COTTON, HIGHER.—It is reported that the price of grey cotton has advanced 10 per cent.

For restoring the color, thickening the growth, and beautifying the hair, and for preventing baldness, Hall's Hair Restorer is unsurpassed.

A DIVIDEND.—The Maritime Bank liquidators began paying the second dividend of 30 cents to holders of Maritime Bank notes, yesterday. Their first dividend, payment of which was begun on 25th October, amounted to 50 cents. Under the two dividends about $98,900 will be paid over to note-holders.—St. John Telegraph.

TELEPHONIC.—The Nova Scotia Telephone company, doing business in Parrsboro, refuses for the present, to take any more orders for telephones. The Nova Scotia company are now operating in the vicinity of 380 telephones; they have outside connexion with St. Martin's and Bothessy. Besides these offices the company have exchanges in Fredericton, Moncton and Woodstock.

MOTHERS who have delicate children can see them daily improve and gain in flesh and strength by giving them that perfect food and medicine, Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. Dr. W. A. Hulbert, of Salisbury, Ills., says: "I have used Scott's Emulsion in cases of scrofula and debility. Results most gratifying. My little patients take it with pleasure." Sold by all Druggists; 50c. and $1.00.

C. P. R. TELEGRAPH.—The Telegraph reports that the wires of the C. P. R. telegraph company will soon be stretched through St. John, and in a few days will have reached the offices on Prince William St., which is now being prepared to receive them. The cable to Canso, in connection with the company's system, will not be completed until about August next, nevertheless cable business will be attended to as soon as the St. John office is opened.

A BRAVE GIRL.—John W. Purcell, of Cheshire, was saved from drowning, late Wednesday afternoon, by Miss Louise Helford. Miss Helford is about 18, small of stature, and looks two or three years younger. Purcell was fishing near the house of Miss Helford's stepfather, when the ice broke, letting him in in 20 feet of water. His outcries attracted the attention of Miss Helford and her brother, 13 years old. Purcell called to them, saying he could not get out alive, and had them take a good-bye to his wife and children. The girl tore a board from the fence and approached him. At the risk of her own life she pushed the board near enough for him to reach. The boy cut the clothes line from the poles and she cast it across the hole in the ice. Purcell grasped the line and was pulled out, entirely exhausted, by her brother. Purcell wore a long overcoat and rubber boots making it difficult for him to help himself.

PRACTICAL JOKER PLAYS DETECTIVE.—A Fredericton man, says a Chatham paper, thought to celebrate his arrival in Chatham by playing a huge practical joke on one of our shopkeepers. So, entering the store, he announced himself as detective Roberts, and informed our friend that he had a warrant for his arrest, at the same time producing the alleged legal document. Miramichi took in the situation at a glance, but he looked very grave, said he would have to submit, and begged for a few minutes in which to make preparations for his departure. Detective Roberts graciously acceded to the prayer of the prisoner, and said he would wait for him in the store. The prisoner went to a magistrate, got a warrant for the false detective's arrest at a fraud, and sent a policeman after him. Detective Roberts was arrested, taken to the lockup, placed behind the bars of one of the sweet-scented cages of that institution, and kept there two hours. He has sworn off playing practical jokes on Miramichi.

Notes and Clippings.

—Moncton Times: P. E. Island oats sold in lots in Halifax the other day at 40 and 45 cents per bushel. Of course it would be a great advantage to our farmers to have access to the markets of the United States, where, according to the official report, the average price of oats this year is but 28 cents.

—The Toronto Globe, which has authority to speak for the opposition party, says that unrestricted reciprocity has not been abandoned. Regarding the Laurier circular it says: "Mr. Laurier did recently issue a circular. That document, instead of proposing a retreat from the unrestricted reciprocity position, proposes a new forward movement. The restrictionists are, of course, anxious to know what move the Liberal party intend. We beg to assure them that the knowledge will not add to their peace of mind. Before the coming season ends their understanding that the Liberals have not the slightest intention to take back track will be complete." The St. John Sun remarks that the country will wait with a tolerable amount of patience until the proper time for the disclosure of the next set of political opinions with which the Liberals, so called, are to be fitted out.

