Geddie Memorial Service Honours War Dead

An exceptionally large congregation gathered around the Geddie Memorial Church at New London on Sunday afternoon to honor the dead of two wars, whose names inscribed on two monuments erected there. Under cloudless skies, amid the beauties of a spot especially endowed by nature, and further enhanced by the ministrations of a faithful community —the impressive service was conducted by Rev. D. A. Campbell.

Led by the United Church choir of Kensington with Rev. L. M. Murray at the organ, the service opened with the congregation singing, "Unto the Hills", followed by prayer by Mr. Campbell. The scripture lesson was read by Rev. L. M. Murray, the lesson was from Hebrews 11 and 12. Following the singing of "O God of Love, O King of Peace" a timely and thought-provoking address was delivered by Rev. G. S. Stevens, who first commended the people of the surrounding communities for their faithfulness in perpetuating the memory of their dead in this annual service of worship and praise.

Mr. Stevens referred to the old prophecy foretelling the day when "nation shall not lift up sword against nation" and went on to say that as the implements of war shall be refashioned to make implements of peace, so shall there be a new and higher heroism, recognized for the saving rather than the taking of human life. Elaborating on the theme, the speaker described a painting representing Peace which showed a cannon, wasting and rusting away. He said the prophet's picture of Peace was more beautiful for in it the instruments of war were transformed into instruments for new and better service". The fact that conflict and strife may be stirred up by trifling and amazing things was illustrated by a number of incidents.

Mr. Stevens recalled that when the Armistice was signed a few years ago, "it was hoped that the great era foretold by the prophet might be ushered in, but in spite of the present conflict now raging in Korea, I believe the day will come when peace shall cover the earth". An encouraging example of peace between nations, is the statue, well-known as "The Christ of the Andes." It was made of melted cannon on the border between Argentine and Chile at the conclusion of war between the two countries, and signifies peace to all who see it.

The anthem, "Fight the Good Fight" was beautifully rendered by the choir. The names of the fallen were read from the two monuments by Rev. Mr. Campbell and Rev. Mr. Stevens, and was followed by two minutes silence.

"Nearer, My God to Thee" was sung without accompaniment by the Kensington Male Chorus, composed of Rev. L. M. Murray, Messrs Harold Laird, Wilfred Taylor, Roscoe Walker, Charles McKay, Russel McKay, Fred Parker.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Stevens on behalf of the committee in charge, Rev. Mr. Campbell thanked all who helped with the service, especially the choir from Kensington and Rev. Mr. Stevens for his timely words. While the offering was being received, the hymn, "O, God Our Help in Ages Past" was sung, the plate men were: Messrs Eustace Reeves, Archie Campbell, Leaman Caseley, Archie Johnstone, Robert Dunning, Elmor MacKay, Ivan Duggan and Arthur Paynter.

Following "The King", the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Cross of Malpeque.

Beautiful floral offerings placed by relatives lay at the base of the monuments. —Bur.
