FIRE HORN HOUSING ON

A wooden structure enclosing the top part of the steel tower beside the Fire Hall in Summerside is nearing completion and has been the cause of much speculation by humorists who have imagined it to be everything from a large size bird house to a watch tower for preventing town-employed laborers from loafing on the job.

Inquiry from official sources revealed, however, that it will contain equipment which forms part of the new air horn fire alarm system which will be moved from the town hall building to this new location beside the fire hall.

Tests conducted with the fire alarm air horn attached near the top of the Town Hall building were not satisfactory, and a new horn has arrived which will be located on the tower beside the Fire Hall, in the expectation that when the installations have been changed to the new location the tests to be conducted will prove the air horn alarm to be greatly improved in sound distribution of the alarm blasts.

A carpenter is seen above late yesterday afternoon nearing completion of the roof of the structure which will be of frostproof construction, and which will contain the air booster tank for the unit, as well as two electric heaters to prevent moisture from forming and making the system inoperative should it freeze in a tiny valve which forms part of the alarm system.

Canada Would Station UNEF In Israel As Well

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda (CP)—Canada feels that unless Israel agrees to accept—at least in principle—the United Nations Emergency Force on its territory, the force can no longer operate, it was learned authoritatively Tuesday.

At the same time, Canada believes that UNEF must maintain effective control in the Gaza Strip if it is to function effectively.

The Canadian view is that it is unreasonable to expect Egypt to allow the force to operate on Egyptian territory while Israel refuses to permit it to patrol the Israeli side of the demarcation line.

Israel would not necessarily have to accept as many UNEF soldiers on its soil as Egypt has, but at least enough to save face for Egypt and prevent Egypt from calling for withdrawal of the entire force from the Middle East.

WANTS FORCE

There is a feeling here that despite Egyptian verbal sniping at the force, Egypt really wants the UNEF to remain along its eastern borders as a buffer against Israel. Egypt likely could not withstand a new attack by Israeli forces.

It can be said authoritatively that Canada is not looking for a way out of the United Nations Nations force or escape from its responsibilities in the Middle East. It wants UNEF to work effectively but it is not prepared to see the force kicked around by either Egypt or Israel.

Canada feels that UNEF must maintain control of the Gaza Strip so that it can function on the demarcation line. It would be practically useless to have the force stationed on the Egypt-Israel border without being in control of the interior of the Gaza Strip where raids would originate.

Prime Ministers St. Laurent and Macmillan, and their foreign affairs chiefs, L. B. Pearson and Selwyn Lloyd, had a long discussion on the Middle East Tuesday.

Officials reported afterwards that the two countries were in almost unanimous agreement in their views on how Middle East problems should be tackled.

Canada believes—this view has been expressed publicly before—that the United Nations and not Egypt should decide when UNEF's job is finished in the Middle East. However, some members of UNEF particularly India, do not accept this position, and the Canadians concede it would be difficult for UNEF to carry on without the contributions of India, Yugoslavia and Indonesia.

Blames Crime On Suggestion

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jean Drapeau, Montreal's vice - busting mayor, says if all communications media in North America stopped carrying crime news "the crime rate would be cut by half. And after 10 years, by two-thirds."

Crime waves "are the harvest from seeds we sow through newspapers, magazines, books, radio, TV and movies."

The mayor, on a 13-day speaking tour of Western Canada, said at a press conference.

"The holduppers are young men—boys—who want to be heroes. They want to do something extraordinary, to attract attention.

"Look at the recent case in Montreal where a holdupper loaded with dynamite held up a bank. Where do you think a boy got such an idea from?

"Ah, he wanted to be a hero. He had watched television. He had read crime comics that aren't really comics at all. He wanted to get his name in the headlines.

'If our youth stopped inhaling this poisonous gas of crime publicity I believe crime could be cut in half in five years."

But the mayor said he doubts a ban on crime comics would be accepted.

"The theme of crime, in all its details, is too important for drawing large audiences and too many people would think it a violation of freedom of the press," he said

Capacity Audience at Opening Of Lions Club Minstrel Show

A capacity audience last night greeted the performers on the opening night of the third annual Lions Club minstrel show staged in the Civic Auditorium in Summerside.

Most of the performers of former years who have established themselves as footlight favorites with Summerside audiences were back again this season, including Al Wedlock, Herb Schurman, Ray Grant, Russ Kelly, and Joe Clark.

The show was the first of its kind to be staged in the new auditorium and the setting was without a doubt one of the loveliest seen in a local production. The river scene and back drop with the old time paddle steamer, "The Robert E. Lee" drawing up to the wharf where the darkies were waiting to land the cargo, was most realistic, and was the product of the fertile minds of Lions Joe Clark, Mercer Mullins, and Lloyd DesRoche.

