Blood Donor Quota Falls Short By 110

Borden's afternoon and evening sessions which opened the four day series of Red Cross blood donor clinics produced only 100 of the 210 quota of blood donors. This deficit of 110 will be difficult to recoup at the sessions to be held during the next three days when clinics will be held at Summerside today and tomorrow, and at the R.C.A.F. Station and Kensington on Thursday.

The Borden branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, the Carleton Siding women's institute and the Albany Lions' Club were the joint sponsors of the Borden clinic with J. J. MacIsaac as the overall chairman.

Members of the Cape Traverse women's institute joined with the three joint sponsoring groups in providing assistants for the mobile Red Cross blood donor team from Halifax. Yesterday's serious fall in attendance makes it imperative that there be a record turn out during the next three days in order to meet the demands of coming winter months, according to a statement made last night by Red Cross officials. Today's and tomorrow's clinics will be held at the Legion home in Summerside between 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

RCAF Blood Donor Quota Set At 225

225 blood donors will be sought among the service and civilian personnel at the RCAF Station on Thursday morning, Dec. 5th, when a Red Cross blood donor clinic is held at the "Drill Hall" according to P.O. Len Wagner, co-ordinator of the committee in charge of this clinic.

Service personnel at the Station will be on hand at 8.30 a.m. to help with the unloading and setting up of the equipment in the Drill Hall, and will provide the extra assistants required by the twelve member Red Cross Blood donor team from Halifax who come to the province five times during each year to collect the province's share of the blood required for patients in local hospitals.

The RCAF Station has always given its utmost support to these Red Cross blood donor clinics, and the Commanding Officer, G.C. A.G. Dagg makes a practice of being the first donor himself, and in this way encourages the participation of all eligible personnel on the station.
