Diabetic Program Earns Recognition

Recently returned from the Canadian Diabetic Association annual meeting, C.E. Praught, director of the Diabetic Control Program in P.E.I., said the province is making its mark for its work with diabetics and that it is receiving full recognition by the national organization.

Mr. Praught, who was elected vice-president for the east, stated that in this province more has been done for the diabetic than in any other part of Canada, particularly in the field of providing free drugs to sufferers of the disease.

The Feasby award was won last year by Prince Edward Island for the best all round projects in diabetic work. This year's winner is the Lakehead district in Ontario.

This province, with its 700 diabetics, is an ideal spearhead for diabetic research, such as the survey now being conducted by the Family Tree Research of the national association.

Significant in the latest report is the fact that the incidence of diabetes appears to show a sudden increase at ages 10 to 14 years, and at age 50 years. For a total of 156 persons or 22.3 per cent of this province's diabetic population, the age of onset of the disease was 50 to 59, and the age of onset for 21.8 per cent was ages 60 to 69.

Another notable fact is that approximately one half of diabetics here receive the oral drug treatment, and are thereby spared the inconvenience of taking insulin. It was thought that the number taking insulin would be considerable larger, Mr. Praught noted. Oral drugs were first released for sale in April, 1957.

Latest phase of family tree research here is an enquiry into the racial origin of diabetics, due to the fact that the majority of the population here is of British and French lineage. Results of this enquiry will help to determine the effect, if any, of racial extraction on the incidence of the disease.

The survey here, conducted with a certain type of population and area is a "good start" Mr. Praught said.

Drug prices were discussed at the national meeting, and, as it was felt the price was quite high the matter was turned over to the medical advisory committee for study.

A recommendation was made during the sessions that a letter of thanks be sent to the P.E.I. minister of health for his assistance.

The International Diabetic Federation will meet for the first time in Canada next year at Toronto.

In chatting with Mrs. Charles Best, wife of the co-discoverer of insulin in the province in 1916, Mr. Praught discovered that Mrs. Best was familiar with this province as her "father's first church was at Marshfield." Mrs. Best's maiden name was MacLeod.

The Diabetic Control Association here is hoping to make a survey starting with school children in the province in the search for unknown diabetics. The matter is at present under study by the national office, Mr. Praught said; "for every known diabetic, there is an unknown."

MUTUAL COLLABORATION
He followed in the spirit of Pope John in suggesting more help for poor peoples of the world, and as had Pope John before him, he promised to work for world peace.

WILL CONTINUE COUNCIL
As for the ecumenical council, which went into recess in December, Pope Paul said he will work for its continuation. But he set no date for its resumption. The date of Sept. 8 was automatically cancelled by Pope John's death.

One of Pope John's chief aims was Christian unity, Pope Paul seemed prepared to carry on. He said:

"Our pontifical service will be, finally, to pursue with every commitment the great work launched with so much hope and with bright expectation by our predecessor, John XXIII: the achievement of that 'ut unum sint' (that they all may be one) so awaited by all and for which he (John) offered his life."

Before him as he spoke sat the 78 cardinals. Each one of them knelt before him, kissed his ring and looked up into his face before the radio address.

Pope Paul spoke to each cardinal. Once he left the throne and came down two steps to greet Maurolio Cardinal Foscarini at a two-hour meeting at the Soviet delegation headquarters.

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union Wednesday gave its formal approval to an agreement for a "hot line" teletype link between Washington and the Kremlin. Soviet disarmament negotiator Semyon K. Tsarapkin in formed U.S. Ambassador Charles C. Stille of the Soviet action at a two-hour meeting at the Soviet delegation headquarters.

PRAYS FOR PREDECESSOR
Then, the 65-year-old new pontiff went into the grotto before St. Peter's Basilica and knelt in prayer beside the tomb of his predecessor and friend who died June 3 after a pontificate of four years and seven months.

Pope Paul, in his first full day as leader of the world's half billion Roman Catholics, spoke in Latin over Vatican radio Saturday from the Sistine Chapel where he was selected by the College of Cardinals Friday.

His message was filled with remembrances and praise of Pope John.

"We love to remember," he said, "with mindful and moving pity, the figure of the late John XXIII, who in the brief but very intense period of his ministry, was able to bring near to him the hearts of men, even those distant."

In what appeared to be a reference to the United States and the Soviet Union, Pope Paul touched on the space race:

"The new epoch which the conquests of space have opened to mankind will be singularly blessed by the Lord if men know truly how to recognize each other as brothers rather than competitors, and build a world order in sanity far of God in respect of His laws, in the light of sweet charity and faith."