The musical background was supplied by Miss Rita Gamble, pianist, Dolor DesRoches, trumpet, Wilfred Arsenault, guitar, and Ron Hutchinson, drums.

The individual numbers were performed by Miss Helen Bishop, tap dancer, Miss Myrtle Perry, step dancing, Dolor DesRoches, trumpet, and Wilfred Arsenault, guitar solo.

The work of the Swanee River quartette, Messrs. Willard Hogg, Lloyd Ellis, Al Wedlock and Herb Schurman, met with the complete approval of the audience.

Cross fire between the end men Wedlock, Schurman, Kelly and Grant, aided and abetted by the interlocutor George Clow, provided humor which kept the audience in laughter from the opening curtain until the grand finale.

Introducing for the first time on a local stage the new rhythm, the calipso beat, the group consisting of Barbara Cameron, Sandra Schurman, Lloyd DesRoches and Herb Schurman, did full justice to the currently popular numbers "Banana Boat Song," and "Mary Ann."

Lighting for the entire production was under the supervision of Mr. Joseph Brophy, assisted by Daryl Brophy, and their combined knowledge of color combinations provided some outstanding color combinations.

The show will be repeated this evening with the proceeds going towards the community work of the club in particular and their work in support of the Canadian Institute for the Blind.

er of the Day Training Class, West Kent School, and Mr. Pius Smith, Canadian Legion representative.

Mrs. Johnstone made a plea for an immediate inquiry to study ways and means to establish a suitable institution for the mentally retarded in this province. She said that parents of retarded children pay taxes to educate children of average ability and believed that people would be willing to have retarded children included in some type of public education suitable to their needs.

"We do not ask for identical opportunity but for equivalent opportunity for these children."

The brief stated a conservative estimate based upon a study of the problem is that there are approximately 1,235 retarded children in the province. Questioned on this number by Premier Matheson the speaker said it was based on a national average of three per cent of the children under 19 years of age. In one Nova Scotia county where a census had been taken, she said, it was found that four per cent of the children were retarded.

The brief stated about 75 per cent of retarded children have the intellectual capacity to acquire an education up to the primary level and for their maximum development auxiliary classes were necessary. She described such classes as designed "to allow the child to progress at his own rate rather than subjecting him to a fruitless endeavour trying to compete with those of average intelligence.

MORELL HIGH SCHOOL

The final brief yesterday morning was presented by the trustees of Morell High School on behalf of the ratepayers. It was read by Mr. Frank Dunn who had with him on the delegation Carl McAdam, Aldius MacKenzie, Rev. Eric Robin and Miss Mabel O'Brien, principal of the school.

They recommended general examinations for entrance to Grades 9 and 10 for students from outside the High School and that promotions from Grades 9, 10 and 11 should be made on the basis of examinations set by the teachers themselves and at the end of Grade 12 a provincial examination for promotion to the university.

It was also suggested that the completion of the rural high school year in the month of May to give students an equal opportunity to seek summer employment and to help on the farm in the month of June.

Transportation of pupils from outlying districts was a big problem, the delegation said in their brief, and suggested a Government bus subsidy. They also asked for priority recognition in snow removal to enable the busses to operate and prevent loss of days at school. Miss O'Brien felt that even with days lost due to storms the teaching time could be made up by having the school open at nine each morning and the extra half-hour gained daily would compensate for time lost.

The brief stated they operated busses for the children and charged them for it but even at that the operator received only 10 cents per mile which was inadequate. They said to ask the children to pay more is to realize the policy of the Department of Education at the expense of the students. The Department now assists to the extent of a maximum $30 per student a year and the brief asked this be raised to $50.

AT VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

All members of the Education Committee were present for the hearing and later visited the Vocational Training School where they were guests of members of the Home Economics 2 class for dinner. The P.W.C. students, Misses Frances Pendergast, Eleanor Haywood and Joyce MacKie, under the direction of Miss Doris Anderson served a splendid dinner which Committee chairman F.A. Large said would compensate the members for the one they missed at Port Elgin school while they were in New Brunswick.

The Committee also visited the P.E.I. Libraries where they saw the extent of the work being done and the Film Library where they were conducted on a tour by Mr. S. McInnis who explained the work being done for the schools and various organizations by the use of films.

Another public session will be held by the Education Committee tonight in the Legislative Chamber.

immediately sensitive to changes in economic conditions and population.

GUARANTEED MINIMUM

The minimum option offered to the Provinces involved increasing the guaranteed minimum under the 1947 Agreement in accordance with the changes in national production and population from 1942 to 1948. Under this option, Prince Edward Island, which was given special consideration in the 1947 Agreement, was to receive a new guarantee minimun payment of $2,977,015, - an increase of $877,015. over the minimum of $2,100,000 guaranteed in the 1947 Agreement.

In 1946 and 1952 we accepted the new tax rental agreement offers not because they represented some recognition of fiscal need but with a hope that during the lifetime of the present Agreement a more satisfactory formula would be devised that would recognize a province's fiscal need problem or its tax-raising ability. One of the principal functions of the present tax rental agreement was that they were to ease the finances of the provincial governments possessing the lowest fiscal capacity.

As I stated in my Budget of last year, the old idea of grants based on population, as far as this province is concerned, is not a fair basis on which to apportion to the the provinces moneys necessary to assist them to discharge their constitutional responsibilities, and to meet the fast increasing cost burden of capital development.

"I believe that the past agreements have gone a long way to alleviate the economic imbalance between provinces; and that on the whole they have contirbuted in a large measure to the orderly development of national and provincial finance in Canada.

NEW PROPOSALS

The new proposals, made public after two Conferences had been held with the provinces, were offered in a letter from the Prime Minister to the Provincial Premiers dated January 6, 1956. The final Conference on the fiscal proposals took place on March 9 and at that time the plan which is the basis of an Act to authorize the Minister of Finance to make payments to the provinces and to authorize the federal government to enter into fiscal agreements was discussed in detail.

"The essential feature of the new proposals is an attempt to put every province in a "neutral" position in which its decision to impose its own taxes or not impose them can be made with no material financial consequences dependent on its choice. In terms of the principles of financial compensation it may be called an "equalized tax-potential" formula; in essence it is a broadening of the Ontario formula so that it becomes the basis of the arrangements for all provinces.

BASIC PROVISION

"The basic provision is that all provinces are offered means by which they can obtain revenue yields from "standard rates" of personal income tax, corporation profits tax and succession duties equal to the average of the two highest per capita provincial yields, whether they wish to impose such taxes or not.

"Each province, except, of course, the province with the highest standard tax yield, will each receive an unconditional tax equalization payment calculated as follows: each year the yield of the standard rate of each tax will be calculated for each province on data relating to current incomes, profits and inheritances and applying federal rates and personal exemptions of 1956 or 1957; this yield will then be divided by the population of that province to obtain a figure of per capita yield; the per capita yield in the highest two provinces so calculated will then be averaged (unless it is to be a weighted average, in which case the calculation is slightly different); each province will be given an "equalization payment" which will be the difference between the per capita "standard tax yield" in that province and the average per capita "standard tax yield" in the two highest provinces.

CONDITIONS IMPOSED

"The federal government will also pay to each provincial government each year any amount required to bring the total yield of these standard taxes, plus the equalization payment, up to the highest of: (a) the tax rental paid or available to the provincial government in respect of the year ending March 31, 1957, increased by an amount proportionate to any increase in population of the province, from June 1, 1956 to June 1 of the taxation year in respect of which the equalization payment is made, or (b) in the fiscal year 1958-59, 90 per cent of the standard tax yield plus equalization and stabilization payments, if any, in the two preceding years.

"It would appear that Ontario has the highest per capita yield and British Columbia the second highest. Ontario, therefore, will receive no equalization grant, British Columbia (being below the average of itself and Ontario) will receive a moderate grant, and all other provinces will receive some grant.

NET RESULT

"The net result is that Prince Edward Island, under the new formula, will not receive a payment as high as they would if the present tax rental agreements were continued.

"In passing Bill No. 442 in the House of Commons last July, the Minister of Finance repeated his promise that if in the course of discussing the bill with the provinces we find that improvements can be made we will certainly bring them before the House.

"With this promise in mind, we sincerely hope that a solution satisfactory to all will be found and that it will assure to this Province the ability to develop its resources and furnish us with the ways and means to provide generously for the current capital needs of the future."

Valley Needs High Proportion Of New Apple Tree Plantings

HALIFAX (CP) — The Walker Commission investigating fruit storage plants in the Annapolis Valley has recommended a general rehabilitation of the Nova Scotia apple industry to ensure an adequate supply of top quality fruit and fair returns to the growers.

The commissioner, Halifax lawyer and former natural resources minister John A. Walker, also recommends that $373,000 in mortgages on United Fruit Companies cold storage plants in the Anapolis The company had asked higher provincial subsidies to cope with financial difficulties.

Agriculture Minister Haliburton tabled the commissioner's report in the legislature Monday night.

Mr. Walker calls for a new tree planting program to expand the acreage of young orchards, removal of neglected orchards and closer integration of the processing side of the industry with the actual growing of fruit.

He suggests the government appoint fruit growing and marketing experts to prepare a comprehensive plan for the future of the industry.

Cancellation of cold storage mortgages would be conditional on United Fruit reorganizing to permit direct membership of apple growers in the company. It is now composed of local fruit companies, and handles the largest proportion of the crop.

