CONTRACT BRIDGE

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	3♣	Pass
3♦	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♦	Pass	6♥

Opening lead—eight of clubs.

Bridge cannot be played by rote. The unusual situation must be met by unusual action. All the general principles of bidding and play that have been formulated over the years to guide the student of the game have their exceptions.

In bridge language there is no such thing as never; there is no such word as always. A general rule is to be followed in most hands, but where a situation arises which indicates that following the general rule will prove injurious, the player is expected to abandon the usual principle and strike out on his own.

A club was led and South, convinced West did not have the king, decided to play for a cross-ruff. He went up with the ace of clubs, cashed the spade ace, and ruffed a spade.

After leading the ace of diamonds, declarer ruffed a diamond, then a spade, next a diamond, and finally another spade. At this point the situation was:

WEST

SOUTH

The jack of diamonds was led and trumped in dummy, West discarding his club. The club return was taken by East's jack, but West had to trump the trick.

West was forced to lead a heart to declarer's K-Q-10, and the slam was made on the peculiar endplay.

West should have defeated the contract. Instead of conserving his trumps, the usual policy followed by the defenders, he should have ruffed the jack of diamonds even though his partner had the high diamond and dummy was about to ruff.

By reducing his trump length, West would have given his side both a club trick and a trump trick.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Plan Economy Air Service

LONDON (Reuters) — British Overseas Airways Corporation and Scandinavian Airlines System announced Sunday new "economy" services to start April 1 on North Atlantic routes to Canada and the United States.

BOAC said its new service, subject to government approval, will cost about 20 per cent less than current tourist-class transatlantic fares.

The announcement said the reductions will be an added encouragement for Britons to travel to Canada and the U.S. It follows a recent increase of Britain's dollar area tourist allowance to £100.

Specimen fares for the new BOAC service will be: London-New York £90 one way, £162 round trip; London-Montreal £88 one way, $138 17 shillings return.

SAS announced similar reductions in its North Atlantic services.

Nova Scotia Inventor Dies In London, Eng.

LONDON —(AP)— Frederick George Creed, a Nova Scotian who invented the Creed telegraph system, died last week in London. He was 86.

Creed's invention was perfected in a small Glasgow workshop soon after he came to Britain in 1897. The invention, a machine and system for automatic transmission of messages and news by wire, revolutionized communications in the British Isles.

It increased the flow of news to newspapers and today is in use throughout the world. His automatic telegraph machines with keyboards like typewriters were used in London in 1912. The British Post Office later adopted his machines.

Creed swam regularly until he was 84. His first wife died in 1954 after 50 years of marriage. He married again when he was 76.

Creed and Lady Astor started a movement to introduce prohibition to England in 1925 and during the war he was a consultant to the Admiralty on small ship design.

Born in Mill Village, N. S., in 1871, Mr. Creed became a telegraph operator at 15. He conceived his idea for an automatic telegraph printer while working at Iquique, Chile with the Central and South American Telegraph Company.

At 62, he was still an active sports enthusiast, an ardent temperance advocate who was chairman of the "Strength of Britain" movement and had an almost photographic memory.

His brother, the late Jason Creed, introduced the Creed telegraph system to Canada and the United States.

In 1919, Fred Creed patented the seadrome, a series of floating platforms to facilitate transoceanic plane flights. He suggested that the seadromes be placed 300-500 miles apart and provide a place for the planes to be refueled while crew and passengers rested.

Wage Cuts And Champagne For The Hungarians

BUDAPEST (AP) — Wage cuts and champagne are the surprises Christmas has in store for Hungarians.

The number of bottles of champagne to be imported for the holiday season officially was announced at 40,000 but the number of workers and employees affected by a five-per-cent wage cut is secret.

Workers of several Budapest plants went home this weekend with less money in their pockets than last week. Reports are circulating in the capital about workers' protest meetings in various factories but Budapest's Communist press has not mentioned them nor did the papers carry any announcement concerning the lower $\frac{1}{20}$ of wages.

The measure was forecast—in disguised form — by Nepakarat the organ of Hungary's Communist-dominated trade union which earlier this week said no less than 600,000,000 forints of illegal wages were paid over and above the wage increases following the counter-revolution." The newspaper termed the refunding of the illegally paid wages an "unpopular task" which however, must be executed "to prevent an inflation and a deterioration in the economic situation."

The forint is listed at about 8½ cents.

"The counter - revolution called forth an anarchy in our wage system," Nepakarat said in defence of the proposed government wage action, while conceding "the previous wage system was not without faults."
With the dissolution of the revolution-born workers' councils in the factories, the workers lost their only instrument to protest this belt-tightening.
