

VICTIMS OF RED "JUSTICE"

Accused of "wilfully murdering" more than 2,000 Chinese babies at Holy Infant Orphanage, Canton, China, two French Canadian nuns, Sister Ste. Marie, left, and Sister St. Alphonse, were sentenced to five-year prison terms at Hong Kong. Three other Canadian nuns were ordered deported. While 6,000 Chinese demanded "revenge", shouting that the sentences were too lenient, Public Prosecutor Cheng Po Chen recited alleged crimes of the "vicious imperialist missionaries". The five Sisters of the Immaculate Conception operated an orphanage which took in abandoned children, the majority of whom were dying from malnutrition before they were put into the nuns' care.

Strange But True

By F. H. MacArthur

Some years ago at the Stafford assizes, a man was indicted for robbery, and in spite of the protests of counsel, pleaded guilty, nor could he be persuaded to offer any other plea until the judge threatened to send him up for speedy execution. He then pleaded not guilty, and his trial proceeded; but owing to defective evidence, he was acquitted.

A laborer of Jamaica was recently murdered and robbed of his life's savings which he carried in a little sack sewed up in his undershirt by two of his pals. The killers made their escape, followed by two dogs belonging to the murdered man. The murderers did everything they could think of to throw the dogs off the trail, but in vain. Finally, they decided to shoot them, but the wily animals kept at a safe distance, all the while howling dreadfully. Reduced to despair, the killers, at the end of four days gave themselves up, were tried, and executed.

A Hindoo who committed murder in India submitted to the penalty imposed upon him by members of his own caste. Namely: that he should sleep for seven years on a bed studded with points of iron resembling nails. At the end of the fifth year his skin was like the hide of an elephant. At that time however, he could sleep like a babe on his "spiked bed." At the end of his probation he liked his bed so well that he continued sleeping on it during the rest of his life.

The celebrated English Judge, Lord Tenterden, died with the words on his lips: "Gentlemen of the Jury you will now consider your verdict."

Habit, Equine. When the fire-fighting engines became motorized, and the horses that drew them put out to pasture, they would form up and charge wildly around the field every time the fire alarm sounded.

A battle took place near the corral, where a number of Gen. Sheridan's worn-out horses were confined. During the height of the battle, they formed in squadrons and charged upon a number of mules, two of which were killed. They next charged on and overthrew a high rail-fence and carried on their war-like actions till the guns were silenced.

Habit, Human. A white infant, captured by the Indians, grew up among them and acquired all their habits and customs, including scalping. Then he was rescued, educated and finally entered the ministry. During the Revolutionary War, he held a pastorate near the scene of the conflict. One day a gentleman saw blood on his shirt, and said, "you are wounded." The clergyman put up his arms and lo, a bloody scalp fell from his bosom! "I couldn't help it," said the victim of early habits. Then he deserted his flock to live among his former friends.

Buccaneer Gibbs, whose name for years was a terror to commerce, was finally captured and executed in New York City. He acknowledged before he died that he could rob a vessel, murder its crew, and then go to bed and sleep like an infant.

In Japan the souls of the dead come back to their old homes once a year, and a festival called the feast of Lanterns is made to welcome them. The lanterns are to light them around. This is an event which brings out everybody. Tables are set with good things to eat — for the spirits of course. The festival lasts three days. Then fires are lighted in all the principal streets, and the people escort their ghost relatives out of the villages, towns and cities with great fanfare.

Just in case any spirits should hide themselves, the people hunt them down by throwing stones on the rooftops, and going through every room armed with sticks which they stab through the air. It would never do — in Japan to suffer the airy visitors to remain in the house.

DO NOT HANDLE

LONDON—(CP)—Once more the Royal Mint will produce gold sovereigns, but not for circulation. The coins will form part of the country's gold reserve, at the same time preserving the craftsmanship necessary in gold minting.

Nash-Reed Wedding

On Saturday afternoon, Nov. 10, at 3 o'clock, in the North Hatley Universalist Church, North Hatley, P. Q., the marriage took place of Beverly Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford James Reed, of North Hatley, and Mr. John Percy Nash, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Munroe Nash, Charlottetown, the Rev. E. Vernon Young officiating. Miss Shirley Prince, of Montreal, played the wedding marches, and "Because", during the signing of the register. Bowls of white baby 'mums, flanked with tall white tapers, decorated the altar, and baskets of bronze, mahogany and yellow 'mums were placed at the entrance of the church.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a gown of white net over taffeta, the bodice and pelerine being fashioned of Chantilly lace, and matching lace jacket having a miniature Elizabethan collar, and long sleeves. Her fingertip-length illusion veil was held by a Queen Anne lace cap and she carried a cascade bouquet of white baby 'mums and ivy. Her only ornament was a necklace of pearls.

Her maid of honor was Miss Betty Black, of Montreal, who was in a gown of gold taffeta having a gold net overskirt finished with a narrow taffeta binding. She wore a matching jacket and a Juliet cap of brown net interwoven with threads of gold and she carried a cascade bouquet of mahogany 'mums and ivy.

Mr. Maurice Blake, of Charlottetown, acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Reed Scowen, of Bishop's University, Lennoxville, and Mr. Douglas Flower, of Sir George Williams College, Montreal.

Mrs. Reed, mother of the bride, was in navy blue chiffon velvet with which she wore a grey feather hat, a moleskin cape and a corsage of yellow Gloria roses.

Mrs. Nash, the groom's mother, wore a gown of tan figured silk with a black hat and accessories, a brown squirrel neckpiece and a corsage of yellow Gloria roses.

The reception was held at Brae Manor Inn, North Hatley, where the rooms were adorned with baskets of 'mums in autumn shades, and Clement's Orchestra was in attendance.

The beautifully appointed bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with the three-tier wedding cake, placed on a stand which was used at the wedding of the bride's paternal grandmother. The cake was encircled with lighted white tapers, each decorated with a white baby 'mum.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Nash left for a short motor trip, the bride wearing for travelling an original model of brown featherweight wool under a brown mouton coat, matching accessories and a large yellow 'mum corsage.

Both the bride and groom attended Mount Allison University in Sackville, N. B. The groom, a member of U.N.T.D., is at present a student at Sir George Williams College, Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Nash have taken up residence in Westmount.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mrs. F. M. Nash, Charlottetown; Private Robert Nash, Camp Borden, Ont., and Miss Deloris Nash, Montreal.
