better ne'er to know the tender smile, Than miss it when its love is needed most;

To sail without a rudder all the while, Than, having one, lose it while tempest toss'd."

Several of our most popular residents left for the Klondike some time ago. The latest reports they send are to the effect that the trip as far as B. C., was made in safety, and all were preparing to leave there for the "diggings."

A touching incident occurred in Vancouver, where a dog belonging to one of the Islanders, got a glimpse of his old master from the train. With a howl of joy the poor animal sprang towards his former owner, breaking his chain and almost falling under the moving wheels in his haste to carress his old friend.

The members of the Mayflower division of G. F.'s gave several bright entertainments during the winter and we hope to have the pleasure of attending another before the spring is over.

COVEHEAD NOTES.

The people of this vicinity have taken advantage of the good roads and fine weather by hauling their wood, longers, mud, etc.

Peter McGrath and Thomas Ready have hauled a large quantity of mussel mud this winter.

We are glad to hear that Mr. Rardon who has been ill for some time past is now able to be around again.

Our school is progressing rapidly under the management of Mr. McGuigan who proves to be a careful and efficient teacher.

Mr. Thomas Woldridge erected a beautiful barn last summer and intends going into the pork raising in the spring. We wish Mr. Woldridge success.

Covehead Road boasts of some fine trotting horses among which the most noted are: Parkside, owned by Thomas Ready, Flying Jib, owned by Thomas Woldridge and Montrose owned by Robert Webster.

A RESIDENT.

—What will the Guardian do about this? "It came out in the debate in the House of Commons on Thursday night that Mr. Domville, M. P. was financially interested in the shipment of whiskey into the far Northwest. Mr. Domville is a Liberal supporter of the Laurier Government." By the way, has that false statement about Sir Charles Tupper and the whiskey permits for the Yukon ever been corrected by the Liberal press?

THE SERVANT QUESTION.

How Much Worry and Vexation May Be Saved the Mistress.

"Much of the cry against the tyranny and impudence of servants comes from those who exercise their authority in a disagreeable way and who do not know the first principles of successful management," argues Jane Lowry Cummings in a thoughtful paper on "Managing the Servants," in The Woman's Home Companion.

"Every woman has her own theory of how the housework should be done, but it is not always necessary to insist upon having it done in her way provided it is done satisfactorily in another way. Bridget may come well recommended and be discharged at the end of a week or a month because her method is not what her mistress considers the proper one. Wherever she goes she is likely to be confronted with new methods and blamed for doing her work after a system which she has laboriously acquired at her last situation. She is a machine upon which each succeeding mistress imposes her own pet theories, to the exclusion of all others. Without reference to results she is compelled to change her method of handling the broom, building fires, attending to the bedchambers, etc., and because she is awkward at doing things in a new way she is probably upbraided and told that she does not know her business. If Bridget is quick tempered, she may resent this injustice, and then she is discharged without a 'character,' and her late mistress has another opportunity of confiding to her friends her troubles over the everlasting 'servant girl problem.'

"But Bridget is the one to be pitied. She is confronted by the more difficult problem of how to conform to the rules and whims of every new mistress under whose orders she may find herself. She knows how to do her work if let alone, and she proves this if she is fortunate enough to be employed by a housekeeper who is broad minded and tactful enough to give her a fair chance. The woman who does not interfere unnecessarily with the work of her servants—who judges their work by results, who speaks to them gently and treats them with consideration—seldom has trouble in getting faithful servants and keeping them. The display of a little tact, a little judgment, a little kindness, will often save the housekeeper much useless worry and vexation of spirit."

"I suppose," said Mr. Staybolt, "that most of us, as between wealth with idleness and poverty with occupation, would choose wealth, but I am not so sure that I would myself. In fact, the older I grow the more I am convinced that next to the love of those we hold dearest, of parents, wives and children, the greatest boon to man is labor. Poverty with occupation would imply the power to labor, and that would mean freedom from want. And occupation means also freedom from care. The man who becomes interested in his work forgets his troubles, and he finds besides a pleasure in seeing the results of his labor take form and grow, the pleasure of attainment.

"The man who does not find enjoyment in labor misses the most satisfactory of life's pleasures."—New York Sun.

FEATHERY.

You've heard of the girl in the Gainsborough hat, With its plumes of snowy white? Now, I know a blond maiden more artless than that. With feathers as black as night. A plume laden hat with an upturned rim And a red rose, like her cheek. The tall pompons nod, and the velvety rim Shades a face Madonna meek.

Is it true that "a kiss is far better than that?" I'm dumb as I win her smile. The feathers are beckoning, while pipapat My heart keeps throbbing the while. Ten tips gently nodding, and each one #curl— I vow I am dizzy with bliss! 'Tis an audacious hat; she's a mute, modest girl— Shall I woo with words or a kiss?

Now, the lass in the Gainsborough hat who was kissed By the poet in the song Simply looked so coquettish he could not resist, But this lassie might think it wrong. Still, I'll follow his method of courting and try To steal a draft from her lips. She is timid and chaste and alarmingly shy— The girl with bold ostrich tips.

The chapeau, top heavy, almost hides her eyes Of fond, forgetmenot blue. Oh, will she be angry or show sad surprise When I dare begin to woo? Heigh! something soft swept my cheek, I declare— And my yet innocent lips! But if it were kisses I'm—quite unaware; I'll wear 'twas only the tips! —New Orleans Times-Democrat.
