EXTRAORDINARY FACT.—The Cincinnati Enquirer gives the following account of a singularly romantic episode in life which occurred recently: About six years since, a lady named Mrs. Martha Wood, accompanied by her son, his wife, and a couple of children, arrived in this city from New Bedford, Mass. She stated that she was a widow of some twenty-four years' standing, her husband having lost been mate of a whaler which had been at sea. The family have resided for a great portion of the time on Liberty Street, Mr. Wood, the son, working at his trade, which is that of a cooper.

Yesterday morning, a gray-headed and toll-worn man called at the residence of the family, and seeing Mr. Wood, inquired for the widow, who being called into the room, while gazing intently at the stranger, whose eyes were fixed mournfully upon her, requested to know his business. "Do you not know me, Martha?" said he, and as the sound of his voice, like the memory of an old melody, met her ear, she gave vent to a hysterical cry and fainted in the arms which were opened to receive her.

The tale is soon told. The ship in which he had made his last voyage from New-Bedford was cast away in the South Sea islands, and he was one of the few who escaped a watery grave. After enduring almost unnumbered privations, he succeeded, after thirty years' absence, in reaching his native land. From a brother of his wife, he learned their present location, and arrived here to find her whom he had left a young and blooming bride far advanced in the evening of life, while the infant upon whose lips, when last he saw him, he had imprinted a father's kiss, and who could then scarcely lip his name, was now a stalwart man and the head of a family. How many hopes and fears must have agitated the heart of the old mariner, as he again set foot, after his long pilgrimage, upon his native soil.

A TRIBUTE TO THE ST. LAWRENCE.
 —A correspondent of the N. Y. Courier & Enquirer pays the following eloquent tribute to the River St. Lawrence:—

A river where every mile of its shore is thronged with the wild or beautiful—a river which begins in giant size and retains it, augments it, till it goes out in the gloomy grandeur of the Northern Gulf—a river which now in broken waves leaves the gloaming granite edifice of its islands and islets, more numerous than were the legends by which the oriental story-teller beguiled the anger of the Sultan, and then breathes out in lakes, each one of breadth and volume sufficient to be a famous thing in its own right—a river which woke the melody of Moore, and on which Wolfe floated to his fight of victory—a river such as this will always be a chosen pathway for the tens of thousands of all lands who travel to see the bold and the beautiful.

About six times the usual amount of winter wheat, it is said, has been sown in West Gosport this year.

The best and most conclusive reason for an effect, that we ever remember to have heard, writes a western correspondent, was one given by a one-idea Dutchman, in reply to a friend who remarked, "Why, Hans, you have the most feminine cast of countenance I have ever seen." "Oh, well," was the reply; "I know de reason for dat; mine moder was a woman."

"A BOLD STROKE FOR A HUSBAND."
 —A new method is now adopted by ladies of a "certain age," to obtain hair-dressers. An intellectual, pleasant looking, prettily dressed female, just turned of thirty, invests twenty-five cents in a daguerrotype for her own sweet self, which she carefully drops on the sidewalk of a crowded street. Somebody picks it up; finds out the owner—and marries her of course!

Upon the conclusion of a marriage in a village church, the bridegroom signed the register with "his X mark." The pretty young bride did the same, and then turning to a lady who had known her, as the best scholar in the school, whispered to her, while tears of love and admiration stood in her bright eyes, "He's a dear fellow, Miss, but cannot write a yet. He's going to learn of me, and I would not shame him for the world."

The Great American Hair Tonic.

Bogle's celebrated Hyperion Fluid, for the growth and preservation of the Hair is well known to be without a rival on this continent. Hundreds of imitations have started into the market since the introduction of this unrivalled Hair restorative, and their doom has been sealed, whilst Bogle's Hyperion Hair Fluid, with a popularity never attained by any other article, goes on "conquering and to conquer." There is no malady, which can affect the Hair, but can be cured by this incomparable preparation. To ladies it is invaluable; and on children's heads it lays the foundation of a good head of Hair. It is now patronized by the most distinguished of Great Britain, and commands an extensive sale throughout Europe.

Bogle's Electric Hair Dye converts red or grey hair into a beautiful black, at the moment it is applied, literally dying the hair without staining the skin and leaving the Hair soft and glossy without injuring the texture in the least; a decided superiority over all other Hair dyes.

Bogle's Amio Shaving compound renders that usually unpleasant operation (shaving) a decided luxury.

Bogle's Hebeonina removes Freckles and tan from the face in the shortest possible time, and is acknowledged to be the very best article for beautifying the complexion.

To be had, wholesale or retail, of W. Bogle, 227, Washington Street, Boston, U. S.

And by all Druggists and perfumers throughout the Canada, United States and Great Britain. W. R. WELSH, Agent for P. E. I.