—There are so many deserted farms in the State of Maine, that at a recent meeting of Grangers, ex-Governor Robie said: "It is a grave question whether the State of Maine would not be better off if it should encourage the occupancy of its deserted farms, by an entire exemption from taxation of land and stock to those farmers who may cultivate them."

That beautiful glossy sheen, so much admired in hair, can be secured by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. There is nothing better than this preparation for strengthening the scalp and keeping it free from dandruff and itching eruptions.

Burial of a Veteran.

A HERO OF THE CHARGE OF THE LIGHT BRIGADE BURIED WITH MILITARY HONORS.

The Herald reports the funeral at Halifax of the late Paymaster Sergeant Daniel Wilson, one of the men who rode into "the valley of death" at Balaklava, and publishes the following poem:

DANIEL WILSON, DIED JANUARY 19TH, 1889.
One of the brave six hundred,
Who rode through the Russian guns—
While the world looked on, and wondered
At the deed of her valiant sons—
Has answered the last best
That on soldier cars can fall,
And folded his hands in rest
At the Great Commander's call—
Not as his hero comrades fell
When horses and riders made
A tangled heap—under shot and shell
In the charge of the Light Brigade!
Where the red hot mortars growled,
Who has not heard the story
Of the brave six hundred who rode
Into death—for England's glory?
He had part in that gallant race—
When duty clasped hands with death,
And so few came back to the starting place
Unharm'd by the foe's manly scathe.
Only a lad—but an English lad
For the old land's honor keen—
What was his life if its loss could add
To the glory of home and queen?
Where the gallant leaders led
He followed. Death passed him by,
Though under the starlight—gold and dead,
His chieftains and comrades lie;
And he came to our western land,
And died in our town today.
Almost the last of the glorious band
Who rode back through the blood-stained way.
Let the coward flee, and the timid lag—
He faced the howling thunder;
To follow his leader, and guard "the flag"
He rode through the death rain under
One of old England's hero sons.
May she never such children lack;
Cover his breast to the roll of guns
With the dear old Union Jack.
And fame can offer no dearer wreath
Than this—when his grave is made—
"He rode that day through the valley of death
In the charge of the Light Brigade!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Inmates of the Poorhouse.

SIR,—I wonder whether any of the readers of THE EXAMINER who are living in peace and plenty, surrounded by the comforts of a home in which they breathe an atmosphere of love and joy, have ever asked themselves how it would seem to be at once bereft of home and friends, and to find themselves infirm and helpless, without any means of support, and altogether alone in the world, with every door, except that of the poorhouse, closed against them, there to live day in and day out in a dreary monotony which must be felt in order to be realized—a monotony which can scarcely be said to be broken until the death angel comes. This is a sad picture to contemplate, but for the inmates of the Poorhouse in Charlottetown a still sadder reality; and the bare floors and bare walls and general aspect of poverty which pervades the place are altogether too suggestive of the appropriateness of the name which the institution bears. I think a visit to the place will be sufficient to convince any one of the truth of this. It is not a place on which the city can look with pride and say, "See what we have done for our aged, helpless and homeless poor." It does seem as if something ought to be done to make life a little pleasanter for those whose lot is, at the best, such an unlovely and unenviable one, and whose time on earth must, at the longest, be but short. Is the city so poor that nothing better than tin cups can be afforded them at the table, and that all the surroundings must be in harmony with the appearance of the dingy tin pints. It ought to be sufficient to call the attention of those in power to the matter, in order to have the condition of things bettered in some degree at least. And apart from the duty of the Government with regard to it, might not an appeal be made to Him who owns as Master Him who "went about doing good," and who said: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me." We sigh for great missions sometimes, forgetting that He has said, "The poor ye have always with you," and forgetting into how many darkened lives we can let fall a gleam of sunshine that will be reflected back in our own. Think how much an occasional visit, a warm handclasp, a word of cheer, a little chat about the outside world, a word of Him who is the Way to that upper and better one—would do for these lonely ones whose remnant of life, bereft of the light of love, and the faces of loved ones, is, as far as this world is concerned, a veritable "sitting in darkness." It is not necessary to be rich in order to do this, and this done, other things would, perhaps, suggest themselves. And if thus the dirge in songs of these poor old hearts could be changed into something like a song, would not that be reward enough?

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind. [April '88]
