Capital Investment

Figures Brighton

Canadian Picture

By FORBES RHUDE
Editor
Canadian Press Business Editor
The most cheering set of figures to come out in some time is this week's estimate by the Bureau of Statistics that more money than ever will be put into the expansion of Canadian production and operating facilities.

This is called capital investment—money put into business, industry, government projects, schools, hospitals and houses.
The Bureau estimates that this year it will total $3,587,000,000 or $162,000,000 more than in 1949.
The figures are cheering because capital investment and exports have been the mainstay of our post-war prosperity.
One of the spectres at our economic feast has been the possibility that capital investment and export might take a simultaneous drop. With present worries about exports, it is comforting to see domestic spending and consumption of goods remain so high. It is an added comfort that, even though we worry about exports, they still are holding up remarkably well.

Capital investment not only means immediate jobs—it indicates faith in the future.
Important sustainers of capital investment are the opening up and continued demand for Canada's natural resources—the streams of money that are being spent throughout the country for the development of Western oil, and the money being spent by mines.

Something like $150,000,000 a year is going into Western oil and about the same sum is being spent by Canadian mines for supplies and materials alone.

Added to these are increased population and wealth from the forests, farms and sea to make a picture which remains far brighter than most people would have dared predict a couple of years back.

PROCLAMATION TO Citizens of Charlottetown ON THE Growing Number of Unemployed Jobs Campaign February 27th - March 11th The City of Charlottetown notes the mounting incidence of unemployment within its limits. The City views this trend with concern, recalling the unemployment problem in the years preceding the last war. Let us hope that this present period may be called "Short Term Unemployment" and that the Spring and Summer will see every available man absorbed into industry. May I urge all citizens to help our unemployed by having repairs, decorating or overhauling jobs done now. Do not wait till Spring. Provide work now when it is needed. Qualified men are available and need your support. Men out of work are not an asset to our community. This situation can be avoided by your co-operation. Then let us unite. Let us look to the interests of those less fortunate than others. By helping them we can help ourselves. DO NOT PROCRASTINATE — DO TOMORROW'S JOB TODAY B. EARLE MacDONALD, Mayor.
