Tried It With Kittens.
A little lady of 5 who dwells in Park Ridge has an ardent sympathy for superfluous kittens—that is, kittens which have to be drowned. Last week she discovered six wee balls of fur in the woodshed, and instantly the burning question was, "What shall we do with them?"
Her mother and father advocated the usual method of keeping one for Katherine and drowning the others. But little Katherine determined to thwart their plans. She had heard a story how a little baby was left in a basket on a doorstep and how, with the light of dawn, the kind old couple took in the little foundling and reared it as their own child.
Katherine found in the cellar five little fruit baskets. Into each of these she put a kitten, and then, waiting until her mamma had lain down for her afternoon nap, she laid a basket on the doorstep of each of five houses whose owners she regarded as charitable.—Chicago News.

The Advantage of One Eye.
During the Spanish-American war a certain old colonel who had lost an eye at the battle of Gettysburg was very indignant because he was put aside as physically incapacitated when he applied for admission to one of the New York volunteer regiments.
Filled with wrath and chagrin, the colonel journeyed to Washington, bent on having a personal interview with the president. He succeeded in gaining an audience, and the president, after listening to his plea, said kindly: "But, my good Colonel J., you have only one eye!"
"Just so, sir," was the prompt rejoinder, "but can't you see the great advantage of my having only one eye? When I aim my gun, I shan't have to close the other!"
He fought at Santiago.

The Dean in His Nightshirt.
Hugh Pearson always spoke of Dean Stanley as the most absent minded man in the world. He was driving once with him into Palermo. He complained of feeling cold, and as Stanley had his traveling bag with him he advised him to put something extra on. He did so, and both resumed their papers. A loud laugh from some boys suddenly roused Pearson to the realization that Stanley was driving through the streets in his nightshirt, which he had put on over his coat in pure absence of mind.

Experience.
Messenger—Here's a package for you, sir.
Wederly—What is it?
Messenger—I'm not sure, sir, but I think it is a birthday present from your wife.
Wederly—Oh, very well! Just leave the bill, and I'll send a check for the amount around in the morning.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Lots of people claim heaven as their right and yet have not learned how to make any right use of the earth.—Keokuk Gate City.

School Girls' Nerves
Many a pale, weak school girl, suffering the evil effects of an exhausted nervous system, and thin, watery blood, has been fully restored to the vigor and buoyancy of robust health, by using A. W. Chase's Nerve Food. The healthful glow on the cheek and the firmness in the eye tell of the building-up process which is taken place in the body.

TANSTED JUNCTION, P. Q., 12th Aug. 1893.
MESSRS C C RICHARDS & Co.

GENTLEMEN,—I fell from the bridge leading from a platform to a loaded car while assisting my men in unloading a load of grain. The bridge went down as well as the load on my back, and I struck on the ends of the sleepers, causing a serious injury to my leg. Only for its being very fleshy, would have broken it. In an hour could not walk a step. Commenced using MINARD'S LINIMENT, and the third day went to Montreal on business and got about well by the use of a cane. I can sincerely recommend it as the best liniment that I know of in use.
Yours truly,
C. H. GORDON.
