

Morganatic Marriage.

THE ROYAL FAMILY OF ENGLAND INSULTED BY DUKE LOUIS OF HESSE—THE PROPOSED LEFT-HANDED MARRIAGE DEEPLY RESENTED—SENSATION IN COURT CIRCLES.

A great stir has been caused in London by the announcement of the morganatic matrimonial intentions of Louis IV., Grand Duke of Hesse. The official paper of Darmstadt is silent upon the subject, and the semi-official press has hastened to ridicule the report.

The Grand Duke has, however, stirred up a VERITABLE HORNET'S NEST by his proposed matrimonial venture, for the entire royal family of England unite in resenting the proposal as a slight upon the memory of the Princess Alice, the first wife of the Grand Duke, and almost an insult to the Princess Beatrice, to whom he was all but betrothed.

WITH SCANT COURTESY to her host, Grand Duke Louis. This sudden flitting is now accounted for by the statement that the Grand Duke announced his morganatic intention to the select party of royal personages assembled at his daughter's wedding, and that the crown Princess Victoria immediately took umbrage at what she deemed disrespectful to two of her sisters and left the Grand Duke's Court and capital in an indignant anger.

It is now stated that Queen Victoria, who had accepted the Grand Duke's proposal for the hand of her youngest daughter, Beatrice, conditionally upon the passage by the British Parliament of the bill legalizing marriage between widowers and their deceased wife's sisters, and who took Beatrice to young Princess Victoria's wedding to afford an interview between her and her semi-betrothed, when she was made acquainted with the manner in which the Grand Duke proposed to enjoy family ties while waiting for Parliamentary relief, refused to allow Beatrice to speak to him and hastened her departure home.

He Reflected.

A Buffalo man, who has been in the ground coffee and spice business for many years, was waited upon in his office the other day by his foreman, who had been with him for almost a decade.

"Well, Henry?" he queried. "I was thinking, sir, that I ought to have more salary."

"More salary! Why, what's the matter now?"

"Why, sir, that last new adulteration for the coffee is so injurious to my health, that I can't chance it any more for the old salary."

"Why, man alive, how unreasonable you are!" exclaimed the dealer, as he raised his spectacles to the top of his bald head. "If you can't stand grinding the stuff, how must it affect those who drink our coffee! Just reflect for a moment and see how inconsistent you are!"

Henry returned to the third floor, and although he can't exactly figure how it was done, he firmly believes that it was convinced wrong end to.—Wall Street News.

Says the Banker's Magazine, in commenting on J. B. Keene's failure: "His career has simply been a repetition of the history of all professional speculators who are constantly trading. They cannot wait until they see a good opportunity to go in on good judgment and hold for a profit, but must trade every day 'for a turn,' until they lose all sight of values, part with good judgment and trust blindly to their good luck by which they made their money. When this changes, as it always does, bad luck sticks closer and longer than fortune did; but they keep on fighting the inevitable and hoping for a turn again, until they are swamped. Keene was always a bold operator, and has often staked his all on a turn of the market. In this way he is reputed to have made five millions in California, and seven millions more in New York, only to lose it all in the same way. He is now where he began in California—a poor man—ending just where Little and Drew did, in Wall Street, where every professional speculator ends his career, unless he stops short and retires before his good luck deserts him."

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 5th St., New York May 16, 1882. MESSRS. J. C. AYER & Co., Gentlemen: Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and diarrhoeal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of several other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured in the same manner, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good. Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla
