

Eisenhower Accepts His Renomination In Address

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—President Eisenhower, accepting nomination for a second term, Thursday called the Republican party "the party of the future" and pledged to go on working to ensure prosperity at home and peace in the world.

Setting forth those two major goals, Eisenhower said in his prepared address to the Republican convention that the kind of era he charts for the future is entirely possible.

But he added:

"It will not be obtained by revolution. It will not be obtained by the sordid politics of pitting group against group.

"It will be brought about by the ambitions and judgments and inspirations and the daring of 168,000,000 free Americans working together and with friends abroad toward a common ideal in a peaceful world."

cept renomination along with Vice-President Richard Nixon.

Eisenhower's address, carried on television and radio, blue-printed party goals that the Republicans plan to highlight in the campaign against the Democratic ticket of Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver.

Eisenhower said he is accepting nomination for a second term "humbly but confidently" in firm faith and conviction that Republican purposes are in league with the kind of future he envisages for the U.S.

"I pledge you my best efforts to bring victory to our cause next November," he said.

DEDICATED TO PEACE

The president said "a party of the future must be completely dedicated to peace as indeed must all Americans. For without peace there is no future."

On national Security, Eisenhower put it this way:

"During the past few years, our military strength has been constantly augmented, soberly and intelligently. Our country has never before in peace time been so well prepared militarily. So long as the world situation requires, our security must be vigorously sustained."

In speaking of a need for effective collective security arrangements, Eisenhower said:

"We are in the era of the thermonuclear bomb, that can obliterate cities and can be delivered across continents. With such weapons, war has become, not just tragic, but preposterous. With such weapons, there can be no victory for anyone. Plainly, the objective now must be to see that such a war does not occur at all."

ATOMIC PLANNING

Eisenhower recalled the atoms for peace plan which he charted in 1953, and added that since that time much has been achieved to make atomic science "universally available to friendly nations in order to promote human welfare."

Alluding to his military background, the president said:

"No one is more aware than I that it is the young who fight the wars, and it is the young who give up years to military training and service. It is not enough that the elders promise 'peace in our times'; it must be peace in their time; indeed, there is only one real peace now, and that is peace for all time."

On the domestic side, as in the case of foreign affairs, Eisenhower made no direct mention of criticism fired at him and his administration by the Democrats last week. But he seemed to be dealing at least implicitly in his acceptance address with some of the charges fired by the opposition party.

Among The Farmers

The animal. Time moves on however and in some parts of the world machinery is being used to cut the grass and bring it to the cow in the paddock where either she or it from the wagon or from a bunk into which the chopped grass has been unloaded. For the first time we have observed an operation of this kind on Prince Edward Island where a dairyman is cutting the after grass with a forage harvester, blowing in into a wagon, hauling the wagon to the pasture and allowing the cattle to help themselves.

FARM LABOUR

A recent announcement conveyed the information that a serious shortage of labour exists in Saskatchewan and that a large number of farm workers would have to be brought in from Eastern Canada. The labourers might be available in Saskatchewan but we doubt it and depend to the East but we advise upon the East solving their labour difficulties. From the Atlantic to the Pacific agriculture is running short of man power and as long as industrial development is at its present level the situation will not improve and may even become worse.

ONE MORE COW

Prince Edward Island has approximately 8,000 farms on which cows are kept. The average number of cows per farm is approximately five, a number which by present day standards is certainly not large. If each of these farms were to keep an additional cow producing 300 pounds of revenue fat per cow an additional revenue even at 60¢ per pound of butterfat amounting to almost one and one-half million dollars would accrue. There are very few farmers in this province that could not feed an additional cow and if this were done the sum total effect on the economy would not be inconsiderable. The cow may be a demanding boss but she pays regularly and in cash with few if any strings attached.

FALL PLOWING

The 1957 season will get underway within the next few weeks when believers in early plowing start the basic farm operation. While the results in the following crop on rich, well limed land might not vary very much between early or late plowing the same cannot be said on poorer soils lacking in lime. In this the soil take a long time to decay and early plowing promotes much better production.

SCENIC BEAUTY

The traveller who has the time to pause on some of the higher points in Prince Edward Island and there survey the scenery will in many instances view scenes that cannot be surpassed for beauty anywhere. One of these points is located at Surrey in Queen's County on the Road running east from Garfield. Those interested in scenic beauty will find at this point a view which cannot be surpassed in any part of this province.

FARM FORUM

While the 1956 Farm Forum season does not get underway until in November already some preliminary planning has been done with a view to providing more active promotion for this project. Farm Forum has never had any great amount of field work done on it and the forums that have developed and flourished have for the most part resulted from local interest and local effort. Not very many products, no matter how useful, will sell themselves and Farm Forum is in need of and can profit by active selling campaign of the proper type of field work. There never was a time when the farmer was more in need of good educational equipment in dealing with farm problems, certainly it is too late for most of us to go back to school, but we can make use of adult education and the knowledge that can be gained through it by meeting with neighbours, listening to farm broadcasts and studying printed material.

Hearings Completed In Case Involving Indian Land Claim

MONCTON (CP)—Hearings into the land dispute between three Micmac Indians of Big Cove, Kent County, and a white man wound up here Tuesday in the Supreme Court, but Mr. Justice W. Arthur I. Anglin said a decision would not be handed down for at least six weeks.

The dispute arises out of a claim by Gordon W. Worman that three Indians, Peter J. Augustine, Stephen Simon and Douglas Francis, cut pulpwood on his property near the Big Cove reservation.

Earlier, Andy Paul of Vancouver, lawyer for the three Micmaes, left his case in the hands of another lawyer while he took the stand to testify on behalf of the three.

DISPUTE OWNERSHIP

The Indians maintain that the land is rightfully theirs and that it was unlawfully taken from them around the time of Confederation when the federal government took over administration of Indian affairs.

The land was granted to Senator David Wark in 1873 by the federal government and it is alleged that the Indians surrendered the land a year later. The Indians contend that the surrender was fraudulent.

In his testimony Mr. Paul said the transaction was not completed in that the people never received anything for the land. He said according to custom any surrendered lands sold and up to 50 per cent of it is given back to the individual Indians.

To this Mr. Justice Anglin said: "The terms do not say when the government will pay. They might be doing so right now."

Mr. Paul also said that one white man and two Quebec Indians signatures were on the surrender agreement. He said that only Indians of the reserve could sign the paper.

guests of honor were seated, a gaily decorated carriage was wheeled in loaded with gifts. The parcels were opened by Mrs. John Fraser and Mrs. Dick Campbell and were arranged by Mrs. Bob Campbell. The accompanying verses were read by Mrs. Lawrence and Buddy thanked everyone and was then thoroughly bounced by Mrs. O'Connor and Boudrealt and dancing was enjoyed after which lunch was served by the ladies.

Friends and play mates of little Miss Edith Clary were sorry to learn she was badly bitten by a neighbor's dog. She was rushed to the doctor's office, where several stitches were needed to close the wound.