INCREASING MARKET

Mr. Walker said opinion is unanimous that there is a market for at least 2,000,000 bushels a year of good quality apples, increasing with growth in population and expansion of exports.

Last year's crop, smaller than usual, was about 1,665,000 bushels, down from 3,250,000 bushels in 1955. In 1946 the crop was more than 6,000,000 bushels.

The commissioner said 2,000,00 bushels "is a minimum to which there is no excuse for letting the industry fall and there is a strong belief that a large volume of sales can be built up."

"Plans should be put into effect to restore confidence of growers and to achieve a level of new plantings that will ensure a supply of top quality fruit both for processer and fresh fruit sales so that growers will receive a fair return."

Unless stronger efforts were made to increase new plantings and eliminate old trees the industry was in danger of dying of old age. He said there is increasing competition from Quebec, where new plantings are high.

In 1954 more than 57 per cent of Annapolis Valley trees were more than 20 years old, whereas in Quebec almost half the trees were 10 years old or less.

Several Briefs

they appended to their brief the result of a questionnaire among Grades 11 and 12 students at the College. In the First year 152 students were asked if they planned to be a teacher. Only 25 answered in the affirmative. Of the other 127 there were 84 refusing because of objections to the salaries while 43 said they had other interests.

When the Grade 12 students were queried only 7 answered yes with 102 saying no. Of these 62 had salary objections.

The brief also contained a suggested salary schedule which the delegation said had been presented to the Executive Council last fall but no verdict was received. It was stated salaries asked were "to provide a reasonable standard of living commensurate with the position that we, as teachers, are expected to maintain."

Mr. Coyle replying to questions of the Committee said he believed more people would enter teaching if they received more money. Dr. Frank MacKinnon, principal of the College, who attended the hearing said he agreed that salaries at the College were too low and that several instructors could receive far more and still be be underpaid for the work they are doing.

ANSWERS CRITICISM

Previously Premier Matheson had asked Dr. MacKinnon to comment on two letters which had appeared in the Public Forum of The Guardian. They had been signed by C.R. McQuaid and Senator T.V. Grant. The principal said Mr. McQuaid had blamed P.W.C. entrance examinations as a bottleneck and Senator Grant had said P.W.C. started out as a normal school and that other courses had been added thus causing the teacher shortage.

Dr. MacKinnon said those who gave these gentlemen their information were wrong. There are now no entrance examinations, he stated. There are Grades 10 examinations run by the Department of Education and not by P.W.C. and which are applicable to all schools in the Province. The Principal also pointed out that Prince of Wales was established in 1835 and its other courses had been well established before the normal training school was added in 1879.

RETARDED CHILDREN

Also presenting a brief to the Committee on Education was a delegation from the P.E.I. Association for Retarded Children. The brief was read by Mrs. A.M. Johnstone, secretary, and accompanying her was Mr. Russell St. John, president. Also with them were Miss Jacqueline Cummisky, teach-

"TRAVELING SALESLADY" IS RIOTOUS INNOVATION CAPITOL SUMMERSIDE

Ginger Rogers, looking prettier and smiling merrier than ever, is glorifying the screen in Technicolor splendor at the Capitol Theatre.

Ginger's new picture, is "The First Traveling Saleslady." It comes from RKO, having been produced and directed by Arthur Lubin who must have infallible sources of information as to what the public wants.

Young, old and in-between fans all seem happily fascinated at the goings-on in this refreshing film, and no wonder. Its theme is vastly funny and it is loaded with talent.

The jaunty Miss Rogers comes swinging out of the past as a "Gay 90's" merchandising pioneer. She is a "salesman" of corsets, a voice crying in the wilderness of high buttoned shoes and Purity Leagues. A horseless-carriage collision-ruins her samples. Advances of a ramantic steel tycoon send her scampering to Texas and there the action includes everything from a feminine uprising to Rough Rider rescues and a cattle stampede.

High entertainment note of the film is the performance of Carol Channing, Broadway stage headliner and topflight comedienne.

suggested by accumulating experience and conditions.

"Firm in the belief that this Government has faithfully discharged the trust put in it, confident that frankness and courage will always triumph over disguise and apathy, and trustful in the sense of responsibility of the Members of this House, I move, seconded by the Honourable Mr. Matheson, that you do now leave the chair and that the Legislative Assembly resolve itself into a Committee of Supply for the consideration of sums to be granted to Her Majesty."

(In his opening remarks Hon. Mr. MacDonald reviewed the evidence of expanding economy on a national basis, noting with regret that agriculture had not shared in the general prosperity to the same extent as other industries. He also reviewed provincial activities in farming, fisheries, tourist traffic and motor vehicle registration. He dealt at length with the new tax sharing agreements, his remarks on this subject being reported elsewhere in today's issue.)
