

Intramurals

The Intramurals column was received for print this week, however, it has been decided by those in authority at the SUN office that the column is unprintable. The Intramural column is suppose to give the week's update in sports. It is not an excuse to write pure filth. We are not prudes but there is a limit and this week's column was garbage. If Intramurals is cleaned up, it will be printed. If not, it won't be. It is as simple as that. We apologize to those who have a genuine interest in the column.

Forum on Energy

From: Heather Griswold

"Forum on Energy", a two day session on electricity and other forms of energy will take place at the University of Prince Edward Island on Thursday and Friday, February 25 and 26, University President Dr. Peter Meincke announced today.

The forum is designed for the general public, particularly those involved in energy consumption, be it in the home, on the farm in fisheries or in industry. Coordinator of the forum is Dr. M.P. Madan of the University's Department of Physics. Dr. Madan notes, "the purpose of this event is to provide a forum for discussing energy problems on PEI. The sessions will provide an opportunity to increase our understanding of the nature of the problem and the wide variety of solutions that are being proposed." Dr. Madan said that in addition to members of the general public there will be members of the government sector in attendance.

Some of the panel Discussion workshops titles are: Why are electric bills on PEI so high? What effects are they having on homeowners, businesses industries and farmers? What can be done? Energy in heating, transportation, and the operation of machinery. What are tomorrow's alternatives?

The forum will open with sessions on the 25th. On Feb 26th there will be panel discussions and workshops thoroughout the day and a banquet in the evening. Registration which is limited, is $10. This will include a reception, coffee, tea, lunch, etc. The banquet is an additional $6.00.

Further information is available by calling either the Office of the President, or the Department of Physics, telephone 892-4121, ext. 110 or 117, respectively, or by writing the UPEI Forum on Energy, University of Prince Edward Island, Charlottetown, PEI, C1A 4P3

Mind Games

Still here everybody, much to the surprise of the station and ourselves. Presently, we are able to write this column only late at night by hiping the wall to the station but, nonetheless, we are still getting out one column per week. I might add that the management has seen fit not to interfere with the writers mainly because we refuse to let them see our column before it goes into print.

Lately, things are continuing to get rolling at the station although some members of the staff are still reluctant to show up for their shows for reasons unknown to us. Still, it must be noted that these persons are definitely in the minority and most

D.J.'s put in an appearance at the appropriate time. Also, a recent plea for discipline by a member of management (who, incidently changes his title more often than most people change their underwear) was acknowledged by the staff, who immediately went out and bought a dart board. We are now, naturally, experts at this sport.

NOTE TO VIEW FROM THE TOP: Despite the fact that a number of our members are Freshman engineers, we are still able to function.

That's it for this week, so until later, eh?

P.S. We are at 700 on your A.M. dial and you should pick us up clearly in residence, so give us a listen.

"Dreamgirls"

Canadian playwright Janis Rapoport's play "Dreamgirls" will be presented at the MacKenzie Building in Charlottetown as part of the Island Women's Arts Festival. "Dreamgirls" concerns homeless women from widely differing backgrounds who find shelter with their children in a halfway home in a big city. They become friends while working out new ways of life.

"Dreamgirls" will be directed by the Festival's Theatre Representative, Deb Allen, who directed Agatha Christie's "Ten Little Indians" for the Island Theatre Guild in December. Auditions will be advertised at the end of February.

For further information contact Joni Turner at 675-3672 or Deb Allen at 894-4175.
