JUDGE REDDIN.

THERE is deep regret throughout Charlottetown for the loss of Judge Reddin; and we feel sure that regret will spread throughout the Province, particularly in Kings County, with the sad news of his unexpected death. Pneumonia has been very prevalent this year, and has, despite the exercise of the highest skill of our physicians, carried off several victims. Of these Judge Reddin is the most prominent. Born in the year 1829, a son of the late Dennis Reddin, Esquire, of this city, Dennis O'Meara Reddin received an excellent education in St. Andrew's College and at Quebec Seminary, Full of genuine Irish wit and bon homie, he was a general favorite in Charlottetown; and, after completing his legal studies with the late Sir Robert Hodgson, he was speedily marked for promotion in public office. In 1852, he became Solicitor General of this Province, and he filled this high position with ability during several terms. He was also Attorney and Advocate-General for one term, during which he conducted the business of the office and the Crown cases before the courts—notably the trial of the murderer Dowey—with tact and success. For nine years he was a member of the Board of Education and for a number of years he was law clerk to the Legislature. On the 23rd of June, 1873, just previous to the entry of Prince Edward Island into the Confederation he was appointed Judge of the County Court of Kings County. Since then he has filled the duties of this responsible position to the satisfaction of the public. The geniality of his manner and the kindliness of his character won him friends among all classes and conditions of the people. Early in life he married a daughter of the late Alexander Brown, Esquire, Principal of the Central Academy, and he leaves, with his respected wife, six children to mourn their loss and to keep his memory green. These include Messrs Dennis O'Meara and George Reddin of the firm of Reddin Bros., Mrs. Creamer, wife of Dr. Creamer, and Mrs. W. S. Bagnall (both in New York) Mrs. M. W. Murphy and Miss Annie Reddin—all of whom have the sincere sympathy of the public in this time of sorrow.

SIR ADOLPHE CHAPLEAU.

By the death of Sir Adolphe Chapleau, Canada has lost her most eloquent French-Canadian, and one whose name was for several years a tower of strength to the Liberal Conservative Party in Quebec. Chapleau launched into politics at the age of nineteen years. He was a born leader of men and soon took a foremost position among his compatriots After taking part in the struggle for confederation he entered the Provincial Legislature, having been elected for his native county of Terbonne, by acclamation, at the age of twenty-seven years. His career in the Legislature was a brilliant one. In 1837 he became a member of the Executive Council with the portfolio of Solicitor General; and in 1874, the Government of which he was a member having been defeated, he was chosen leader of the Opposition. Upon the fall of the Joly Administration in 1879, Chapleau formed an administration at the head of which he displayed tact and ability. In the general election of 1891, he swept the Province, carrying fifty-three out of sixty-five of the constituencies. This was the crown of his Provincial career. He accepted office at Ottawa under Sir John Macdonald in 1882, and remained a member of the Liberal-Conservative Government until his promotion to the office of Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, in 1892. He received the decoration of St Gregory the Great in 1891, that of the Legion of Honour of France in 1892, and was made a knight Commander of the Order of St Michael and St George in 1896. He was a great orator and a great representative French Canadian

FOOD FOR KLONDIKERS—Pat Burns, the cattle king of Kootenay, has a big project on hand, as he is about to attempt to control the meat supply of the north. Cattle will be shipped to Vancouver from the interior, and then forwarded to the north and driven in to the Yukon by way of the Dalton trail. On reaching Five Fingers, steamboats will be in readiness to transfer the cattle to Dawson City where they will arrive about the first week in July. To give some idea of the magnitude of the enterprise, one contract alone, for carrying part only of these cattle, amounts to $40,000. This conteact was entered into with F M Rattenbury of the Bennett, Lake & Klondike Navigation Company, who is supplying the steamers for the enterprise. It is expected that by conducting the business on this huge scale the supply af meat delivered at Dawson will be both ample for the demands and much more reasonable in price than heretofore.—Montreal Star.

GENIUS OF THE ROADSIDE.

How a Statesman's Rustic Protege Was Helped on Way to Fame.

"The off horse has lost a shoe from the right fore foot," said the coachman, as he drew up opposite a wayside blacksmith shop. "Shall I stop and have it replaced?"

"By all means," replied the owner of the curricle, Senator Aaron Burr of New York, "it is always the proper thing to keep your horses well shod, and, besides, I am only too glad of a chance to stretch my legs after so long a drive. While the smith is busy I will stroll to the top of one of these beautiful Ulster county hills."

When he returned half an hour later, he happened to glance at the side of a barn near the shop and saw with surprise an accurate though hurriedly drawn charcoal picture of his curricle and horses.

"Who drew that?" he inquired.

"That little frouzy head yonder," replied the blacksmith, pointing to a boy in homespun who was chopping wood in the dooryard opposite as if his whole mind was occupied with his task.

"Halloo, my lad," called Burr, and when the little fellow looked up with the air of one who has been caught in some misdemeanor he added pleasantly, "If ever you want to change your occupation and see life, just put a clean shirt in your bundle and go to this address in New York," and he crossed the road to hand the boy a slip of paper.

The team was soon on its homeward way, and in a short time the incident passed from the crowded mind of Aaron Burr. Months afterward, as he sat at breakfast, a servant brought him a package containing a homemade clean shirt and said that a boy at the door had asked her to deliver it as an all sufficient introduction. But the senator could not understand its significance, so he sent for the boy, whom he at once recognized as the youthful genius of the roadside.

