AN IMPORTANT ARREST.—The arrest of a suspicious character upon his general appearance, movements or companionship, without waiting until he has robbed a traveller, fired a house, or murdered a fellow-man, is an important function of a shrewd detective. Even more important is the arrest of a disease, which, if not checked, will blight and destroy a human life. The frequent cough, loss of appetite, general languor or debility, pallid skin, and bodily aches and pains, announce the approach of pulmonary consumption, which is promptly arrested and permanently cured by Dr. Pierce's golden medical discovery. DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

PROHIBITION

A LIVELY DEBATE

With No Result.

OTTAWA, June 13.

It was a hot day in the House. The thermometer high up and the atmosphere oppressive. Either from this or some other cause the House did a large amount of work, pretty thoroughly clearing the order paper of the private bills.

The debate on Jamieson's prohibition resolution was resumed and speeches made by several members. The House divided on the amendment for the repeal of the Scott Act. Yeas, 37; nays, 145. On the wine and beer amendment, the vote stood: for, 48; against, 136. Mr. Sproule moved an amendment in favor of compensation if prohibition became an accomplished fact, and spoke strongly in favor of his amendment.

Mr. Fisher moved in amendment that the right time for the discussion of compensation was when a prohibitory measure was before the House. On a vote being taken, there were: for, 91; against, 88. The amendment being added to the main motion, and division being taken, it stood: for, 70; against, 112. So all motions and amendments went by the board, and the matter stands just as before the debate.

Parnellism and Crime.

LONDON, June 13.

The Times this morning has another article on "Parnellism and Crime," tracing a connection between Frank Byrne and Mr. Parnell. It claims to have information that it was an opportune remittance from Parnell that enabled Byrne to escape to France, and asks, "Is Mr. Parnell prepared to take steps to put this statement to proof or even to contradict it?"

Fatally Shot.

HAMILTON, June 13.

Beatrice Gillett, a beautiful and very intelligent girl of 16 years, was fatally shot this morning by a lad named Alfred Hancock, a servant of a boarder in her father's house. Hancock picked up a revolver belonging to his master and fired at her, the bullet entering Miss Gillett's right breast. He says he did not know the pistol was loaded.

The Coercion Bill.

LONDON, June 13.

The Coercion Bill debate was resumed in the Commons this evening, and several Home Rule amendments to clause five were voted down. Gladstone suggested that members should not spend any more time in futile discussion, and said it would be better to discuss the weightier points. Dillon protested against this view.

The Havemeyer Sugar Refining Company's sugar houses, at Commercial street, on Long Island, were destroyed by fire early on Sunday morning. The buildings, which covered nearly half an acre of ground, were of brick and were six, eight and ten stories in height. The ten story structures were erected five years ago, at a cost of $400,000. The contents, consisting of 25,000 bbls. of refined sugar, 300,000 gallons of liquid, and valuable machinery, are a total loss. They were worth about $600,000. The fire originated in liquor rooms on the fourth floor.

Acrostic.

Above—the sky is all serene,
Beyond, the fields are clothed in green,
Bunting gaily decks the scene—
On this, their wedding day—
The bridegroom comes proudly erect,
The bride with modesty is deckt.

Resolved their destines to share,
Every heart must wish them joy,
Years of bliss without alloy.
