Changes of Dominion Rifle Ranges.

Regulations Governing Application of the Preferential Clause.

OTTAWA, July 8.—Mr. Mills, nephew of the Hon. David Mills, has been appointed postmaster of the House of Commons, to succeed Mr. Stansfield who has been superannuated.

A meeting of the Cabinet was held yesterday when considerable routine business was disposed of including the adoption of new customs regulations governing the working of the preferential clause as it applies to Great Britain and New South Wales.

The Minister of Militia has decided to change the Rideau Rifle Range to Rockcliffe and efforts will be made to have the new range ready for the D. R. A. at the end of next month.

NO TREATY WANTED.

Correct View of a Great London Journal.

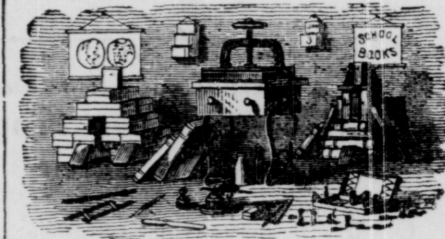

LONDON, July 8.—The Standard editorially reviewing the visit of the colonial premiers disapproves of any treaty or convention for common defence between the colonies and Great Britain. It believes there is not a single colony that would not proffer aid if occasion should arise where the honor of England was involved. Therefore, it says, "Let the bond be an unwritten one. There is far more vitality and endurance in absolutely free attachment."

NEWS FROM TORONTO.

Sir Oliver Will Probably Leave the Government—Sir George Very Low.

TORONTO, July 8.—Archbishop Walsh has sailed to England en route for Rome. An evening paper says that it has been decided that Sir Oliver Mowat is to be the next Lieut.-Governor of Ontario. The appointment would have been made in May but for the illness of Sir George Kirkpatrick whose term was already expired. Sir George Kirkpatrick is now very low.

OBITUARY.

A short time ago the death of John A. McLaine, Esq., was chronicled, and it demands more than passing notice. The news of his sudden death while still possessing extraordinary vigor for his years, both physical and mental, fell like a thunderbolt over the village, causing sorrow coextensive with his wide acquaintance.

The deceased was born in Charlottetown on the 7th March, 1829. He removed to St. Peter's Bay when thirteen years of age and engaged as a clerk in the store of his uncle, the late Hugh McLean, Esq.; then doing business at the north side of St. Peter's Bay. He remained with his uncle several years, after which he started business on his own account near his uncle's old stand. Here for more than twenty years he was actively engaged in general business, shipbuilding and tanning, when he removed to St. Peter's village, where for over twenty years he has been engaged in business and lobster packing as well as sub-collector of customs for that port.

A few years after he commenced business, on March 23rd, 1853, he was married to Miss Maggie Rankin, daughter of the late Major Rankin, to whom were born six children, three of whom died in infancy. Another son, Mr. C. D. McLaine, died a few years ago in Oregon, after being very successful in the West. To Mr. McLaine his wife and two children survive—Mrs. James Hall, of St. Paul, and a son, Mr. Donald McLaine, who resides near the village home of St. Peter's.

It is needless to mention the extreme loss his family has sustained by the departure of a most kind husband and loving father. The church to which he belongs has lost a member and office-bearer it will be hard to replace. About twenty-seven years ago he united with the Presbyterian Church under the pastorate of the Rev. H. Crawford, and some years after was elected to the office of elder. From that time he was most earnest in advancing the interests of the church, both by personal work and liberal giving. His punctual and regular attendance will be long remembered not only at the regular church services but in the prayer meeting where his earnest appeals have been productive of much good, and "while he is dead will yet truly speak" to the hearts and consciences of many. In the Sabbath School he was most faithful and persevering, being superintendent for many years and a general favorite with the young. The community can scarcely realize that never again will they see that well known form among them or receive a grasp of that hand the pressure of which was an index to his warm-hearted and generous disposition. His courteous and gentlemanly manner, endeared him not only to those of his own denomination, but to all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. A word as to his ministrations to the sick. In this particular he had no superior; no storm or difficulty prevented him from being at the bedside of the sick and dying, and many have parted this life, strengthened by his prayers and cheered by the promises from God's word held out to them by him, while to not a few has been carried with his own hands delicacies which supported life for a time if they did not always restore health. In a word, one has been taken from the community who, humanly speaking, is hard to spare. God's ways are truly mysterious. Nor will we understand until the shadows clear away. But the memory of such a man is blessed. To such there is no death; but in the words of the poet "what seems so is but transition."