With all his faults, Burr was a generous man at heart, and he spared neither pains nor expense to give the youth the best of instruction in his chosen profession. From an artistic point of view the student became very successful as the great painter Vanderlyn, although he lived a life of poverty.

He painted the portraits of Aaron Burr and his daughter, Theodosia, from which were taken the fine engravings by which we know them. He died near the spot where he drew the picture of the waiting team. His career is a noble monument to the better side of the nature of his benefactor, a nature not wholly devoid of sweetness and light, although darkened by frequent clouds through his mature life and finally eclipsed in the murky gloom of a purely selfish ambition.—Atlanta Constitution.

GOLFING PHILOLOGY.

Derivation of Curious Terms Which Belong to the Game.

To the enthusiastic golfer the game is never out of season. Fitted with "arctic" goloshes and a warm knitted waistcoat, he is seen upon the links on many a day which appears inclement to the uninitiated. Perhaps this disregard of snow and ice is natural when one comes to look up the derivation of golfing terms. Many of the words come directly from the Icelandic languages, others have synonyms in Gaelic or Swedish.

The tee, or little nodule of gravel or earth from which the golfer strikes off his ball, at the beginning of each link, is derived from "tia," an Icelandic verb signifying "to point out."

Again, "golf" itself evidently comes from the Scandinavian "kolf," a club, the Gaelic form being "colb" and the Icelandic form being "kolfr" (a clapper of a bell or bulb).

The "links" come straight from the Swedish "lynka," meaning a "twist" or "crook;" hence its application to the windings of the coast, the sandy, barren ground called "links" in Scotland.

To "put" (pronounced "putt") comes from the Gaelic "put," signifying to push or throw, as when the useful "putter" propels the golf ball from the "putting green" into the hole.

The "lofter" is derived from the Icelandic "loft"—that is, shy or air—a Danish form being "loft" for ceiling or loft.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

BORN

At Franklin, Mass., on May 29th, to Mr. and Mrs. Ackley, a daughter.

MARRIED.

At the residence of the bride's mother, Brookfield, on the 1st inst., by Rev. T. B. Reagh, Samuel B. Newson, of Kingston, to Frank E Drake, of Brookfield.

DIED.

On Monday, June 12th., in this city, of pneumonia, D. O'M. Reddin, in the 68th year of his age. Funeral to St. Dunstan's Cathedral, on Wednesday morning, at 9.45 o'clock. Friends and acquaintances will please accept this notice.

At Calgary, on the 11th June, entered into rest, in the 23rd year of her age, Frances May Walker, beloved wife of Frederick W. Ings, and daughter of Hon. T. W. Dodd, Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island.

Funeral notice will appear later.

At Rosebery, June 8th, after a lingering illness, John Morrison, second son of Murdoch and Ann Morrison, aged 22 years.

On the 8th inst, at Long Creek, West River, Flora Winnifred, infant daughter of Frederick and Sarah Stretch.

I looked into the darkened room,
And saw the little waxen form so fair,
The little dimpled hand so still.
The soft light rings of sunny hair.
The tender mother that met the kiss
Of death with such a smile of bliss.

But to that baby soul itself,
If "someone" knew what bliss is given,
To take but one sweet sip of earth,
Then fall asleep to wake in heaven.
To come and go like summer's breath,
And smile alike in life and death.

On the 20th ult, at St Peter's Bay, James MacKay, Esq., in the 76th year of his age. The deceased gentleman was widely known and highly esteemed by the whole community. From far and near came a great crowd to escort his mortal remains to their last resting place. He had been in the magistracy for many years also road commissioner and his name was everywhere a synonym of integrity and honorable conduct. He was one of our most intelligent and prosperous farmers. His neighbours speak his praises as a man of kind and obliging spirit. The church in which he was always a regular and devout worshipper will miss his venerable form from its accustomed place but especially will his own family forever cherish his memory as a loving and indulgent father.

He leaves two sons and one daughter to whom we extend our sincere sympathy.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS AGAIN

Conductor Hogg tells The Story of His Rescue from Diabetes.

TORONTO, June 13—(Special) Mr. H. Hogg, the well known and popular street railway conductor (No. 107) who has been cured of a very severe case of Diabates, by Dodd's Kidney Pills, has written as follows to Dodd's Medicine Co., Limited.

"My sufferings extended over a period of three years, and grew worse every day. I could get nothing to cure Diabetes, nor to purify my blood. Finally, the dizziness so overpowered me, and I grew so emaciated and weak, that I had to quit work.

"A friend advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I laughed at him, for I had tried so many remedies, only to be disappointed that I had lost hope. However I did try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Thank God, six boxes cured me entirely."

I have been frequently told that "Dry Goodmen" try to persuade buyers from inspecting my goods.

It is easy to guess why they do this—and I sincerely hope they will continue in that course, for it only tends to make the shrewd buyer so much eagar to know what I am selling at low prices.

I employ no salesmen, sell only to gilt edge buyers, and my only terms are cash.

Housekeepers will find it to their advantage to inspect my wrappers and skirts

See the widely known "King Diamond Skirts" at such a low figure.

Buyers will save shoe walking and money by trading with me.

WATCHES

THE watch trade has been rather fluctuating of late, first the price went up, after a long period of low prices, now the prices have dropped again, whether because of war or greater variety of production we cannot say, but the fact remains that you can buy from us a reliable timekeeper cheaper than ever before, in fact that there is no need to buy shoddy goods at all.

If you want a good and also the cheapest watch for the money, we recommend a good movement in a nickel case instead of a poor one in a fine looking colored case that will only wear a very short time.
